2 take up GOP standard; Ford, Carter vow debates

by HERALD News Services

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity!" The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his campaign for a White House term of his own. "I'm ready, eager, to go before the American people and debate the real issues face-to-face with Mr. Carter."

"We want Ford, We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords, hands clenched above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Geagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

Chevy Chase annex sought for homes

by BILL HURLEY

Owners of the Chevy Chase Country Club and surrounding areas east of Buffalo Grove are asking the village to annex the land and permit construction of a townhouse and apartment complex on the golf course.

Owners presented plans for the first time to the plan commission Wednesday for the annexation of approximately 550 acres extending more than two miles east of the village limits. The proposed boundaries would include 646 acres, but annexation of the Chevy Chase subdivision and other isolated parcels is not planned at this time.

Robert Grossman of Associated Planners, Highland Park, prepared a report proposing the entire 646-acre parcel be developed to include 45 acres of single-family homes, 74 acres of apartments and 97 acres of townhouses. This would generate approximately 5,162 new Buffalo Grove residents. Thirty-four per cent of the site which is already partially developed would be residential, 28 per cent parks and open space, 18 per cent industrial, 10 per cent commercial and 9 per cent ponds, streams, detention areas and flood plain.

BUFFALO GROVE plan commission members were noncommittal after their first look at plans this week, but cited several problems that may arise as barriers to annexation.

One of the major problems is that only about half the land proposed for annexation is designated for annexation on the village master plan, which recommends the village annex only as far east as Milwaukee Avenue and as far south in that area as the Lake-Cook county line.

by DANN GIRE

An abandoned car is the only key police have to the identification of an unidentified body found Thursday in Potawatomi Woods near the Dundee Road-Milwaukee Avenue intersection in Wheeling Township.

Police believe the man may have been the owner of an auto recently found in the Cook County Forest Preserve woods by forest preserve rangers. The auto was registered to John Drag, 37, but the address of Drag was not released by police.

The body was discovered at 2:30 p.m. Thursday by John Perdue of 1022 E. Village Ct., Des Plaines, while he was walking through the woods, police said.

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialist maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of government," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron. A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the trans-Pacific flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Wendy's carnival is 'to help people live'

Eleven-year-old Wendy Lynne Copeland reached over and placed the small, white envelope in my hand. I flipped it over and read the backside.

In neatly printed letters, the envelope said: "I had my carnival against dystrophy because..."

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystrophy. I want to help people live."

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

Five cents. That's all the admission will cost to this very special Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy that will be conducted in Shelley's honor.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 1 p.m. at 1034 Tulp Way in the Pinehurst Manor subdivision of Palatine. Those homes are located just northeast of the Rand Road and Dundee Road intersection.

Torrential rain, gale force wind pummel Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — A tropical depression drifting erratically off South Florida pummeled Miami Thursday with gale force winds and torrential rains, flooding streets and stores and knocking out power in scattered parts of the city.

Limbs and palm fronds were ripped from trees by the high winds, which at one point began lifting sheets of plywood and lumber off a high-rise project under construction in Downtown Miami.

Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center, said the depression was kicking up winds of 40 miles an hour. Gusts up to 50 and 60 m.p.h. were reported in squalls in the Florida Keys and the Bahama Islands.

"Winds are near the threshold for a tropical storm," Frank said, "and even though conditions do not favor rapid strengthening, even a small increase in winds would make it a tropical storm and require us to assign it a name."

Frank said the depression, at noon, was centered in Florida Bay just off the south Florida mainland.

"The depression is drifting slowly and erratically," Frank said, "and the heavy rains along the southeast Florida coast may persist for another 12 to 18 hours."

Another disturbance being watched by forecasters, tropical storm Candice, continued to whip the Atlantic north of Bermuda with 65 m.p.h. winds.

At noon, EDT, Candice was centered 400 miles north of Bermuda near latitude 33.4 north and longitude 64.6 west. The storm was moving north-northeast at 10 to 15 m.p.h. and posed no threat to the United States mainland.

The depression, which formed off Key West on Wednesday, dumped as much as six inches of rain on Miami and south Florida during the day and brought rush-hour traffic to a standstill.

"It's a mess," Miami Police spokesman Harry Cunill said, "but there have been no serious accidents. We're monitoring our radios and sending units to flooded streets to reroute traffic."

The heaviest flooding in downtown Miami was in a 15-block area between Biscayne Boulevard and Northeast 13th to 18th streets. The water in some parts of this area was over three feet deep and flowed into several stores.

Dade County police also reported heavy flooding on Key Biscayne, just across the bay from Miami, where water was so deep in one condominium parking garage that residents were unable to move their cars.

Physicists announce

New components found in atom

NEW YORK (UPI) — The discovery of new components in the nucleus of the atom called "charmed baryons" was announced Thursday by physicists who said the impact of their research might rival the harnessing of electricity.

A team of scientists led by Dr. Wonyong Lee of Columbia University said two years of work confirmed the existence of "charm," a physical property of subatomic matter that explains inconsistencies in the behavior of particles like neutrons, protons and electrons that make up atoms.

The existence of charm had been predicted in theory but never previously confirmed.

The research team composed of physicists from Columbia, the University of Illinois and the University of Hawaii, made their discovery at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Batavia, Ill.

Dr. Bruce Knapp, an assistant professor at Columbia, said, "We can't do anything with high energy physics like this right now but people in Faraday's time didn't understand electricity."

He said, "As long as you didn't fly a kite in a storm, you didn't have to worry about electricity then, but this discovery could become as important in coming years as electricity has become since those years."

Lee said the charmed baryons were identified in the debris left behind from high speed collisions of photons, the particles of light which result when electrons are knocked out of orbit around an atom's nucleus.

Within that nucleus, particles known as hadrons are arranged in patterns — or quarks, in physics shorthand — that determine some characteristics of the baryon's behavior.

"There were previously three known kinds of quarks," said Lee's colleague, Dr. Bruce Knapp. "They could be combined in certain ways that would determine the behavior of a particle. But variations in the behavior indicated other patterns existed.

"If the hadrons are made up of combinations from the three known quarks, they are uncharmed. If they are lighter than normal, they contain elements of a fourth quark and are charmed," he said.

Lee admitted the discovery had little practical application now, but said its future potential was enormous.

"It is like the story about the newborn baby," he said. "No one knows now whether it will grow up to be good, bad or what."

It's Ford, Dole ticket for GOP

in disgrace. The President, eager to reunite a divided party still reeling from a bitter primary election campaign, used his speech at the final session of the 31st Republican National Convention here to sketch the record of his administration and proclaim a November victory.

In his acceptance speech, Ford did not ignore the scandals of Watergate which brought him to the White House.

"Anger and hatred had risen to dangerous levels, dividing friends and families," he said. "The polarization of our political order had aroused unworthy passions of reprisal and revenge."

And he recalled that on Aug. 9, 1974, when he took the oath of office, the nation was in deep recession.

Dole's selection as Ford's running mate got a somewhat mixed reaction from Illinois Republicans. Most praised the move, but some, like U. S. Senator Charles Percy, R-Illinois, candidly stated "Dole will not be a big help to the party in the Chicago area."

The Kansas senator won the vice presidential nomination easily, with only token opposition from die-hard Reagan supporters who placed the name of U. S. Senator Jesse Helms, R-South Carolina, in nomination.

However, Helms called on the convention to back Dole, who he called "one of my best friends in the Senate."

The nomination of Dole marked a repeat of history. The last Republican convention held here in 1928 nominated another Kansan, Charles Curtis, to be Herbert Hoover's runningmate.

In the balloting for Dole's nomination, Illinois cast all 101 votes for Ford's choice. The state had had 14 Reagan supporters Wednesday night, but they closed ranks on the Dole vote in an effort to show a unified state delegation.

Strike threatens trolley system

A strike threatened San Francisco's trolley, bus and cable car system with a shutdown for the second time in four months Thursday — at the height of a record tourist season. Municipal Railway operators and city negotiators were more than $3 million apart on a total pay package as a 12:01 a.m. Friday strike deadline approached. A walkout would affect the city's quaint cable cars, a prime attraction for thousands of visitors. A similar walkout threatened more than 750,000 bus passengers in the Los Angeles area where drivers and mechanics union leaders were negotiating with the Rapid Transit District. That contract expires at 12:01 a.m. Friday but negotiators said they hoped to hammer out a settlement.

Indictment names 4 JDL members

An indictment unsealed Thursday charged four members of the Jewish Defense League with firing shots into the Russian U.N. Mission and residential compound, placing two pipe bombs at the Iraqi U.N. Mission and blowing up a New Jersey gas station. The indictment said the alleged terrorists intended to harass the Soviet Iraqi "and other governments believed by the JDL to be antagonistic to the Jewish people and the state of Israel." The Jewish Armed Resistance, a splinter group of the JDL, took responsibility for all four incidents. One of the suspects was Russel Kellner, 35, of New York, a former Philadelphia school teacher turned weapons expert who is a major organizer for the JDL.

Tremor shakes Philippines

A mild tremor shook the Manila area early today and scientists described it as part of the seismic activity that caused the earthquake that devastated the southern Philippines. The tremor awakened residents. It registered in intensity three on the Rossi-Forel Scale of nine, according to the Geophysical Observatory. Thousands riot in Port Elizabeth streets

Thousands of blacks rampaged through the streets of three Port Elizabeth, South Africa, black suburbs Thursday, burning cars and buildings in the second day of racial riots in which at least 14 persons have died. A police spokesman said the rioters were "still active" in the black enclaves of Brighton, Zwile and Kwazakele. He said 23 blacks were wounded and 31 arrested in violence in the township in incidents where police fired on crowds. The latest deaths brought to 231 the number of persons killed in two months of nationwide racial upheavals.

"Richard called me here in Vienna to tell me it will happen in the next few weeks," the paper quoted Miss Taylor as saying at a cocktail party before starting work on a film version of the musical, "A Little Night Music." Ms. Hunt is the former wife of British Formula One auto racer James Hunt.

Plans made to avoid double aid claims

James Trainor, Illinois public aid director, said Thursday his department is canceling and turning over to authorities the cases of 11 persons who allegedly have collected public aid in both Illinois and Indiana. Trainor said he and Wayne Stanton, administrator of Indiana's Dept. of Welfare, in an attempt to curb fraud, have reached an agreement which allows the two states to exchange information about welfare recipients. As a result of earlier meetings, Trainor said, Indiana has supplied records of 25,000 recipients who receive assistance from 12 Indiana counties bordering Illinois, which will be checked against Illinois' total caseload. Illinois already has sent Indiana 37 cases likely to match those on Indiana's welfare rolls, he said. Eleven of those cases turned up in records of both states. Another six are being checked for possible fraud, Trainor said. Trainor said the state also is working with other border states to curb the use of two states' welfare rolls.

Final hearing on rail crossings

State Rep. Everett Steele, R-Glen Carbon, said Thursday a legislative subcommittee investigating safety problems at highway-railroad grade crossings will hold its final hearing Aug. 31 in Granite City. Steele said the Granite City meeting is the last of three meetings held to discuss solutions to crossing problems, determine why money appropriated by the legislature for protection devices has not been spent and proposed regulations for the crossings.

Unexpected rebate for residents

Viola Mayor Ivan Cooper said Thursday he and his colleagues on the village council think taxation is like borrowing a cup of sugar: You ought to give back what you don't use. So the council has voted to return $9,500 in unused village revenue to its 300 or so taxpayers in the form of $20 to $30 rebates in the fall. "I hope it would not displease anyone," Cooper said. "It isn't a big thing. It's sort of like returning a cup of sugar to a neighbor." Cooper said the council believes it can operate the village for the rest of the fiscal year, until next April, on current sources of revenue. "We just didn't quite need what we already asked for," Cooper said. The town has nothing to spend the money on since it needs no new equipment or buildings and its share of the state sales tax keeps increasing. When the council voted Monday night, only one trustee dissented. He wanted to keep the money for emergencies. "But we voted him down," another trustee said.

2 agencies to check antibias practices

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission said Thursday it will not ask two state agencies to stall the letting and awarding of construction contracts in East St. Louis because the agencies have promised a review of their contract procedures. FEPC Chairman Susan Vance said the Illinois Dept. of Transportation and the Illinois Capital Development Board will conduct "a thorough review of their procedures" to assure compliance with equal employment opportunity provisions in state construction contracts. She said the FEPC, therefore, will not pursue its 60-day moratorium request to allow it to investigate allegations of race and sex discrimination.

Bridgeview clerk dies in crash

Ronald J. Dawson, 35, the Bridgeview village clerk and collector, was found dead Thursday in his demolished car, which apparently veered off Ill. Rte. 45 and plunged down a 176-foot embankment into a wooded area west of suburban Palos Hills. A motorist reported seeing Dawson's auto traveling on the highway at a high rate of speed and authorities suspected the accident occurred at about that time. Dawson's wife phoned authorities early Thursday morning after she became concerned because he had failed to return home. State and local police searched the area throughout the night before finding the body at the bottom of the embankment. Investigators said the car was airborne for about 77 feet, shearing off the tops of several trees, and overturning several times before crashing to the ground. Dawson was elected village clerk in 1967 and reelected three times.

'Hi there, this is your plant talking'

"This is your plant speaking," said the sexy female voice. "I'm so happy in my home." So begins a recorded message attached to a talking plant stand which is one of the hits of the current National Hardware Show at McCormick Place. Marshall Bedol, 49, head of a Cleveland firm which makes plant stands, barbecues and garden accessories, said he was in Chicago in July attending the National Housewares Show when an attractive woman came into his booth.

"I was giving her the Marsh Allan plant stands sales pitch," he recalled. "When she said, 'your stands are so beautiful, you don't have to talk so much.' With that the wheels started turning. Bedol said when he got back to Cleveland he began a crash program to put together a talking device to be attached to his three tier, wire mesh plant stand so that it could be introduced in Chicago this week.

Three agencies go to court over school-aid issue

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago school system, the Illinois Office of Education and the state comptroller squared off in court Thursday over the payment of a $53.23 million penalty by Chicago schools for closing early last year.

Action taken Thursday by the Chicago schools and the IOE brought to three the number of lawsuits filed this week on the matter.

The Illinois Office of Education filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court to force the state comptroller to release about $48 million in school aid payments to Cook County, including Chicago.

The suit, filed by IOE legal counsel Julia Dempsey, asks that the court certify that the IOE can legally stretch Chicago's penalty payment over three years and that the court order Comptroller George Lindberg to pay the money.

MEANWHILE, the Chicago schools filed suit asking for an injunction against state schools Supt. Joseph Cronin, Lindberg and state Treasurer Alan Dixon.

The Chicago schools maintain that they should not have to pay the penalty at all because they were forced to close schools prematurely last year for lack of $164.9 million in school aid payments. The $53 million penalty was assessed when Chicago schools closed 16 days early last school year.

The suit, filed by school district counsel Michael Murray, also said the penalty was unconstitutional because Chicago schools were not consulted and that the penalty "is of such magnitude as to cripple the operation of the public education system" in Chicago.

Arlington Park impressario

Razzle dazzle's his trademark

by JOE SWICKARD

Playboy Bunnies on horseback? Five thousand free hatter tops for the ladies? Pro basketball players going against a team of jockeys?

What's next at Arlington Park — an exploding Tote Board that sends off rockets and sounds sirens when some railbird hits the Daily Double?

Has Bill Veeck been signed as a special consultant at the track? Nope, it's Joseph Joyce, chairman of the board and Madison Square Garden senior vice president, which are deceptively gray titles for a man with a flair for flash and splash.

JOYCE'S WARDROBE fits his title rather than his actions. Instead of race track plaids and two-tone patent leather platforms, he favors three-button suits and black wingtips.

But don't let the New York corporate image fool you. Joyce has plenty of ideas cooking.

"We want people to have a good time out at Arlington Park. A good time — win or lose," he said while relaxing in his Cadillac parked in the backstretch area.

Maybe that's the key to the success he has had in the few weeks since he has taken over the day-to-day operation of the track. He's walking the grounds and stopping in the barns instead of having to be tracked down in the maze of offices under the grandstands.

"WE WANT TO get our name around. We want to focus attention on it," he said.

Joyce said the key to success in "this crazy business" is getting the customers to come out and enjoy themselves. And in the serious world of big business it helps if the customers enjoy themselves.

"We want the occasional track-goer out more often. If he comes out three times a year, let's try to make it five or six times a year. I'll admit it, we're in competition for the leisure dollar — the same money spent on movies, theaters and concerts," he said.

If that means keeping the patrons happy, you have to admit that he's trying to do just that.

THE GRASSY courtyard by the paddock area has been opened to the public and fitted with tables where the customers can relax. Joyce is thinking of getting some entertainment like Dixieland bands to soothe the frazzled nerves between the races.

"I'm trying to set up some hurdle or steeplechases as a 10th race. You don't get to see them too often. The last time anyone saw them here was in 1954. It would be special, that's why it would be a 10th race," he said.

Joyce may even give life to track-developer Curly Brown's dream of polo at Arlington Park.

"I hope to get some polo games, or more accurately, matches out here. I've been trying to do that," he said.

THE PROMOTIONAL gimmicks and stunts, as Joyce sees it, are just basic parts of selling a product to the public. Basic business sense decrees that the seller must get the buyer to try the product and then keep coming back for more.

Prior to joining the Madison Square Garden Corp., Joyce, an attorney for 17 years, served as executive vice president of the New York State Off Track Betting Corp. He said off track betting will probably be legalized in Illinois, but he isn't laying odds on when it will happen.

"It's coming — but when, I don't know," he said, adding, it must be "properly structured, and I stress that structured."

Business beckoned and it was time to leave the Cadillac conference room and talk to horsemen gathering for Friday's Illinois-bred yearling auction being held at the track.

ONE LAST QUESTION: Back in law school did he ever think he'd be running a race track someday?

"Nope, I never even thought about it. But if I had, I'm sure I would have thought it was going to be fun."

Under that three-button suit coat of Joseph Joyce beats a heart of hoopla. And he's off and running.

Lake Co. panel to vote today on rent subsidy

An application for federal funds to provide rent subsidies to 150 families in Lake County is expected to be acted on today by the Lake County Housing Authority.

The authority will vote on a final form of an application to the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for rent subsidies under the Section Eight Program.

Funds would be available to the county in mid-October if the application is approved by the county and HUD.

Robert Cisek, director of the housing authority, said if the funding is approved, 150 families would be chosen from the county, excluding the Waukegan and North Chicago areas. Those two cities have their own housing authorities, Cisek said.

THE FAMILIES chosen then would have to find rental units in the county that meet HUD standards and fall within the rent limits established by HUD. The families would pay only 25 per cent of their total income for rent and utilities, with the remainder paid by federal funds, Cisek said.

"Let's say a family of four has an income of $7,200," Cisek said. "They qualify for a two-bedroom unit because they have two children. They could rent a unit with utilities for a total of $234 a month. They would pay $59 and the housing authority would pay $175 directly to the landlord."

To be eligible for the program, a family must fall within income guidelines established by HUD. The total family income plus 10 per cent of the value of the family's assets are computed. The total cannot exceed $9,900 for a family of one; $14,200 for a family of four; or $17,800 for a family of eight, Cisek said.

The closer the family income is to the limit, the less benefit they would receive from the program, Cisek said. "The majority of our applicants will have about one-half the income limit or less," Cisek said.

Priority will be given to county residents and working families, but the program is not restricted to those groups, Cisek said.

CISEK ESTIMATED that 20 to 30 per cent of the households in the county would be eligible for the rent subsidies, including most of the senior citizens in the county.

A major stumbling block to the program is the lack of moderate-income rental units in the county, Cisek said.

"I assure you there will be difficulty, especially in finding three- or four-bedroom apartments. The units are scarce and rents exceed the fair market rents allowable by HUD," the housing authority director said.

For rental units in buildings without elevators, rent limits range from $175 for a studio apartment to $306 for a four-bedroom apartment. Rent limits for buildings with elevators are 10 per cent higher, Cisek said.

MOST MUNICIPALITIES prefer apartment developments with a large percentage of one- and two-bedroom units, Cisek said. "There have not been a lot of three- and four-bedroom units built in the past several years," he added.

The housing authority probably will have to ask HUD to raise the rent limits 20 to 30 per cent, Cisek said.

"They are set at the lower level of the rental market in the six-county area. It might work in some parts of this county but not in most parts of the county," Cisek said.

The authority expects to start notifying county residents to fill out a pre-application form as soon as the HUD funds are approved.

Chevy Chase golf course annex sought for homes

village's advantage to annex the land because it would increase business and industrial tax bases and give Buffalo Grove a balance of uses. He also said it would bring Buffalo Grove two miles closer to Lake Michigan for a future water supply.

THE MASTER PLAN also recommends the golf course area remain a golf course, with less commercial zoning and more industry than being proposed for surrounding land.

Grossman said the golf course would have to be eliminated to provide fill to raise nearby land for housing developments. Much of the land is located on the flood plain, and planners hope to develop large detention areas through the present golf course land.

"The only way to make these lands work is to make the golf course disappear," he said.

He said multi-unit housing would have to be developed to make up for land lost because of the need for large detention areas. The report indicates total residential density would be 4.7 units per acre.

PARK OFFICIALS SAID the school and park donations proposed in the development plan would not be adequate.

Park District Comr. William Kiddle said the development would require a donation of about 32 acres for recreation use. He said only about 22 acres were being proposed, excluding the 149-acre forest preserve and additional water areas. He said forest preserves do not receive credit as park donations under village ordinances.

Grossman said there are about 40 acres of ponds and streams which he thinks should be counted toward a park donation.

"I had a little difficulty understanding (the park district's stand) because I do think there is such a thing as water recreation," he said.

KIDDLE ALSO questioned whether the land proposed for a seven-acre school site would be adequate for the number of students generated. Grossman's report indicates the development would generate 820 elementary school students and 246 high school students. He said Aptakisic-Tripp Dist. 102, which is anticipating serious financial problems in the next few years, would benefit financially.

Another problem raised at the meeting was that the land proposed for development is not entirely owned by the Johnson family, which is requiring the annexation and owns most of the property in the proposed development site.

A representative of the Chevy Chase Subdivision Homeowners Assoc. and a subdivision homeowner said they were worried they would be forced into annexation by Buffalo Grove. The proposed annexation would cause the subdivision to be completely surrounded by the village.

"How can one village and one landowner get together and decide what will happen to 200 innocent people who don't have a voice?" asked Gerald Roberts, 20 Columbus Pkwy., who also is a candidate for the Lake County Board. "We're going to get pulled into annexation — whether we like it or not — without having anything to say about it."

ROBERT AND MABEL Thoresen, 880 Prague Dr., treasurer of the homeowners group, were told the village could forcibly annex any property completely surrounded by it.

Comr. Stephen Goldspiel said he questioned the development of multiple-family developments because they are not selling well now.

"I really don't like the idea of zoning so much land R-9 or R-8 at a time when so many people are coming to us saying they can't build R-9 and R-8," he said.

Goldspiel also said he thought the traffic circulation designated on the plans was poor for such a development.

Grossman said the Johnsons hope to have the property annexed by the end of this year so they can begin the eight-year development project next year. The plan commission has not set a date for the next workshop session to review the proposed annexation and zoning.

190-acre rezoning on agenda today

The rezoning of 190 acres at the northeast corner of Euclid-Lake Avenue and Wheeling Road in Wheeling Township will be reviewed at 3 p.m. today by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

The acreage presently is zoned for single-family use. The proposed rezoning would change the designation to single-family that would allow more housing units per acre.

The zoning commissioners also will discuss a special-use request for portions of the same acreage.

Paul Marcy, secretary of the zoning board of appeals, declined to give added details about the proposed development. The land is owned by a family trust.

The meeting will be held at the Gary Morava Recreation center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Body discovered in forest preserve

had been in the woods was available Thursday night, but a spokesman for the Cook County Sheriff's police said "It may have been some time. There wasn't much of the body left."

THE SPOKESMAN said identification of the body probably will be confirmed by examination of dental records. "because it's hard to say what happened to him because of the deterioration of the body."

The body was recovered by personnel from the sheriff's office, although the Cook County Forest Preserve Rangers will be conducting an investigation into the body's discovery.

Rangers blocked off the northwest entrance to the forest preserve Thursday afternoon, keeping curiosity seekers and visitors away from investigators on the scene.

The body was transferred from Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge to the Cook County Morgue.

Police said Thursday they do not know the cause of death.

An autopsy is scheduled today by the Cook County Coroner's office.

Wendy's carnival for MDA will 'help people live' been listed as Wendy's carnival. But when the nickels begin flowing today, there will be many other helpers, too.

Wendy will be assisted by her two sisters, Deana, 17, and Heather, 14. Their mother, Anne, has been placed in charge of the prize booth.

Neighborhood friends like Patty Brodin and Carrie Loukota will help to make this a memorable and, they all hope, a profitable carnival.

Wendy's carnival will feature bean bag tosses and puppet shows, pie plate tosses and dart games, each game costing 5 cents.

The girls will raffle large stuffed animals, all donated by loving and caring neighbors. An oversized dog and mouse figure to steal that show.

PUPPET SHOWS with hand-made puppets are on the docket. And if any prizes remain, they will be auctioned to the highest bidder when the carnival concludes at 5 p.m.

Then all their money will be turned into a check and forwarded to the Muscular Dystrophy Assn.

More than 40,000 similar children's carnivals held last year raised more than $1.4 million for MDA research and patient service programs.

MDA's most visible patriot is entertainer Jerry Lewis, who conducts his annual telethon for funds during the Labor Day weekend.

That telethon will be televised this year on Chicago station WSNS, Channel 44. Older sister Deana, 17, is making plans to work at the Lewis telethon in Chicago.

The girls were playing cards and there were prizes spread throughout the Copeland house one afternoon this week. General disarray ruled.

Anne Copeland spent a few minutes talking about her family's dedication to muscular dystrophy research, and to the ongoing fund programs conducted by Lewis.

"WE'VE HAD a special thing about this fund," Anne said. It's special because of Shelley.

She was their oldest sister. Shelley would be a high school graduate today. All her life she fought to overcome muscle weakness.

Shelley's problems were congenital. "Her movement was restricted, but a happier baby I don't think I ever had or a more alert baby," Anne said.

"Nothing was wrong with her mind, that's for sure. In fact, her goal was to be a writer. Terrific imagination."

Physicians never could determine why Shelley had congenital muscle weakness. The family did not know that Shelley had muscular dystrophy until three years ago when tests were conducted at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago.

"Prior to that we had not been given a name (for the disease)," Anne said. "We were only told that it was a nonprogressive muscle weakness."

Shelley Copeland became ill with pneumonia in September 1974. She was hospitalized first at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, then at Wesley Memorial Hospital in Chicago.

HER LUNGS began to fill with fluid. That caused congestive heart failure. "Twice she fought it off. The third time was just a little too much," Anne said. "She was lucid right to the very last."

It has been nearly two years since Shelley's death. "What you can change, you worry about. What you can't change, you don't worry about," Anne said.

"If anything, it made us a closer family. We've been able to talk about things. We've never shut out the fact that it happened. There's never been any taboo."

"WE'RE ALL aware that Shelley's missed," her mother said. "It's not as if it didn't happen."

The carnival they will hold today was Wendy's idea. She brought home papers from school. They wrote for more information. Now here it is, the day of their carnival.

"If we could get $100 from this, that would be fabulous," Anne said. "I'm thinking more like $50."

Today

Mike

Wendy added, "And our prizes are fabulous. You can win that mouse for 5 cents. I think that's worth it."

So when a neighborhood gathers today, the nickels will become dollars. And the dollars will become more dollars.

And that will be the greatest reward possible for Wendy Copeland who wrote on the back of an envelope: "I want to help people live."

WENDY COPELAND comforts a stuffed dog and her older sister, Heather, does the same for an oversized mouse. Dog and mouse will be raffled today at the girls' Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy.

Veteran tussler Dole adds steel to ticket

Kansas city, mo. (UPI) — When the Republicans need a tough political fighter who can take it as well as dish it out, they call on Bob Dole.

A tough campaigner is just what President Ford needs, facing an uphill fight against Democrat Jimmy Carter, and again Dole was called in to help, this time as Ford's running mate.

With a tight smile, the Kansas senator can deliver a caustic argument on the Senate floor or a biting joke to a crowd back home. The joke often is aimed at himself.

With the experience of two years as GOP national chairman, Dole, 53, was perhaps the natural choice for temporary chairman for the 1976 Republican National Convention at Kansas City, bordering his home state, and those same qualities undoubtedly were a factor in President Ford's selection of a running mate.

Well known in Washington, and with strong agricultural ties, Dole had been mentioned before as one who could shore up weak spots in the campaign against Carter.

BEFORE THE selection, Dole said he thought his chances were remote, but asked if he would accept, he said, "I think anybody would want to be vice president."

Dole also has avoided enemies among the defeated supporters of Ronald Reagan. Despite the fact he was a Ford delegate to the convention, the conservative senator refrained from attacking Reagan.

Even when he spoke in Ford's behalf at the Kansas state Republican convention — following an appearance by Reagan — Dole's tone was conciliatory. He said both were fine men he could support and that the party must unite behind whatever candidate is selected.

One of his stronger statements about Reagan on that occasion indicated the former California governor was criticizing Ford for problems born of a Democrat-controlled Congress.

"I THINK he (Reagan) is making a mistake in who runs that show," Dole told the Kansans.

The senator was warned by several people — including his wife, Federal Trade Commr. Elizabeth Hanford Dole — to stay away from the state-convention. Kansas Republicans said if he got embroiled in the national party fight it could bring him as much trouble at home as his earlier involvement in the national GOP.

Dole's close identification with Richard Nixon and the fact he headed the national party at the time of the Watergate break-in are considered major reasons Dole nearly lost his Senate seat in 1974.

As one Capitol Hill observer quipped, "If you like Dick Nixon, you'll love Bob Dole."

Dole defeated former Rep. William Roy, D-Kan., by 13,532 votes of 791,437 votes cast in 1974.

BUT IN SPITE of the warnings, Dole got involved this year.

"Well, I think most of you voted for me for Congress because I didn't stay away from a good contest," he told the Kansas state convention.

Dole was born July 22, 1923 at Russell, Kan., where he still has a home. He received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Arizona and law degrees from Washburn University in Topeka.

He served 5½ years in the Army in World War II, including a stint as an infantry platoon leader in the 10th Mountain Division in Italy. He twice was wounded and twice decorated for heroism.

He was hospitalized 39 months as a result of wounds that left him with a crippled right arm and hand. During his hospitalization he met his first wife, Phyllis, whom he divorced in 1972.

Dole began his political career at 26, with election to the Kansas House of Representatives in 1951. He served four terms as Russell County attorney, 1953-1961.

In 1960 he was elected to the house and reelected every two years until he won a Senate seat in November 1968, succeeding retiring Republican Frank Carlson.

Robert who, from where?

Voters 'Dole' out views on Ford's running mate

by JOHN FRANK

"You want my reaction? It's who is he?" That was Francis Boyd's reaction to President Ford's selection of Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas as his running mate.

In random, on-the-street interviews, some Northwest suburban residents expressed surprise that Ford didn't pick a more well-known figure, such as Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee or Ronald Reagan. Others approved of the choice.

"It suits me fine," said F. C. Gray, an Arlington Heights resident who said he's been a Republican all of his 82 years.

"IT LOOKS LIKE the Democrats need someone to slam-bang them, to call them names," Gray said. He views Dole as the man for that job.

Gray was backing Reagan's try for the presidential nomination, but said that it really "doesn't make much difference" whether Reagan or Ford runs because "Carter hasn't anything to offer."

Another former Reagan supporter, Lilian Lidgen, 1605 N. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, said Ford's selection of Dole hasn't helped her decide if she can support Ford in November.

"I was really hoping Reagan would have gotten the nomination (for President)," Mrs. Lidgen said.

MARY LUNDGREN, 245 Clearmont Dr., Elk Grove Village, said she had hoped Reagan would have been chosen. "I sympathize with him," said the woman who described herself as an independent Democrat. "I wish everyone could have been a winner. But I'm going to vote for Carter."

Jane Adelman, 303 E. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights, said she didn't think Baker would be picked. "I really thought that Baker was thinking ahead to 1980," said Mrs. Adelman, who plans to vote for Jimmy Carter.

Mrs. Adelman said she also knew Ford would not select Texan John Connally. "That would have been a death wish," because of Connally's Watergate connections, Mrs. Adelman said.

"I'm sorry, I don't even know who Robert Dole is," said Mrs. Fred Hammond, 3601 Oriole, Rolling Meadows. Mrs. Hammond said she hadn't been following the Republican convention and had not expected Dole to be selected.

"I didn't know Robert Dole before Tuesday night," said Richard W. Hall, 2420 Brandenberry Ct., Arlington Heights. "I can only assume that President Ford chose someone similar to himself."

HALL, WHO WILL be voting for the first time this year, said he liked Ford and may vote for him in November because he believes "the country is not ready for a change of government."

Hall said that Dole's anonymity on the national scene did not bother him. "Nobody knew President Ford at the time he was picked as vice president, maybe it will be the same way with Sen. Dole," Hall said.

A Democrat, Leonard McCracken of Arlington Heights, said Dole is "a lackluster name" but that regardless of who Ford selected "I don't think it'll be much of a go" in November.

McCracken, who lives at 1229 S. Walnut St., said he thought Ford would select a more well-known personality to share the Republican ticket.

State delegates surprised by Dole but will back 'the great campaigner'

Illinois and Northwest suburban delegates to the Republican National Convention reacted with surprise to the nomination of Sen. Robert Dole as the party's vice presidential nominee, and were generally uncertain of the impact of the Kansan on the ticket.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, head of the Illinois delegation, said, "It's going to be a little tough," to attract independents to the Ford-Dole ticket.

"It's an interesting selection," Ogilvie said. "I was surprised."

Sen. Charles Percy said Dole is "uniquely qualified to help bring the party together," but Percy said he was surprised that, considering the anti-Washington mood of the nation, neither Ford nor Carter went outside the Capitol for a running mate.

REP. JOHN B. ANDERSON said Dole has been "a dear and personal friend for years."

"I'm sure he will be a very good candidate," Anderson said. "My own thought had been that it would be a good idea to try to build the party by broadening the base. But I'm certainly prepared to support the nominees."

"He has a great sense of humor, and he is certainly a strong campaigner," said Glenna D. Jicha of Palatine. She said she met Dole about six years ago when he was official of the Republican National Committee and was impressed with his campaign style.

"I don't know anything negative about him. He should be a strong candidate, especially in the Downstate areas," noted Irl H. Marshall of Highland Park.

WILLIAM J. HEFFERNAN of Arlington Heights said he "personally liked Dole." Heffernan said he was not sure what Dole would do for the party initially, but he was sure that Dole would become an asset later in the campaign.

WHILE MOST local delegates said Ford had made a wise selection in Dole, State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, besides praising the choice said Dole could help the GOP gain the support of Reagan backers from the western part of Illinois because of the senator's strong record on agricultural programs.

Harold B. Smith Jr., of Barrington, said Dole will "help the campaign." Smith said Dole got an enthusiastic reception from both Ford and Reagan fund-raisers at a meeting of the national Republican Finance Committee Thursday afternoon.

Two Illinoisans were honored by being escorts for Dole and Ford as they went to the podium to give their acceptance speeches. U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, an ardent Reagan supporter, escorted Dole, while U.S. Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, a sometimes sharp critic of administration policies, accompanied the President.

Ford's cheerleaders

Students get a chance to do some rallying for the President, while finding a few moments to do some celebrity watching, too

KANSAS CITY — For Chuck Musfeldt Jr. of Arlington Heights and Betty Lytle of Arlington Heights, the past week has been an opportunity to observe more political luminaries than for most delegates at the Republican National Convention.

The two area college students are participating in the Presidential Programs sponsored by the President Ford Committee.

"Our job is cheerleading," said Musfeldt, a 21-year-old pre-med student at Jacksonville University in Florida. The young people have been divided into teams and squads and sent around this convention city to welcome Ford and other members of the first family as they appear before various state delegations and at other activities related to the GOP gathering.

NEITHER LYTLE nor Musfeldt were political activists before the primary election campaign. However, they both got involved in the Ford effort outside of Illinois. Lytle, 19, is a student at Mt. Mary College in Milwaukee. Musfeldt worked for Ford in the Florida primary.

Despite the fact that Musfeldt has been staying at Benedictine College in Atchison, Kan., a two-hour bus ride from the convention center, he said the week has been worth the time.

"This has been the most fantastic week. It is like the zoo theory in action. There is one of every kind here. You have the gays and the hippies and the peons. Everyone from the President to Walter Cronkite is here and accessible.

But it's the food Lytle and Musfeldt complained about.

"It really stinks. I paid $130 for the trip, and I think $125 went for gas for the buses, $4 for the room and $1 for food," Musfeldt said. He added that he has devoted much attention to trying to get away from the Presidential's command post at the Trade Mart in the Municipal auditorium in search of a decent meal.

BUT THE STUDENTS' schedule has been much more than looking for places to eat. The entire first family has visited the group, and other government officials including Vice President Nelson Rockefeller have stopped by for question-and-answer sessions.

"We have been terribly busy," said Lytle, a graduate of Arlington High School. "A lot of things get announced at the last minute, and we have to be on our toes," she added.

Even though the Presidentials have the self-described role as cheerleaders for the Ford campaign, the students believe their efforts are genuine.

"The appearances are organized and well orchestrated, but the people are sincere and really enthusiastic," she added.

Another member of the group, Carl Trehus of Barrington, noted that "all of us paid our own way out here so I am sure the reaction is really spontaneous and enthusiastic."

Musfeldt described the scene at the nightly convention activities as "kind of like a barroom brawl atmosphere."

"IF THEY (THE supporters of Ronald Reagan) start a chant or something, we are supposed to start a cheer back and drown them out," he said.

All of the students involved in the program sounded convincing in their support for the Ford campaign. Lytle said she got involved in the Ford effort almost accidentally when a friend needed to work on a political campaign as part of a college class.

Lytel said she chose the Ford campaign in Milwaukee for the friend's project because it seemed to have the most activity at the time. However, the friend decided not to get involved in the campaign, and Lytle got interested and worked for the President through the Wisconsin primary.

Lytel said she plans to go home next week and babysit before heading back to school. Musfeldt added that he wants to get some sleep, something that was in short order along with the food, and then head back to school.

"I have never seen a President up this close before, and I have seen him three times this week. You can get a little blasé about it, but I figured that I would never have the time to do this again, and it's been super," Musfeldt said.

Veteran delegate returns to scene of -- his marriage

KANSAS CITY — For many delegates, this Republican National Convention was a new experience in a new town.

But for Irl H. Marshall, of Highland Park, the 31st Republican National Convention and Kansas City was nothing new.

"I was married here in 1925 and I attended the last Republican Convention here, as a guest mind you, in 1928," said Marshall, who has been one of the most colorful delegates from Illinois at this convention.

THROUGH MOST of the GOP gathering, and at the state delegation caucuses, Marshall has sported a bright orange blazer, which was the "Illinois uniform" at another convention several years ago.

Marshall has served as a delegate to three national conventions from the 12th Congressional District and said he has attended several others as a spectator.

Kansas City has become a much different town from when Marshall last attended a convention here.

"It has changed a lot," Marshall said. But he added that the obvious signs of redevelopment make the changes appear for the better.

Marshall created a bit of a flurry earlier in the week with an announcement that he planned to push for a delegation resolution calling for Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld, a former congressman who represented the area, to be President Gerald R. Ford's choice for the vice presidential nomination.

HE WOULD HAVE been great for the ticket," Marshall declared, but his effort never really got off the ground because party leaders persuaded him that the resolution probably would not pass.

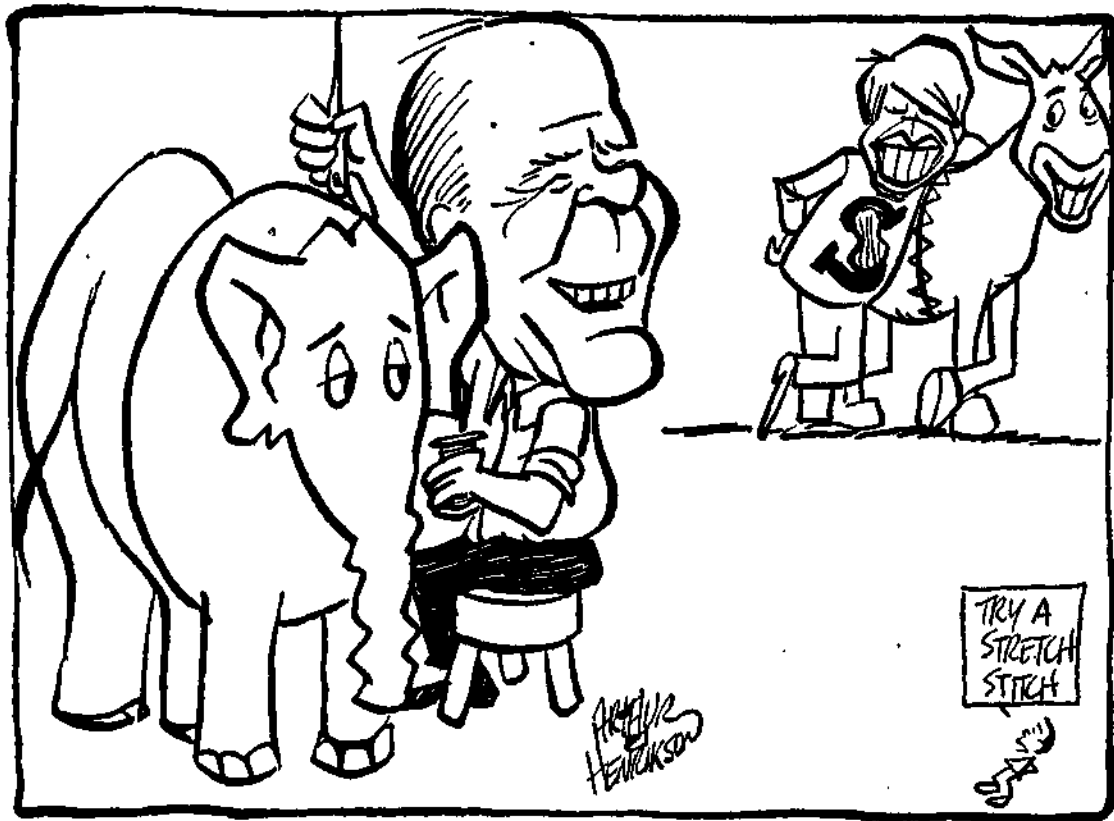

Besides his activities in the Republican Party, Marshall also serves as a chairman of the board of Duraclean Co. in Deerfield.

The Republican activist, who enjoys his reputation for his long-time political work, spent a good portion of this week greeting friends from other states. Marshall, like a number of other GOP partisans, is still a supporter of former President Richard Nixon, but he is quick to admit that Nixon could do no real good for the party by attempting to play a role in this election year.

Marshall will make no predictions this week, but the man who is well past his 70th birthday refuses to rule out that he will not be at the 1980 Republican Convention with the same spirit and enthusiasm he brought with him to this gathering this week.

Revive national debates

The Kennedy-Nixon debates during the presidential campaign of 1960 proved that public election forums provide valuable information to the electorate — and unfortunately discouraged other candidates from risking the same kind of exposure.

This year should be the time to revive the presidential debate as a way of informing the voters of the issues and the candidates. For that reason a national petition drive by the League of Women Voters deserves support.

The league is launching the petition drive with the intention of collecting more than two million signatures by mid-September calling for debates between Pres. Gerald Ford and Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

Petitions will be passed by members of Northwest suburban leagues, including those in Palatine and Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect.

The petition drive deserves to succeed, not only in collecting two million signatures, but in persuading Carter and Ford of the grass-roots support for presidential debates.

The debates would be invaluable to the voters in several ways. They would clarify stands on issues and point out the key differences between the two candidates.

In addition the debates would provide the kind of exposure of the two candidates that will allow voters to measure the style of the two men side by side.

In recent years, the American electorate has too often been subjected to slick, media-oriented "selling of the president" type campaigns. These campaigns have pointed out only too well that candidates can be insulated from the public.

Face-to-face debates, while they would not prevent slick image-making, at least present the presidential candidates with partially uncontrolled situations in which they will be called upon to respond.

Since the 1960 debates, candidates, particularly candidates who were leading in the polls, have scrupulously avoided debates because of their uncontrollability.

This election year, voters of America deserve a close look at the candidates. To provide that insight it is not too much to ask the candidates to face each other in a public forum.

Rogers good man; way picked bad

Wheeling trustees made a sound decision when they elected William Rogers to fill the board vacancy left by the resignation July 30 of Gilbert Monoson.

Rogers, who ran unsuccessfully for the board in 1975, is a long-time village resident, a member of the Wheeling Environmental Advisory Commission and a man who has demonstrated his community interest and involvement on numerous occasions.

Although we believe Rogers will make a good trustee and act in the best interest of the village, we must object to the manner in which he was selected. Trustees discussed the Rogers appointment privately and announced the appointment at Monday's village board meeting.

We believe Wheeling officials should have conducted public hearings on the vacancy and given other village residents the opportunity to apply for the job, or at least comment on those under consideration. Such was not the case.

The village board is faced with the sensitive and difficult task of restoring confidence in village government. Monoson, the man whom Rogers replaces, is under indictment for bribery and official misconduct. Monoson himself was elected to the board following a major zoning scandal which rocked village hall in 1974. Now even Monoson, one of the reformers, is under a cloud.

Because of the past actions of a few, the entire Village of Wheeling is unfairly burdened with the stigma of corruption and back-room politics. It is much too easy for residents of this and other villages to say "they're all crooked" and to assume that corruption is the rule rather than the exception.

One way to help remove this stigma is to take extra pains to be open and consult the public at every opportunity.

Wheeling trustees said they did not conduct hearings or consult the public because they believed Rogers was the best man and would have been selected anyway. This may be true. But public participation in this important decision would have served the best interest of the village and would have been a step toward restoring public confidence.

Fire officials play turnabout and thank people for support

We often read letters in The Herald from people wishing to publicly thank the paramedics.

This time, however, we the paramedics and firemen of The Buffalo Grove Firemen's Association would like to thank the people of Buffalo Grove and the people of the Wheeling Fire Protection District who enthusiastically supported the ambulance tax referendum last month.

In addition, we would like to thank all the organizations and individuals who worked to get information about the referendum to the people.

The organizations included: The Buffalo Grove Amvets; Lions Club; Nurses Club and the Jaycees as well as individual assistance from Sherry Horan, Mel Kandel, Diane Mattson, Mike McDonald, Diane Spanier and Barb Urban.

We thank you all for your vote of confidence and support and assure you that we will continue to supply the best service possible.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Department and "...the most dangerous gas railroads carry," are at best grossly misleading or completely erroneous.

Like most flammable substances, the gas, if confined, could explode if ignited, but the liquid possesses no explosion hazard. Also, the temperature of the gas certainly does not reach 1000 degrees upon contact with air. If ignited, however, the flame temperature might get that hot under certain conditions. Like most reactive chemicals, ethylene oxide can cause irritation to the mucous membranes or skin when exposure reaches a high enough concentration, however, it is substantially less toxic than many other bulk chemicals transported by rail such as chlorine and phosgene.

I have been increasingly concerned with the trend in the media toward sensationalizing the hazards of chemicals. Most chemicals are quite safe when handled properly and pose little or no risk to the public. The enormous benefits mankind reaps from chemistry far outweighs any possible dangers the use of chemicals may offer. I think that you could do the public a service by carrying articles which describe the advantages chemicals bring society rather than concentrating on sensational stories about accidents involving chemicals.

Chemist clarifies stories

I read with some interest the article that appeared Aug. 2 concerning the derailment of a 10-car Baltimore & Ohio R.R. freight at Blanchester, Ohio. Two tank cars containing ethylene oxide were involved in the accident. I object to the statements made in this article concerning the alleged toxicity and explosion hazard of ethylene oxide. As a research chemist, I have used this chemical a number of times and can testify to the fact that the substance is not nearly as dangerous as the article would suggest.

Statements were made in the story to the effect that "... if the fumes so much as touch you, they would burn you before you could get your clothes off." "... the chemical's temperature rises to about 1,000 degrees when it comes into contact with air,"

Worthy of note

My son, Jim, my daughter, Camille, and I wish to extend our gratitude and thanks to the paramedics, especially Johnson, Moran and Lee Plate of the Palatine Fire Dept. who responded to an emergency on Aug. 5 in my behalf.

Their adeptness and understanding of the situation will never be forgotten.

I also wish to thank Rich Rehner, of the Elk Grove Fire Dept., a friend of the family who placed the call to the Palatine squad.

God bless them all.

Taking the initiative

A favorable rule on honesty amendments may mean a progressive step forward

by WANDALYN RICE

A News Analysis

In California last June, the voters decided not to impose strict safety standards on future construction of nuclear powerplants when they voted down Proposition 15.

This fall, California voters will have the opportunity to force their legislature to provide more funding for the board set up to deal with labor disputes involving farm workers.

Both measures are the result of California's system, which allows initiative petitions from citizens for both Constitutional amendments and legislative issues. To some, the system is the hallmark of democracy. To others, it is democracy unleashed to the point of anarchy.

Those two opposing views of the initiative petition will be the focus next week when the Illinois Supreme Court hears arguments on whether the three proposed "political honesty amendments" will be in the Illinois ballot in November.

There is perhaps only one thing on which the opponents in the case agree — if the Supreme Court rules in favor of the honesty amendments, Illinois will have taken a long step toward adopting the California system of initiative petition.

The system used in California, which allows both Constitutional and Legislative initiatives, also operates in other states, most of them in the west. It is a result of the progressive reform movements that swept the country at the turn of the century under the leadership of Wisconsin's Robert LaFollette and others.

The results of the system are wide-ranging. In Oregon, because voters can call a referendum to reverse any action of the legislature, all attempts to impose a state sales tax have been defeated. In Colorado, voters by referendum banned the 1976 Winter Olympics.

In California, where the initiative petition has evolved into an art, strict laws were passed governing campaign financing, registration of lobbyists and conflict of interest.

To leaders of the Illinois Coalition for Political Honesty, supporters of the political honesty amendments, the unlimited initiative is a positive way to force responsive government. Unlimited initiatives "would be the best thing that could happen in Illinois," Thomas Quinn of the coalition says. "Chaos does not descend on a state because the people are allowed to vote on issues."

Samuel Witwer Sr., president of the Constitutional Convention that drafted

Wandalyn
Rice

the 1970 Illinois Constitution, takes the opposite view. The convention, he says, rejected the idea of an unlimited initiative "because of the difficulties it has caused in other states."

An unlimited initiative, Witwer says, "would make a shambles of the Illinois Constitution" and as a result "it wouldn't be long before we'd be in worse shape than California."

Coalition officials dismiss Witwer's arguments as the efforts of what they call "an entrenched political power structure" to keep power out of the voters' hands. Patrick Quinn, secretary of the coalition says, "I expected Witwer to say in court that it would be an end to Western civilization if we succeeded."

Coalition officials also are blunt about the fact that if they succeed in getting the honesty amendments on the ballot, they have other plans. Since the Constitution clearly limits citizen petitions to Constitutional amendments, Patrick Quinn says the group may support a Constitutional amendment to provide for legislative initiative in Illinois. Legislative initiatives grant law-making power directly to voters through referendum.

"That (the legislative initiative) is something that would be enormously popular," Patrick Quinn says. "It would probably have a high priority with us."

Coalition officials see the initiative petition as a device that will become increasingly popular in this state. If they should lose their case on the honesty initiatives, Patrick Quinn says the group may resort to the seldom-used provision of Illinois law that allows advisory referenda to apply political pressure to force the legislature to broaden initiative power.

"Politicians in Illinois who start coming out against initiative petitions could be in a very hot spot whatever their party," he says. "The initiative is a firecracker that can be used to get things moving where they haven't before."

Don't become a victim

How to avoid the debt collector

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Roselsky

Nobody loves the debt collector. To him falls the never-pleasant, often stomach-wrenching task of convincing people to fulfill broken promises. His view of the human race as he confronts it in his day-to-day work must be rather fearsome. His job begins after "please" has lost all effect. His starting point is stern and can run on through brow-beating all the way to nasty.

For every tale you can tell of debt collector brutality, he can probably tell one or two of debtor infidelity. Many of his tactics have long been accused of being less than wholesome and more than necessary to get the job done. The collector is a man doing his appointed job, which he might not like any more than the collector. But there's no excuse for unfair collecting practices. If you think that you may have been a victim of such, the Federal Trade Commission would want to know of it. They can help eliminate such practices, but only if they know when and where they exist.

Some of the unfair collecting practices are as follows:

- Using collection notices that contain false or misleading representations, such as notices that falsely appear to be legal process papers.

- Notifying a debtor's employer of a past-due account, or requesting the employer to help collect the debt, thus bringing undue pressure on the debtor.

- Harassing the debtor through profane or obscene language, or by placing telephone calls continuously or at unusual times.

- Threatening to damage the debtor's credit status by referring his name to a bona fide credit reporting agency, when no such action was actually taken or contemplated.

- Using violence or threats of violence to collect debts.

- Threatening to seize items which, by law, are exempt from legal collection process.

- Using fraudulent service of court summons to obtain default judgments without notice.

Notify the Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D. C., if you know of any such practices.

Meanwhile, to avoid having to confront a debt collector, try to confine your credit dealings to local credit grantors (merchants, lenders and so forth) who have a known reputation for fair and honest dealings in all matters. Out-of-town credit grantors can be difficult to communicate with. And merchants who ballyhoo how easy their credit is can be the hardest to deal with when it comes to delinquency.

At the first inkling that you might fall behind in any payments, communicate in the flesh with the creditor. If you seek his cooperation early, and if you perform in accordance with whatever accommodations he may offer, you'll avoid his later wrath, and that of the collector's. I repeat: in the flesh; not by phone or letter. There's simply no substitute for a person-to-person meeting to keep the air clear, cooperative and honest.

Dow dives 11 points on Dole choice

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market Thursday suffered its worst loss in nearly three months as Wall Street showed disappointment with President Ford's choice of Sen. Robert Dole as his running mate and concern over tensions in Korea.

The selling resulted in the Dow Jones industrial average plunging 11.13 points to 983.88, the worst loss since it fell 19.22 points on May 24. The Dow lost 4.33 points Wednesday after pushing through the 1,000 level at the outset of that session. It has failed on numerous occasions this year to hold above the high level.

"Wall Street was very disappointed over Dole's selection," said Newton Zinder, vice president of E. F. Hutton. "They also were disturbed by the situation in Korea." Allied and North Korean troops were placed on alert following Wednesday's slaying of two American officers in the Panmunjom truce village.

Thursday's setback was widespread. The NYSE common stock index fell 0.63 to 55.22 and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 38 cents. (Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, lost 1.17 to 103.39.)

Declining issues routed advances. 1,179 to 297, among the 1,832 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 17,230,000 shares, up slightly from the 17,150,000 traded Wednesday.

American Airlines led the Big Board active list, losing 5/8 to 13-7/8 on 193,000 shares, including a block of 143,000 shares at 14. The rest of the airlines group was weak with UAL Inc. losing 1 to 25 1/4, Delta 1 to 37 1/2 and Northwest 1 to 30 1/4.

General Telephone & Electronics was the second most active issue, off 1/8 to 28 3/4 on 190,000 shares. Richmond Corp., the third most active Big Board issue, lost 7/8 to 20-1/8 on 152,200 shares.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by 12 cents. Volume totaled 2,134,000 shares, compared with 1,694,000 traded Wednesday.

Bankers Trust has 'money problems'

The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday Bankers Trust New York Corp., the nation's seventh largest banking organization, "has been experiencing financial difficulties." Bankers Trust controls nine banks in New York State. The banks hold $10.4 billion in assets and account for one of every $12 of assets in New York State's commercial banking system, the board said. The board expressed the view in denying the holding company's application to take control of the First National Bank of Mexico, a small institution in suburban Syracuse, N.Y. A spokesman for Bankers Trust New York Corp. denied the financial holding company was experiencing financial difficulties.

Thomson buys Mt. Vernon paper

Thomson Newspapers Inc. of Des Plaines has bought the Mount Vernon Register-News Co. The announcement was made by St. Clair McCabe, executive vice president of Thomson Inc., and by John E. Rackaway, president of the Register-News Co. and editor of the newspaper, and by his brother, William C. Rackaway, secretary-treasurer of the company and business manager of the newspaper. The Thomson organization owns several other newspapers in the United States and Canada. Robert K. Thomson, vice president of the Register-News Co. and advertising manager of the newspaper, will be appointed general manager under the new ownership, McCabe said.

Corporate profits slow to 2.9%

Corporate profits before taxes slowed to an increase of 2.9 per cent in the second quarter, the Commerce Department said Thursday. The slowdown from the 7.5 per cent rise in the first quarter was further confirmation that the nation's economic recovery relaxed last spring. Corporate profits rose $4.2 billion to an annual adjusted rate of $145.3 billion, Commerce said. This compared with a $9.8 billion rise in the first quarter. In another report, Commerce confirmed its preliminary estimate of July that the nation's economic growth slowed in the spring quarter. Commerce estimated the gross national product (GNP) at $1,259 billion, a modest downward revision from the preliminary of $1,260 billion.

Telemed earnings up 30% a share

Telemed Corp., Hoffman Estates, announced a 30 per cent increase in earnings per share for the first quarter ended June 30 compared to year-earlier earnings. Gerald Kien, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said earnings per share in the first quarter amounted to 13 cents compared to 10 cents for the previous period. Net quarterly income rose to $355,223 compared to $289,214 a year earlier, and revenues increased to $2,125,559 from the previous $1,909,825. Telemed provides computer-assisted electrocardiography services and related equipment to medical facilities in the United States and Canada.

Boost in buyer optimism noted

Consumer optimism is increasing in North and Northwest suburban families, reports the Continental Bank. The Chicago bank's quarterly Family Financial Survey shows 38 per cent of the north suburban residents surveyed believe their finances are "better" compared to approximately 25 per cent in the previous survey. The survey included 750 families in the Chicago metropolitan area. Although north suburban residents gained optimism about the economy, the overall Consumer Sentiment Index dipped to 103 points from the previous 113 mark. "Consumers maybe suspicious and perhaps even worried about the economy's recovery and expansion during the coming year," said Janice Ventura, Continental's money management specialist and coordinator of the survey.

Government needs auditing: CPA

Large and small government units must establish a system for obtaining adequate financial information, said Clark Hollingsworth, chairman of the governmental accounting committee of the Illinois CPA (Certified Public Accounts) Society. "New York's financial situation as it now appears may not be the exception but the rule," Hollingsworth said. "Surveys have shown that only about 60 per cent of large cities are even audited. In this respect, Illinois is far ahead of most states by requiring that many local governmental units be audited annually."

Oil magnates invest in Middle East

by LE ROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Arabs and Iranians, who it was feared might gobble up major western industries with their oil riches, instead seem to be putting most of their money to work at home.

They have invested substantial sums in the West but the total is a drop in the bucket compared to the $40-$60 billion they have poured into their own countries to industrialize and raise a standard of living depressed for centuries.

They also have bought armaments both from the Soviet Union and some western nations because of their continuing bitter distrust of Israel and rivalries among themselves.

But the published armament purchases of 17 Arab countries and Iran (which is an oil-rich Moslem country whose people are not Arabs) amount to only 12 per cent of known investments in their economy in the past two years and fall far behind some $16.25 billion invested in industry and $7.9 billion invested in transportation.

THESE FIGURES, compiled by various statistical sources and published in Aramco World, a magazine put out by Arabian American Oil Co., cover only the period from December 1973 to January 1975. They total $38 billion and the editors of the magazine say that for the two and a half years up to June 1976, the total could be $62 billion.

Surprisingly, the study showed France, the colonial ruler ousted since World War II by so many of the Arab states, still enjoys cordial trade relations with the Moslem world and landed the biggest share of the 1974 contracts — $10.12 billion. The United States got $6.07 billion and West Germany, Italy, Japan and Britain each $2 billion to $4 billion. The Soviet bloc got less than $2 billion.

The study also pinpointed the rapid growth of the Arab steelmaking industry. Damascus steel was famous at the time of the Crusades but there was no steel industry worth mentioning in the Arab world five years ago.

Now all but four of these Moslem countries produce steel in new mills that convert iron ore directly into sponge iron for electrical steel furnaces, bypassing the costly and air-polluting blast furnace. It is thought possible the new Arab iron mills may become suppliers of sponge iron to Japanese and European steel mills. An abundance of natural gas for the fuel is the big advantage of the Arab steel mills.

ANOTHER SURPRISE in the report is the rapid progress of Algeria whose industrial production grew 30 per cent in 1973 and probably even better than that in the past two years. Algeria, largely agricultural under French rule, has let contracts in the past two years for a wide variety of industrial projects.

Naturally, the petrochemical industry is of prime importance to the Arabs and Iranians because they want to integrate their oil industry and extract as much benefit from it as possible. Yet, of the huge 1974 in-announcing...

During shooting, the cast of "HAWMPS" posed with their camels for a formal portrait.

Brief history of Camel Corps

Unlikely as it may seem now, America very nearly became a nation explored and settled on camelback.

Before the American Southwest could be settled, or even crossed safely, protection from the Indians was necessary. Charged with this task, the Army sprinkled a line of dedicated but feeble forts across the routes which would bring pioneers to the new territory. Their only mode of transportation, however, was the horse, mule or ox, and these quickly proved to be totally inadequate for traveling between the outposts with sufficient supplies to maintain them.

In 1853 Jefferson Davis became Secretary of War under President Franklin Pierce and, based on his knowledge of transportation in the deserts of the Near East, he began immediately to lobby for the importation of camels to do the job. It took two years of patience and politicking to convince Congress to give the camels a try. It finally voted to spend $30,000 to purchase a herd of camels.

THE PRESIDENT approved the bill on March 3, 1855, and Secretary Davis sent Army Maj. Wayne and Navy Lt. Porter to Arabia to obtain the best camels they could find.

By Feb. 11, 1856, the Navy ship "Supply" left for the U.S. carrying its strange, "hawmped" cargo. Three months later it docked at Indianola, Tex., to general relief, especially by the camels who were overjoyed to be on dry land again.

The camels proved a blessing for the Army once the men learned to handle them. It was not uncommon to have ordinary camels carry a 550-pound load (more than twice the limit of pack mules). The larger animals could be fitted with 700 to 800 pounds and, upon occasion for short trips, upwards of 1,000 pounds. And, they could travel 40 to 50 miles a day consistently.

The ultimate test of the camels' usefulness and the deciding factor in the Army's decision to establish them as regulation mounts was the Wagon Road Survey of 1857, held in the form of an endurance run.

ITS SUCCESS convinced the Secretary of War to order the purchase of an additional 1,000 camels, an order that was in the process when the Civil War broke out and cut off the funding that had been reserved for the Camel Corps.

By the time the war was over, the railroad was beginning to do what the camels had been intended to do, and the army-issue camels became obsolete overnight.

JAMES HAMPTON plays Clemmons, the green, desk-bound young lieutenant from Washington who is saddled with the job of "camelizing" an entire cavalry unit of rugged but reluctant horse soldiers.

FRANK INN nuzzles animal starlet Valentine, but he warns the baby camel that minors are not allowed in saloons. The scene is from "HAWMPS."

Herd of camels share the glory in 'HAWMPS'

by VERNON SCOTT

Producer Joe Camp hit the jackpot last year with a scruffy little dog in a picture titled "Benji." The film earned $30 million on an investment of a measly $350,000.

Camp, whose Mulberry Square Productions makes its headquarters in Dallas, has invested $2 million in his second movie, "HAWMPS."

It is one thing to finagle the movie-going public into falling in love with a winsome dog and quite another to kindle affection for 16 ugly "ships of the desert."

CAMP HIMSELF fell prey to Benji's adorable ways. But the charms of the camels were lost on him during production of "HAWMPS."

Neither did the dromedaries (one-humped beauties) display any deep seated feeling for the producer. The only sign of camel affection for human beings was provided by Tsetse, the lone Bactrian camel (a two-humper) in the herd.

Tsetse is about twice as big as the 15 dromedaries and doubtless has a heart to match. But her displays of ardor were met with rebuffs from actors and crew alike.

Her passion was manifested by rapturous groans, accompanied by nuzzling her massive head against unsuspecting members of the company.

"Camels are independent loners," said Camp, somewhat defensively. "They didn't respond to affection. But they certainly weren't hostile as we'd heard they might be. Not one actor was bitten, kicked or spat on. The only two times our wranglers were thrown were when they were riding horses."

One of the ungainly beasts achieved a measure of notoriety by helping capture a fleeing shoplifter in a shopping center near a location site in Tucson, Ariz.

SHE WAS TANYA, one of the featured camels in the pack. Just how one determines a featured camel from an extra or bit-part camel defies analysis. Certainly it couldn't be on the basis of beauty.

At any rate, as Camp tells it, there was an uproar in front of one of the stores as the movie company took a break between scenes. While the film crew looked on a man broke from the door and ran for daylight.

The shop-lifter fled on foot across the desert. He hotfooted it away from his pursuers and appeared to be making a clean getaway. A wrangler aboard Tanya gave chase in what could have passed for a scene from a Laurel and Hardy epic.

The miscreant, sure he was making good his escape, heard the pounding hooves of pursuit. He turned and in horrified disbelief stopped dead in his tracks. Bearing down on him was the spavined legged Tanya, galloping along in her splay-footed gait. The wrangler was hanging on for dear life.

Quickly, the felon snatched up an enormous rock, hoping to unhorse (or uncamel) his pursuer. It was a touchy moment for Tanya's passenger. But Tanya, through some combination of myopia, stupidity and latent misanthropy, continued to bear down on the ripoff artist.

At the last moment the man threw down the rock and flung his arms upward in the traditional pose of surrender, possibly the first man in American history to be run to ground by a vengeful dromedary.

AS THE COPS led him away the disconsolate thief was heard to say, "The boys in the slammer will never believe this."

Unhappily, the episode was not captured on film. It could have been the highlight of "Hawmps."

Cashing in on the flu frenzy

by KURT BAER
(A book review)

If there is anything more contagious than the flu, it surely must be the uncontrollable lust to make a buck.

A classic case confronts us in a new book by Dr. Pascal James Imperato called "What to Do About the Flu," a $7.95 potboiler published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

Influenza has been much in the news recently because of plans being made for a nationwide swine flu inoculation program and the mysterious "Legionnaires' disease" that has killed 26 persons in Philadelphia.

READING DR. Imperato's 125-page book, it is hard to believe that he and his publisher are not seeking to cash on the country's current flu frenzy.

The doctor's inside, authoritative tips on how to avoid and survive the flu amount to a collection of well-known home remedies, common sense and the advice that, if you are really sick, you should see your doctor.

Neither chicken soup, mustard plasters nor over-the-counter cold remedies will really cure the flu. The flu virus is too small to be screened by a face mask and so contagious that it is spread on tiny air-borne droplets. Fever, chills, cough, body aches and weakness are the most common early symptoms.

The disease's real danger lies in potential complications, most commonly pneumonia. And flu is especially dangerous among persons over age 65 and among the chronically ill, he tells us.

A CHAPTER IN the book on the anti-flu diet could have been lifted from almost any junior high school textbook. Do we really need Dr. Imperato to tell us that well-nourished people are less likely to get sick than the malnourished?

The book's chapter on swine flu is a handy-enough recap of the developments that have led us to plans for mass inoculations this fall. But it adds little if anything new about the disease.

Chapters on avoiding and surviving the flu include questions and answers that in some instances are almost too absurd to believe:

Q. If someone on an elevator is coughing a great deal, will I prevent flu by holding my breath or by getting off at the next floor?

A. If that person has the flu, you will reduce your chances of contracting it by getting off at the next floor. Holding your breath might be helpful for a few seconds, but prolonged breath holding is neither a safe nor efficient method of protecting yourself from the virus.

In another section, Dr. Imperato tells us not to worry about getting the flu from a toilet seat, or from eating peanuts from a bowl at a bar!

There is some useful medical information in "What to Do About the Flu." The explanation of how the flu virus manages to change

Alice Cooper's concept of hell put into album

Alice Cooper's idea of hell is a dis-cotheque with a disc jockey devil and a personal punishment of having to dance forever.

Cooper, it would seem, hates to dance although he likes to tear around on stage a lot doing very weird things. Those weird things are what let Cooper to his new album, "Alice Cooper Goes To Hell" (Warner Bros.).

As Cooper sings in the opening, "Go To Hell," he has been condemned "for criminal acts and violence on the stage" and other, more personal vices.

The album is another inventive triumph for the perpetual showman even if the singing does not always go down easy. Cooper's lyrics are better than usual throughout and guitarist Dick Wagner's music is serviceable. Bob Ezrin's production touch is in evidence everywhere.

THE RESULT is a likeable pastiche of rock, disco beats, self-parody, vaudeville, autobiography and ballads — similar in both concept and execution to last year's "Welcome To My Nightmare" concept album.

The standout tracks are the up-tempo "Go To Hell" and "You Gotta Dance," the vaudevillian "Give the Kid a Break" (complete with corny puns) and the confessional "Guilty." The 1918 standard "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" is updated in a way one would never have anticipated.

Cooper has said "I Never Cry" is his best song ever, but his singing on the ballad is too bland for my taste. I prefer "Wake Me Gently" with the backing vocalists and the Beatlesish tempo change in the middle.

"VIVA" (ATCO) is the first live Roxy Music album. It generally is mid-tempo effort, almost relaxing at times. The synthesizer background on "If There Is Something" is a good example.

The songs seem to have been selected only because the tapes are available. This is evident by the album's having been recorded over a three-year span and the absence of the group's American hits "Love Is the Drug" and "The Thrill of It All."

Roxy Music is the British group who plays a startling mix of '60s rock, near-German heavy metal music and other musical styles of the past which seem to be an obsession with lead singer Bryan Ferry.

ONE OF THE eight selections, "Py-jamarama," has not appeared on any previous American release. The second side with two long songs and "Do the Strand" is the best.

Five of the live album's songs have their studio counterparts on the first two Roxy albums, "Roxy Music" and "For Your Pleasure" which Atco has just re-released. Both albums feature electronics wizard Eno, who left the group after the second album.

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

The best of "Roxy Music" is "Remember/Re-model," with its futuristic-sounding musical mix and car registration number chorus, the ballad "Bitters End," and "2 H.B." which is based on the Humphrey Bogart film "Casablanca."

"For Your Pleasure" has the original version of "Do the Strand" and the ballad "Strictly Confidential." It is a more melodic album over-all.

"BEST OF B.T.O. (So Far)" (Mercury) is a good sampling of the music of Bachman-Turner Overdrive, the Canadian loud-rock group headed by Randy Bachman, formerly of the Guess Who.

The songs you'd expect are there, such as "Takin' Care of Business," "Hey You," "You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet" and "Lookin' Out For No. 1," but where are "Rock Is My Life and This Is My Song" and "Not Fragile?"

The album is the group's sixth.

Soundings:

BRYAN FERRY of Roxy Music has his third solo album, "Let's Stick Together," due out shortly. As usual he will do some oldies — Jimmy Reed's "Shame, Shame, Shame," the Everlys' "The Price of Love," Dizzy Gillespie's "You Go To My Head," the Beatles' "It's Only Love" and Gallagher & Lyle's "Heart On My Sleeve." Five of the songs will be Roxy standards, but it is unknown at this time whether they will be reissues or new recordings.

DAVID BRYON has been sacked by the other members of Uriah Heep. Could it be his solo career led to his demanding more of a say in the group?

In the area: THE JACKSONS, tonight through Sunday, Mill Run Theatre, Niles; FRANKIE VALLI & THE FOUR SEASONS, Saturday, Washington Park, Homewood; CHICAGO, tonight, Chicago Stadium.

Authors: TV image-making power in elections a myth

"THE UNSEEING EYE"
by THOMAS E. PATTERSON and ROBERT D. McCLURE
(Putnam, $7.95)

The conventional wisdom holds — and the intellectual community deplors — that television news plays a leading role in how the American people pick their Presidents.

Twaddle, say the authors of "The Unseeing Eye." The subtitle of their book is "The Myth of Television Power in National Elections," and their thesis holds that the American public is smarter than either the politicians or the networks believe it to be.

The authors, professors of political science at Syracuse University in New York, charge that during presidential campaigns network newscasts fail to cover the candidates' qualifications to be president or their positions on the issues, while devoting what meager time is available to the horse race aspects of the campaign — even in a year such as 1972 when it, the horse race, was over before it began.

THE PROBLEM, according to the professors goes back to basics. First, television looks for picture presentations—a candidate sampling a stomach curdling mix of ethnic foods as he eats his way along the campaign trail offers better picture possibilities than the "talking heads" involved in a discussion of foreign policy or welfare alternatives.

Another problem cited is the limitation of television time to half-hour newscasts, in which information is imparted only as quickly as an anchor-man or reporter can speak distinctly.

"More precisely," the authors write, "all the words spoken on a network evening newscast will fit, with room to spare, on the front page of a newspaper. When a large portion of that limited number of words is devoted to campaign hijinks, the networks in effect rule out the coverage of more relevant election information."

As for the candidates' images, the politicians and their campaign managers might take note of this comment by the authors:

"THE LONG AND short of images is that voters are not fools. Claims that the public's images can be manipulated by shallow television theatrics take the voters for dupes. The American voter judges presidential aspirants by politics, not entertainment. Voters arrive at their image of a candidate by judging where he stands politically and by assessing his significant accomplishments and failures.

The book stall

"Television's image-making power is a myth."

"THE TRENTON PICKLE ORDINANCE"

by DICK HYMAN

Stephen Greene Press, $4.95

In Evanston, Ill., it is unlawful to change clothes in an automobile with the curtains drawn, except in case of fire. Presumably, it is all right to change clothes with the curtains not drawn.

In Texas, when two trains meet at a railroad crossing, each is supposed to come to a full stop and not proceed until the other has gone.

These are just two of 600 delightful examples of "bonehead legislation" contained in this small, but funny book.

HYMAN FIRST became intrigued with dumb and outmoded laws 40 years ago when talking with a judge in Jasper, Ala. He soon had a newspaper feature, "It's the Law," which ran first in the New York Sunday Mirror and then in American Magazine until 1956.

So remember: In Atlanta, it is against the law to tie a giraffe to a telephone pole or a street lamp. In Los Angeles, you cannot have a hippopotamus in your possession. And you cannot drive a camel on the public highways of Nevada.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"TREASURE OF MATECUMBE" — First-rate action-adventure elements, a sturdy plot and an excellent cast combine for what just misses being a classic treasure hunt tale set in the Old South. The film loses some of its dramatic momentum due to its length (117 min.) but it's still fine, fun-filled Disney fare for young and old. Cast includes Robert Foxworth, Joan Hackett, Peter Ustinov, Jane Wyatt and Vic Morrow.

"THE MAN WHO FELL TO EARTH" — Director Nicolas Roeg lavishes his dazzling bag of visual tricks on a dramatically disappointing science fiction film about an alien's unhappy stay on earth. Stunning performances by David Bowie and Candy Clark. (R)

"Silent Movie" — Mum's the word from Mel Brooks in this big-budget contemporary silent movie that unleashes a cascade of sight gags, pratfalls and broadly comic set pieces, linked to the connecting story of a minor studio's last-ditch efforts to avoid bankruptcy. Stars Mel Brooks, Marty Feldman and Dom DeLuise. (PG)

"Murder By Death" — The legendary fictional exploits of every major detective hero receive a merciless ribbing from Neil Simon as they join forces on what must be the silliest case on record. The inspired idea never fulfills its initial promise and the momentum soon drags, but a first-rate cast injects Simon's one-liners with a good deal of style and genuine fun. Cast: Truman Capote, James Coco, Peter Falk, Alec Guinness, David Niven, Peter Sellers, Maggie Smith and Nancy Walker. (PG)

"Midway" — Spectacular naval and air battles enhanced by Sensurround for the delight of action fans but little in the way of involving drama or performances despite the all-star cast that includes Charlton Heston, Henry Fonda, James Coburn, Glenn Ford, Hal Holbrook, Robert Mitchum, Cliff Robertson and Robert Wagner. (PG)

Dull dialog spoils drag racing in 'Gumball Rally'

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(A review)

About the only nice thing to say about the new Warner Bros. release "The Gumball Rally" is that certain scenes make you feel as though you're doing the actual driving.

But then one receives the same sensation driving bumper cars in an amusement park and, in addition, gets the full impact of the crashes. And that's really all this movie is about.

"The Gumball Rally" is an unofficial cross country drag race dreamed up by a dozen or so self-professed hot rodders who meet annually to chase one another from New York City to Long Beach, Calif.

MICHAEL SARRAZIN is the billed star of the gumballers who include a college professor, a gushy Italian lover, a mad motorcyclist, a bored housewife and two English gentlemen who look as though they're always ready to break for tea.

In attempt to beef up the plot, a bumbling, frustrated police detective is added, one who, no matter how hard he tries, no matter how many men he enlists, is unable to catch even a single one of them. Yea for the speedsters!

This movie, if you haven't already guessed, is pure but tedious fantasy. It's every driver's dream — running into storefronts, fire hydrants, oncoming traffic and even landing in the tops of trees and managing to come out not only in one piece but ready to go another round.

The characters, however, are stereotyped and the dialog insultingly simple and flat. "The Gumball Rally" runs out of gas too fast. It's rated PG.

'HAWMPS' a funny story but film doesn't keep pace

by DAVID DUGAS
(A review)

In 1856 the U.S. Cavalry experimented with camels, thinking they might outperform horses on the deserts of the American Southwest.

This historical incident inspired the movie "HAWMPS" (humps) from the folks previously responsible for the dog movie "Benji." It was a clever idea and it might have worked, even on the very broad, slapstick level it seeks, if producer-director Joe Camp had resisted the temptation to take every amusing situation and work it to death.

A CAMEL guzzling booze from a bottle is funny once but not six times.

James Hampton plays the newly commissioned lieutenant charged with introducing the camels to one of the cavalry's Texas outposts. The resident troops, eagerly expecting Arabian horses, include Christopher Connelly, Slim Pickens and Denver Pyle.

"HAWMPS" is meant to be a rollicking comedy but it stubbornly refuses to rollick. The pace, leisurely to start with, gradually slows to a dead halt. At 126 minutes it seems interminably long even without the dreadfully cute short, "Benji's Life Story," that is being shown with it.

HAVING MASTERED the art of camel riding, James Hampton (Lt. Clammons) leads his tired but triumphant group of camel soldiers back to the fort.

"HAWMPS" is a Mulberry Square Productions release rated G. (United Press International)

Movies rediscover Gene Kelly

by VERNON SCOTT

The world has rediscovered Gene Kelly thanks to a pair of movies consisting of clips from ancient film musicals.

The older generation had forgotten how good he was. Youngsters had never seen him do his stuff on the big screen before.

But "That's Entertainment!" and "That's Entertainment, Part 2" have revived the dancing man's career, bringing him legions of new fans.

Kelly's broad Irish grin reflects his feelings about his new-found popularity. He poured himself an evening cocktail behind the bar of his Beverly Hills home, one of the oldest in that silk lined-poke-let of the rich. "A thousand letters a week have been coming in," he said.

"A LOT OF the mail is from kids who seem to think we made those musicals only a couple of years ago. And I'm surprised at the romantic notes I'm getting from girls who weren't even born when I made those pictures.

"The interesting thing about 'Entertainment 2' is that Fred Astaire and I did some new things as hosts of the picture. Audiences can see us then and now.

"I directed those sequences. Fred was wary about dancing again. I told him we wouldn't compete with ourselves of 20 years ago. We'd just make a few moves.

"I restricted our routines to simple steps and Fred trusted my judgment.

"THE ACCEPTANCE of the picture has convinced me that Fred and I are a fraternity of two. We keep in close touch with one another.

"But dancing is a young man's game. You have to be an athlete and train as hard as a boxer. So I've tried to do less and less work."

Kelly's inactivity over the past four years has been voluntary.

His wife, Jeanne, died of leukemia four years ago. The tragedy overwhelmed the star who devoted himself to providing all the love and security possible for their two children, Bridget, 12, and Tim, 14.

He chose to sacrifice his career rather than leave his children to make movies away from home.

KELLY EVEN refused the lead role opposite Liza Minnelli in "Cabaret." He couldn't bring himself to wrench Bridget and Tim from their surroundings and pack them off to Europe with him.

"It's easier to work now because the kids are recovering from their mother's death," he said. "I went to Europe for 10 days earlier this year to promote 'Entertainment 2.' They were secure enough for me to leave them."

The youngsters, in fact, are responsible for Kelly's return to movies with a costarring role with Evel Knievel in "Viva Knievel."

"I turned the part down when my agent called and asked if I was interested," Kelly said. "I'd planned to go to Europe to do another movie."

"I TOLD HIM to ask for a Steve McQueen-type salary to discourage any further offer. Then the kids heard about it.

"Tim has his own trail bike. He pleaded with me to take the picture. He said Knievel is a folk hero. Babe Ruth and Lindbergh were my heroes, but I learned Knievel is the man of the hour these days.

"Bridget gasped when I told her I'd refused the part. So I changed my attitude. I sent for the script and like it.

"I play a grease monkey pal of Knievel. Until now I've never played a real character role. I'm like the child star with a gap in his career. I don't have enough age in my face to play characters my own age. At the same time I'm too old to get the young girl in a movie.

"This picture is a lark. I don't dance. I don't shave. I don't wear makeup. And I don't get the girl. I'm having so much fun I can hardly wait to go to work in the morning."

There is a chance Kelly will star in a musical television special this year.

IT WILL give him the opportunity to don his famed dancing clothes once again — the gray flannels, moccasins, white socks and sweater.

TWO FINE LADIES of Windsor, Mrs. Ford (Elaine LeTraunik, Schaumburg) and Mrs. Page (Sandra Rode, Elk Grove) get word of Sir John Falstaff's romantic interest in them, which triggers retaliation by their husbands. Restaurant brings outdoors inside

The Greenhouse in Palatine offers what most suburban restaurants lack atmosphere. That, along with good service and food makes the restaurant at 1200 W. Northwest Hwy., a pleasant place to dine.

The restaurant, as the name implies is abundant with greenery hang-special Grecian salad, we asked our waitress for a side order of Peta cheese and anchovies which she promptly brought to the table at a charge of $2.

Egg rolls, sauteed mushrooms, oysters and herring are also available as appetizers.

The mostly American menu includes a basic variety of dishes from seafood and beef to chicken and ribs. The fact that too few creative items are offered was our only disappointment.

Each entree comes with a salad, more than the usual with two kinds of lettuce, tomatoes, chopped eggs, onion and croutons. The house dressing was nondescript but the Roquefort delicious. Entrees also come with a choice of baked fried or stuffed baked potatoes. We tried the twice-baked potatoes, which would have been delicious except they were slightly overdone.

WE ORDERED THE beachcomber's skillet, $8.95, and the tournedos beaugency, $9.25, both specialties of the house. The red snapper with a special butter sauce and roast duckling with apricot sauce are also recommended by the management.

The beachcomber, which comes in a skillet was a large portion of seafood with shrimp, crabmeat, scallops and sole in a sauce tasting like the glazed banana and pineapple that are included. The sauce was tasty but not too sweet. Spanish rice is also served in the skillet.

Bill o' fare

The tournedos were cooked rare as ordered and more than an ample portion. An artichoke bottom filled with an excellent bernaise sauce made with real butter and just the right amount of tarragon were tasty additions.

THE DESSERT MENU includes strawberries grand marnier at $2.50 and cheesecake at $1.50 but, being too full, we ended dinner with coffee. Service was excellent throughout the meal with water glasses and the roll basket refilled without having to ask. Dishes were also cleared away promptly.

The Greenhouse is open for lunch and offers a Sunday brunch. Attire is casual until 5 p.m. when jackets are required for men. The restaurant also has a lounge with entertainment in the evenings, a nice place to enjoy an after-dinner drink.

Ravinia hosts the Joffrey

Upbeat ballet taking over

by LYNN ASINOF
A review

Despite the name, it is unlikely anyone would mistake the City Center Joffrey Ballet for a classical ballet company.

Just check out the programs scheduled this week at Ravinia. Each is a dance sampler, providing a little jazz, a taste of modern, some good old-fashioned gymnastics and just a touch of the classical.

Each year the company, now 20 years old, moves further from the tradition of toe shoes and more towards the upbeat. Those who crave the classical usually will find one piece in each program that features piroettes and pointe work.

THIS MIX IS a good choice for the dancers, who often appear long on energy but short on technique. And apparently it is a good choice for the Chicago audience, which provides sold-out crowds for the Joffrey's twice-yearly dance potpourri.

For this visit the Joffrey has brought several revivals from the '50s and '60s, as well as some favorites well known to Chicago audiences.

One of the loveliest offerings this trip is "Secret Places," choreographed by the Joffrey's Gerald Arpino to the Mozart piano concerto which is best known as the theme to "Elvira Madigan."

The piece is a love duet danced with fluidity and tenderness by Dermot

Buik and Lisa Bradley, who recently returned to the Joffrey fold. It is one of the more subtle ballets performed by the troupe.

BRADLEY HAS sustaining strength, a supple back and willowy arms which allow her to move effortlessly through lifts and poses.

The dramatic "Feast of Ashes" choreographed by Alvin Ailey shows Bradley's versatility. It becomes a vehicle for her and Jan Hanniford, who dances the role of her dominating mother. Both project the feeling of Spanish religious severity and dogma, providing an exciting dramatic edge.

"Deuce Coupe II," which has already become a Joffrey classic, is typical of the new works being done by the company. Choreographed by Twyla Tharp to Beach Boys music, the piece combines ballet and 1960's rock 'n' roll.

WITH EACH YEAR, the piece gains depth, and should be seen more than once because it moves so quickly. A distant cousin of "Deuce Coupe II" is "N.Y. Export: Op Jazz," a 1958 Jerome Robbins ballet of the beat generation. While the repetitious piece captures the anger and alienation of the '50s, it relies too much on poyntails and fingersnapping to carry it through five variations.

Both pieces suffer from the company's general lack of precision, with dancers appearing to move at random rather than in unison. When the Joffrey learns timing, the company will look 100 per cent better.

"REFLECTIONS" a lyrical Arpino ballet, shows the company at its best. The women are light, fast and airy, but the men looked best while partnering their women.

The dancers appeared a bit unsure opening night but pulled together for an improved performance Wednesday. Programs continue through Sunday, with ticket information available by calling either ST 2-9696 or 432-1236.

Flu book...

its form every year so as to be nearly impossible to eradicate is easy to understand. A capsule history of flu and a description of flu trackers makes interesting, if sometimes trivial, reading.

THE STORY OF the 1918-19 flu pandemic that scientists believe was caused by a swine flu-like virus includes an unsettling account of mass arrests in New York and Chicago for coughing or sneezing in public.

Dr. Imperato endorses, though not unequivocally, taking Vitamin C to help prevent or cure the flu. But he really gives out few "secrets" on how to battle the influenza bug, maybe because there are not any secrets to tell.

Go to bed, keep warm, drink liquids, take aspirin, call the doctor and do not get up until your fever is down pretty much says it all.

TO AVOID THE flu, common sense and Dr. Imperato tell you to avoid crowds, wash your hands and not let yourself get run down.

Dr. Imperato is first deputy commissioner of health for New York City and the author of six other books. As for buying "What to Do About the Flu," you're better off waiting for the movie. Unless, of course, it comes out during flu season, in which case the good doctor advises, "skip the movies unless you're dying to see the film."

"REMEMBRANCES," performed here by Francesca Corkle and Paul Sutherland, is one of 12 pieces being performed by the City Center Joffrey Ballet during its week-long visit to Ravinia.

'Mind With the Dirty Man'

Good or bad the tickets sell

If you enjoy JOEY BISHOP on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show" you'll be sure to like him in THE MIND WITH THE DIRTY MAN now at the DRURY LANE THEATRE in Water Tower Place.

He doesn't change. It's Joey Bishop playing Joey Bishop, which doesn't matter much anyhow considering this adult rated comedy isn't worth fretting over.

Hardly the expected, sophisticated fare for a posh, Michigan Avenue theater, the box office, no doubt, will still be working overtime for this Jules Tasea play is just raunchy enough to be the talk of the town.

Arlington Park Theatre sold out three different times with "Dirty Man" featuring Don Knotts in the leading role. Knotts, I must admit, looked more the part of the nervous, uptight member of a movie review board faced with keeping his own son's porno film out of the small, backward community.

Bishop looks as though he'd rather be selling the movie than censoring it. Yet people who are there to see him flash open his bathrobe and parade in his boxer shorts will not be disappointed.

More attuned to their roles, however, are his own son, LARRY BISHOP, who, as the son in the play, returns home to purposely harass the small-town hypocrites, and BONNIE SUE ARP, who bubbles over as his porno-queen wife.

PATRICIA FRASER, who happens to reside in Hoffman Estates, is excellent as Bishop's wife — trying to be satisfied with her dutiful lot in life while at the same time fishing for a bit more excitement in supporting her son.

Unfortunately the talents of director George Keathley, who was just named

Ronnee Blakley

by Genie Campbell

"The Mind With the Dirty Man" continues through Sept. 12.

RONNEE BLAKLEY, An Academy Award nominee for the film "Nashville," will perform at HARRY HOPE'S in Cary tonight and Saturday. In the movie Miss Blakley plays Barbara Jean, Nashville's beautiful, fragile country and western princess who, as the film progresses and her career skyrockets, sinks deeper and deeper into emotional panic. She wrote the music and lyrics for five of the songs in "Nashville."

resident director of Drury Lane/Water Tower Place, go almost unnoticed. He needs and deserves much greater challenges, though it does show that Keathley has tried to update the dialog and revamp the play to suit Bishop.

As Bishop says once in this comedy, "There's a lot more to this business than smiling on the 'Tonight Show.'"

DPTG offers special rate

Six shows for the price of four is the offer Des Plaines Theatre Guild is making to patrons who subscribe for the 1976-77 season by Sept. 1.

A double presentation in May expands the season from five to six plays, and by ordering subscriptions now a 25 per cent savings over the single admission price at the box office can be realized.

All plays will be offered for three weekends, and Sunday performances have been added to the runs of each show. Group sales and benefit shows are also offered to clubs and organizations desiring to plan theater parties for entertainment and fund-raising purposes.

The season opens in September with nine performances of the Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein musical "Show Boat," playing Sept. 10-26.

In November the comedy "A Majority of One" will be presented, followed by the courtroom drama "The Night of January 16th" in January and a comedy, "The Silver Whistle," in March.

THE DOUBLE FEATURE in May will be "The Real Inspector Hound" and "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch," both comedies.

Season subscription orders may be mailed to Des Plaines Theatre Guild, P. O. Box 84, Des Plaines, 60017. If a printed order form is not handy, a note should be included stating preference for first, second or third weekend of each run, and whether tickets are desired for Friday, Saturday or Sunday. Price for Friday and Sunday evening series is $13.50, Saturday evening, $15.

After Sept. 1, single admission prices will be $3.50 for Friday and Sunday and $4 for Saturday.

Rehearsals for the September play, "Show Boat," are under direction of Raoul Johnson of Schaumburg, with Betty Myers, Mount Prospect, as choral director and John Van Hook, Schaumburg, orchestra director.

The season's productions will be staged in Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Further information is available at the box office, 296-1211, noon to 8 p.m. daily.

Area chorus to go bowling

A scotch doubles bowling night is planned by Hoffman Hallmark Chorus for Saturday at 8:30 at Hoffman Lanes, Hoffman Estates. The chorus invites those interested to join the group for four lines of bowling plus dinner, all for $15 per couple.

This is a benefit event to help provide equipment for the two major concerts performed by the group each season. The chorus draws from the entire Northwest suburbs for membership.

Further information on the bowling night is available from Joan Morris, 529-3827.

Artists invited to enter show

Artists may still enter their work in the Buffalo Grove Festival of Fine Arts to be held Sept. 5 on the Village Green at Buffalo Grove Village Hall, Raupp Boulevard and Lake Cook Road.

Art will be judged in three categories — watercolors, acrylics and oils; graphics; and drawings. Awards will be given by the Festival committee.

Hours of the show are from noon to 6 p.m. Ted Uskali Jr., 337-3289, may be called for registration.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Tension most likely cause of headaches

I am in good general health except for one problem. In the past six to nine months I have been plagued with headaches. Their frequency and intensity have increased to where I have at least one headache per day. These are not throbbing headaches, but seem like a great deal of pressure over the entire head and behind my eyes. Also the sides and back of my neck are sore when I have these headaches.

I have tried various brands of aspirin and other pain relievers to no avail. I haven't been able to find any consistent reasons for this pain, such as tension, undereating, allergies, etc. However, I sometimes get a brief period of relief shortly after eating.

I stopped taking birth control pills, but this did not seem to be causing the problem.

Could you please give me your opinions on the reasons for my headaches? If you feel there is a definite need to see a doctor, would it be advisable to first see an M.D., a neurologist, or some other specialist?

Headache is man's most common pain. About 90 per cent of all people experience a headache from time to time. Headaches can be caused by an acute illness as with a sinus infection or even with any febrile illness. Aside from these, most headaches are caused by tension associated with the emotional stress of living. Since we haven't found any good ways to live and not have any emotional stress, it is likely that headaches will continue to be a part of life for most people at one time or another — at least during periods of stress.

There is at least a 90 per cent chance that your headache is in the anxiety-depression type group, as are most headaches. The fact that you have not gotten relief from aspirin or other pain relieving medicines is a strong point in favor of this opinion. The generalized location with the discomfort you feel at the base of the head or back of the neck is also consistent with this type of headache.

THOSE HEADACHES are a warning from your psychic that you are not tolerating the stresses and strains of your own life situations. Examine your life for tensions and conflicts and see if you can make life a little easier for yourself. Taking tranquilizers will not really help with those headaches, but resolution of the anxiety provoking stresses or factors causing depression may really help a great deal.

You do not have migraine headaches. The location and symptoms are not indicative of that at all. I would recommend that you try to get some relaxation away from the more intense parts of your life. A vacation may be in order.

When the headache strikes, try some heat to the back of the neck and some gentle massage. Rest with a heating pad under the back of the head and neck area. Then move your head gently in all directions and try to loosen up your muscles. Massage gently the muscles over the side of your head.

Anyone who has recurrent headaches should see a doctor and a good place for you to start is with your family doctor. Let him decide if you really need to see anyone else or not. Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-9, Headache: Man's Most Common Pain. Others who want information on headaches can obtain this issue by sending a long, stamped self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Tiger's milk an aid, not a diet substitute

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to ask about using tiger's milk to help lose weight. Can I drink it three times a day to curb my appetite — and then rely on one good meal a day? — Mrs. J. A. Koenig Tiger's milk is a great adjunct in dieting — but that's all it is, an adjunct and not a substitute. Frankly, anyone with a serious weight problem ought not to create their own diet. They need help from either a doctor or a nutritionist. Too many people have damaged their health by going on freaky diets. What's more, they didn't succeed in any long-range weight reduction. One can easily lose on a simple practice of cutting away all visible fat on meats, cutting out sauces, moving from two pieces of toast to one, and so on. Just this would cut enough calories to knock off 10 pounds in a year. On this sort of basis, tiger's milk makes sense. On any crash course, it's a serious error.

Dear Dorothy: Have tried various polishes on the chrome fixtures in the bathroom, but the stains won't come off. Any home remedy in your file that might work? — Maureen Roche

This is a maybe. Tried a paste of cream of tartar and three per cent hydrogen peroxide on a stained chrome faucet. It didn't work the first time, so tried again. This time, I was called away and did not get to finish the wiping off until the next morning. The faucet looked brand-new.

Dear Dorothy: Speed does wonders. Putting chlorine bleach in the washer, some fell on a blue smock. Grabbed it and put it in a pan of water with a tiny bit of bleach in it. Within five minutes, the smock was its original color and no spots. — Joy Fallon

Cathleen Campbell-Ronald Gjerde

A romance at Illinois State University culminated in marriage July 24 for Cathleen L. Campbell of Hoffman Estates and Ronald L. Gjerde of Lisbon, Ill. They are making their home in Springfield where the groom is on the Republican legislative staff for the Illinois State Legislature.

Cathleen, daughter of the Talmage G. Campbells, is a graduate of Conant High and now a junior at Illinois State. Ronald, an Illinois State graduate, is the son of the Harold Gjerdes of Newark, Ill.

They were married at 3:30 p.m. in the Church of the Cross, United Presbyterian, in Hoffman Estates. A reception followed in the church fellowship hall and later there was a buffet and dancing at the Governor's Mansion, Barrington Square.

The couple honeymooned at the Playboy Club in Lake Geneva. FOR THEIR double ring rites Cathleen chose her sister, Connie, as maid of honor and Ronald chose Greg Glenn, Minooka, Ill., as best man.

Bridesmaids were Karen Johnson, DeKalb, Sue Tittle, Bloomington, and Sheila Campbell, the bride's sister-in-law from Homewood, Ala. Junior bridesmaids were the couple's sisters, Cindy Campbell and Linda Gjerde.

The girls were gownned in blue, green and yellow dotted swiss and carried matching colored bouquets.

The bride wore white organza and lace and carried blue, green and yellow carnations with white daisies.

Serving as groomsmen were Jeff Anderson, Hinsdale, Greg Vogen, Newark, and the groom's brother, Terry of Morris, Ill. The couple's brothers, Blair Campbell and Richard Gjerde, ushered.

Also in the wedding party was the groom's nephew, Eric Gjerde of Morris, who served as ring bearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald L. Gjerde

Karen Bosworth-Richard McCoy

Although Richard W. McCoy and his family formerly lived in Arlington Heights, he did not meet his bride, Karen C. Bosworth of Arlington Heights, until after his parents, the Wallace McCoy, moved to McLean, Va. He returned to the area to work and met Karen through church and family contacts.

Both she and her bridegroom have been active in the theater group at St. James Catholic Church where they were married July 25 at 4 p.m.

Karen is the daughter of the Ward Bosworths. A graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High and from the University of Illinois in '75, she teaches at the Early Learning Center, Buffalo Grove.

Richard graduated from Arlington High and from the U of I in '72 and is an engineer with International Harvester, Schaumburg.

FOUR ATTENDANTS preceded Karen down the aisle for the double ring ceremony. Mary Hoppe, Chicago, was maid of honor; the groom's sister, Sue, Nora Elegreet of Morton Grove and Sandy Miller, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids. All were gownned alike in aqua knit and carried yellow carnations, purple statice and baby's breath. Karen's gown was of white organza embroidered in a lily of the valley motif of lace. Her chapel-length veil and cap were also edged in the lace, and her bouquet was of phalaenopsis and stephanotis.

Best man was the groom's brother, Pat of Itasca,

Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCoy and groomsmen included the couple's brothers, Ken Bosworth, Arlington Heights, and Ken McCoy, Hinsdale, along with Jim Sobolewski, Alameda, Calif.

Two hundred twenty guests greeted the newlyweds at a reception at the Starlight Inn, Schiller Park. The couple honeymooned in Jamaica and are living in Lake Zurich.

Linda Jean Anstett-William Crimmins

Six bridal attendants gownned in rainbow shades of dotted swiss preceded Linda Jean Anstett down the aisle of Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights, for her marriage July 25 to William Crimmins.

Linda, daughter of the Carl J. Anstetts of Arlington Heights, and her bridegroom met while attending college in Winona, Minn., and had several school friends in their wedding party.

Bill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Crimmins of Elmwood Park.

Linda's maid of honor was her sister, Cheryl, who wore a yellow dotted swiss gown and white picture hat and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations with baby's breath. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Maureen, who wore an apricot ensemble; the bride's sister-in-law, Maria Anstett, Canton, Ill., who wore aqua; Karen Jersey, Oak Park, in pink; Sandy Shaft, Green Bay, in green; and another sister of the bride, Nancy, in blue.

THE BRIDE'S gown was of chiffon with lace and seed pearl trim, and with it she wore a fingertip veil and a camelot headpiece. White roses, stephanotis and ivy made up her bouquet.

Bill's fraternity brothers from Chicago were his attendants, Tony Gilski as best man and Mike Mulvihill, Gary Howard, Angelo Rhinchoise, Don Figulio and Mike Evans as groomsmen.

Following the afternoon ceremony there was a dinner reception with dancing at Nordic Hills Country Club. The newlyweds then left for a week at a resort in Lake of the Ozarks and are now residing in Chicago.

Linda is a nurse at Swedish Covenant Hospital, Chicago. Her husband is attending Kent School of Law and working for an attorney in Chicago.

After graduating from Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Linda attended St. Theresa College in Winona while Bill was a student nearby at St. Mary's College. He earned a degree, but she left college to study radiology at Northwest Community Hospital and graduated there just before her wedding.

Eagle honored as national bird

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to John Harvey, 9, of Montoursville, Pa., for his question: WHAT IS OUR NATIONAL BIRD?

The bald eagle did not reach his status as our national emblem without some dissension. Benjamin Franklin openly opposed the choice, campaigning instead for the wild turkey. Many, including the designer of the Great Seal of the United States, considered the golden eagle more appropriate. But the bald eagle reigned supreme in the end, and probably among the many reasons are that this majestic bird is native only to North America, is attached to its home and faithful to his mate. What's more, he devotes more care to the education of his young than any other bird in our skies.

The bald eagle is truly a monarch — his regal features include a snowy white feathered head, sharp, piercing eyes, magnificent seven-foot wing-span and black, razor-sharp talons. He soars hour after hour in graceful undisturbed flight, riding on the wind currents as high as 10,000 feet above the earth. His keen eyes have been known to spot prey three miles away.

Although the bald eagle was once a abundant across the continental

United States and parts of Canada and Alaska, his numbers have been diminished severely. Victim of egg collectors, trophy hunters, poisoned bait and chemical pesticides, as well as bullets from irate farmers and ranches, the bald eagle finally won some protection in 1940 when Congress passed the Bald Eagle Protection Act. This has helped, but the long-lasting effects of DDT, which found its way into food, reduced the number of eggs hatched. Today the bald eagle is rare except in Florida, Alaska and Canada.

The bald eagle's 30 year life span begins as a helpless and homely little chick. His first home is a nest or eyrie, built in the top of a towering evergreen tree close to water. Made of branches, pine needles, moss and assorted objects, the nest is used year after year by the parents who will add more nesting materials to the lofty incubator each year. The expansions account for the huge nests that have been discovered — some weighing as much as one ton.

Both parents constantly hunt for the chick, who for a short time has the food popped into his mouth. Soon, however, school days begin, and the parents show the youngster how to break food into bite-size portions, and how to hop up and down and flap his wings. Sometime during his third month of life, the eaglet learns to fly. But until he masters the skills of hunting — at about five months — he remains with his parents.

Bald eagles mate for life when they are about 4 or 5 years old. Their courtship flight is a spectacular display of aerial acrobatics. The male repeatedly soars upward, then dives, until the female joins him. Together they fly higher and higher in ever smaller circles, until finally they lock talons in midair. Thus joined, they spin through the sky like swiftly somersaulting pinwheels.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Shawn Steinbach, 12, of Chariton, Iowa, for his question: WHAT IS A MAN-MADE DIAMOND?

We all know about diamonds — how hard they are, how beautiful they are and how prized they are as gems. But many of Andy's readers may not know that diamonds also work for a living. They have many industrial uses that range from exploring for mineral deposits in the tip of a drill to the tiny needle that is used in many record players. Diamonds used in industry are called industrial diamonds, and they are the gems that are imperfectly formed or flawed.

Since the demand for industrial diamonds is greater than the available supply, the only solution was to try to create diamonds. In February, 1955, a team of scientists at the General Electric Research Laboratory announced that they had produced man-made diamonds by compressing graphite under super high pressures and temperature. Of course, the process is much more involved than just using pressure and heat. But scientists established that it could be done, and today several companies manufacture industrial diamonds.

TV pilots known to switch networks

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Old television pilots never die and sometimes they don't fade away, either.

As a matter of fact, they even have been known to turn up at a competing network.

That's what may happen next year with "Wonder Woman." "Wonder Woman" did well in the ratings both times it ran as an ABC movie, but ABC already has another wonder woman — and she's Bionic. The network isn't likely to trade a Bionic bird in the hand for a wonder-bird who hasn't proved herself in series form. Two superwomen seem superfluous.

"THAT'S THE thinking at NBC, where executives are said to be considering picking up the option of "Wonder Woman" if ABC lets it drop this fall. It could be ready for second season slot, to replace a show with not-so-wonderful ratings.

ABC may have one too many wonderful women, but it still is looking for a good Western and the network hasn't given up on a couple of its past efforts.

Last season ABC aired a TV movie called "The Macahans," announced as a pilot for a possible Western series. It was based on the movie, "How the West Was Won." Now ABC has announced it will air a limited series of three 2-hour television movies called "How the West Was Won," based on "The Macahans."

By any name it will still star James Arness and Eva Marie Saint.

THE YOUNG Pioneers," another Western pilot that failed to make the ABC fall schedule Christmas movie about the teenaged couple home-steading in the Dakota Territory in the 1870s.

ABC may have niggling worries about Westerns, but this fall it'll be wrinkling its brows all the way to the bank.

In the results from spring ratings "sweeps," ABC came out the big winner, confirming its strong rating position this year and influencing the rate card it will present in selling commercial time.

Keepbrain on during play

Here is a hand that may well have decided the 1950 Vanderbilt Cup competition.

At both tables the queen of diamonds was led against the seven-club contract. One declarer called for the ace of diamonds, without any thought. Then he thought for several minutes before discarding his jack of spades. Several minutes later he was one down.

The other declarer did his thinking before playing from dummy and finally called for a low diamond. He ruffed, cashed the ace of spades to see what happened, cashed the ace of hearts for a second look at possibilities and then played the king of spades. When that dropped the queen he led to dummy's ace of clubs, discarded his four of hearts on the ace of diamonds, came back to his hand with a heart, drew trumps and claimed his grand slam.

This grand slam swing decided a first-round match. The lucky winners then went on to win the tournament.

Sting launches playoff action tonight

by DON FRISKE

Throughout the long summer, a professional sports team in Chicago has been laboring to bring a championship to a city where such things have been forgotten.

But, in the shuffle of numerous other big league attractions in the big city, the efforts of the Chicago Sting have often been overlooked by both the press and the fans.

Tonight, beneath the lights of Soldier Field, the Sting will play the Toronto Metros-Croatia in the quarter-finals of the North American Soccer League playoffs.

It will be the second stop in the Sting's drive for the title. The initial victory came when Chicago won first place in the Northern Division of the NASL.

The second-place team in that race is the outfit the Sting play tonight. Game time is 8 p.m.

In their two previous contests, the Sting and the Metros-Croatia have split. Both games have been shutouts.

But now, every game could be the last of the season for those teams remaining in the championship playoffs, which are a single-elimination affair.

This type of arrangement is most suited for the style of play used by the Metros-Croatia. They like to play a conservative game, slowing down the opponents and relying on one or two goals to win a game.

Because of this, Toronto finished second in the division behind the Sting. Both teams finished the season with a 15-9 record, the difference being bonus points.

The Sting had 42 bonus points while the Metros-Croatia collected only 33. Chicago scored 14 more goals throughout the season.

Every goal (with a maximum of three) in each game counts as a bonus point, whether the team wins or loses.

"We murdered them on bonus points," said Bill Foulkes, Sting coach. "We have an all-out scoring attack while Toronto relies on quick breaks from the defense. This is the main difference between us."

"This is the tactical thing we must overcome and I think we have the players to do it."

Foulkes said the Sting has been working on a different style of play during the past week in preparation for the game. The new approach centers around filling holes at mid-field and concentrating on quick breaks.

"We have to approach this game more cautiously, but we will still be playing an attacking game," Foulkes added. "Toronto knows how to slow down a game, but we will not let them do that to us."

Foulkes plans on pressuring Toronto for the entire 90 minutes. His tactic of the all-out attack has resulted in the opponents scoring goals because the defense has been left thin.

"We'll be playing this game slightly different," Foulkes said. "We're confident, but not arrogant. The players know the long-term effect of winning this game."

Sting goalkeeper Mervyn Cawston may be the player with the most on his mind. In a single elimination situation, much of the balance rests with the goalies.

"I do feel a little extra pressure and I know the game is going to be close," Cawston said. "A one-goal game wouldn't surprise me."

During the season, Cawston allowed an average of only 1.20 goals per game while recording six shutouts. He said he feels the pivotal game for him was the Sting victory over the New York Cosmos, 2-1, in New York on May 2.

"That game got my confidence up. But I'm not really worried about tonight's game," Cawston said. "If everyone plays as they can, there will only be one result."

Cawston fully realizes that any mistake he makes could turn into a sour result for the Sting. Eusabio, a star forward for Toronto, will be closely watched by Cawston.

One major key to the game is that Toronto has played two games already this week and Foulkes expects to see some signs of fatigue.

Another factor is the home advantage for the Sting. They have now won 10 straight games at Soldier Field.

"Our players believe they are invincible at home and they show it," Foulkes said.

Tonight's game will be broadcast over WMM-FM (92.7) with coverage beginning at 7:30. For those planning to attend the game, it might be helpful to leave a little early because of the Lakefront Festival.

A winner (at last) in Chicago!

The patient Chicago sports fan has been rewarded with a winner in, of all things, professional soccer.

It's a very fitting slap at the established sports franchises, and I think it's great in this city where ineptitude on the field is the rule.

It's going to be interesting to see what kind of crowd the Chicago Sting draws to its North American Soccer League playoff game tonight in Soldier Field.

Those fans who are tired of "next years" from the Cubs and Bears, dropped flyballs from the White Sox, bickering from the Bulls and higher prices from the Black Hawks should find this Sting success so very refreshing.

And if you've paid your hard-earned dollar to watch Chicago's losers, you should reward an operation that at least has given this city a winner.

The Sting has helped put some words back into the Chicago sports vocabulary that had lost their meaning — words like "division title" and "playoff."

It gets a little tiring to build up hope at the beginning of every season and then watch the hapless Chicago team slumber into that familiar pattern of "wait until next year."

Wouldn't it be great if the Chicago fans suddenly turned on the established franchises and made soccer the "in" sport? It would be their way of saying "thanks" for coming into town and at least giving this city something to talk about.

People say they don't understand the sport of soccer. I'd be the first to admit I don't fully comprehend all the tactical subtleties, but the overall picture is not that complex. It is essentially a simple game.

The object of soccer — perhaps a little obscured by the defensive tendencies of the 1960s — is to score more goals than the opposition. It demands an expertise in the manipulation of a round ball. Now is that so difficult?

Soccer appears perfectly tailored for the new American sports fan, the developing American appetite for faster, more fluid spectator sports. Soccer has speed, non-stop action, roughness, beauty, finesse, a more spread-out and discernible pattern of play.

Bob Frisk

Sports Editor

A soccer player using his head and his feet can do to that ball what a Harlem Globetrotter does with a basketball.

Introduced in this country around 1830, soccer's misfortune appears to have been that after the Civil War, when the transplanted game was just beginning to develop in an organized way, it ran into something that used to be known as "Harvard indifference."

Baseball was becoming the passion then, basketball was about to be invented, and, most significantly, college football was born, because Harvard in 1873 decided it preferred its own "Boston game," on the order of rugby, to soccer.

That year Harvard declined to attend a meeting at which Columbia, Princeton, Rutgers and Yale were to form an intercollegiate soccer group. Had Harvard participated in that meeting, soccer might have become our great intercollegiate and professional sport.

It is played with such fervor in some places today that soccer players have been killed on the field by spectators, spectators have killed each other and nations have severed diplomatic relations and gone to war.

Eight hundred million people are estimated to have watched a World Cup on television.

If soccer entrances — and even maddens — such disparate peoples as Britons and Latvians, Brazilians and Germans, Africans and Afrikaners, it must be a sport that can hold the attention of Americans. Or can it? The jury is still out, but the progress has been encouraging in some cities like Seattle where the average attendance is 23,000.

If those who control this burgeoning game in the U.S. have good sense and the enlightened self-interest to discipline themselves and to take a decent posture toward soccer, the future is bright.

It will take time. It is true that not many Americans know the difference between an inside-of-the-thigh trap and a volley kick, but not many are so knowledgeable about baseball or football as they pretend to be in the bars after a game.

Soccer is like vodka was 15 years ago. The public is going to have to be educated to it. When the sport takes over, the fun really begins.

Soccer is... well, fanaticism.

Try it tonight in Soldier Field. You just might like it. The Sting deserves support.

Anyway, what have the Cubs, White Sox, Bears, Bulls and Black Hawks done for you lately?

DiMaggio ages gracefully at 62

by IRA BERKOW

An entire generation is growing to middle age who knows Joe DiMaggio only as the kindly, long-faced, gray-haired man on a coffee-machine television commercial, or as the subject in the quizzical line of the hit song, "Mrs. Robinson."

The line went, "Where have you gone, Joe DiMaggio, a nation turns its lonely eyes to you." The line was a refrain a few years ago, before DiMaggio began making commercials.

"I've never been able to figure out," said Joe DiMaggio, "what the song means."

Neither has Paul Simon, who wrote it. "It means anything you want it to," Simon has said. "My style is to write phonetically and with free association, and very often it comes out all right. But as soon as I said the line, I said to myself that's a great line, that line touches me. It has a nice touch of nostalgia to it... It could be interpreted many ways."

"It has something to do with heroes. People who are all good and no bad in them at all. That's the way I always saw Joe DiMaggio."

Joe DiMaggio played for the New York Yankees from 1936 through 1951.

For the Major League Baseball Centennial in 1969, in a poll of players and executives, he was named "The Greatest Living Baseball Player." His record of hitting safely in 56 straight games was chosen "The Greatest Individual Achievement in Baseball History."

DiMaggio, who now lives in San Francisco, was back at Yankee Stadium recently for an Old Timers Day game. He was given the choicest locker, the one closest to the shower room, a locker he inherited from Babe Ruth and passed on to Mickey Mantle. It says "Hunter" over it now, for Calfish Hunter.

DiMaggio is 62 years old now, and aging as gracefully as he played centerfield. He is meticulous. His hair is silvery, thinning, but each strand appears to have been combed back separately and indulgently. His gentle hazel eyes are a little slanty, a little rheumy, still a little shy. He had removed his blue sport jacket and blue slacks and white shirt with the Monogram "JDM" and black loafers. He began pulling on the famous pinstriped Yankee uniform, with his number, 5. Lastly, he worked his feet into the spiked shoes, the kind of shoes he wore for so many years. "Oh god," he said, "these hurt like hell."

What does he do now? he was asked.

"Play golf, do those commercials, take it easy," he said. "And travel. I love that. My favorite place? Scandinavia. I like the relaxed style of life. I never had dreams to do anything else after baseball. Lawyer? Businessman? No, I've never been very bookish."

It was mentioned that he has the reputation for being the perfect, natural ballplayer, that it was said, and generally believed, that he never made a difficult catch, which is to say that he never made a catch look difficult.

"That's all nonsense," he said. "I remember one game I made two errors on one play. I came back to the bench and someone asked if I'd want a war helmet to wear the next inning."

"As for being a natural, well, nobody ever worked harder than I did. In spring training I'd have Earle Combs hit me grounders in the outfield, and hit balls over my head, and to my right and to my left."

And effortless. Let me tell you, every time I take a step today I am reminded of my baseball career. My body aches all over from all that it took to play this game. I can hardly toss a ball today from here to there."

DiMaggio would not be playing in the game today. He stopped playing Old-Timers games a few years ago. He says he can't swing the bat anymore, though just a handful of years ago some of the young players would delight in watching the old master. "You could always count on Joe to hit a frozen rope," said Reggie Jackson.

He does show up at several Old-Timers games around the country. He is usually the last to be announced and the cheers are usually the most enthusiastic for him. One is reminded of a remark by Leonard Bernstein, the composer and conductor. He once said that applause is a necessity for the artist. It goes in one ear and quickly out the other. But the ear must be constantly fed.

There is a story told of when Marilyn Monroe, then married to DiMaggio, returned from a tour of Korea in 1953 where she entertained the U.S. troops.

Breathless with excitement, she said, "Joe, you've never heard such cheering."

And Joe said softly, "Yes I have."

White Sox stop Boston on Brett's seventh win

Ken Brett earned his seventh victory of the year against eight losses Thursday night as the Chicago White Sox beat Boston, 4-2, ending the teams' regular-season play tied at six wins apiece.

Brett went the distance, striking out seven and walking three.

It was Music Night at Sox Park and the home team hit the right notes in the very first inning when Jorge Orta singled and stole second. A moment later, Bill Stein ripped a double to the wall in left as Orta jogged across the plate.

The Sox made it 2-0 in the second on a walk to Jerry Hairston, a sacrifice, and Jack Brohamer's RBI single.

Boston scored a tainted run off Brett in the third. No. 9 hitter Butch Hobson belted a long flyball to right-center that Chet Lemon dropped after a lengthy chase. Hobson, who got credit for a triple, came to the plate on a ground out by Rick Burleson.

Wildness got Red Sox starter Rick Wise in trouble again in the fourth when he walked Brian Downing leading off. Hairston punched a single to center, sending Downing to second, and Bucky Dent followed with his second sacrifice. Brohamer picked up another RBI with a sacrifice fly to right.

Brett worked his way out of a bases-loaded jam which he brought on with his own wildness in the fifth. After retiring the first two Boston batters, the Sox lefty walked Burleson, gave up a single to Doug Griffin and walked Fred Lynn. But Brett forced Carl Yastrzemski to bounce out to Brohamer.

Lakers job to West

INGLEWOOD Calif. — Less than two years after he tearfully announced his retirement as a player, former NBA superstar Jerry West became the fifth head coach in the 16-year history of the Los Angeles Lakers Thursday, replacing Bill Sharman, who will remain with the club as general manager Pete Newell's assistant.

In accepting Lakers owner Jack Kent Cooke's multi-year contract offer, the 38-year-old West — who virtually has done nothing but play golf the past two years — settled his $6 million lawsuit filed against Cooke last Oct. 7.

The suit stemmed from an oral agreement West said he had with Cooke for a lifetime job of some sort with the Lakers. After West's unexpected retirement, however, Cooke assertedly refused to honor the agreement.

Terms of West's contract as the new Lakers coach were not disclosed and the flamboyant Cooke was not in attendance at the news conference where the signing of West was announced. It was in the same Forum room in which West announced on Oct. 3, 1974, that he would not play another season because "the older you get the harder it is."

My differences with Mr. Cooke have been settled, West said when asked if he had dismissed his litigation. "We have no differences now."

Sharman, who coached the Lakers to their only NBA championship in 1972, failed to get Los Angeles into the playoffs the past two seasons.

Directly after West's retirement as a player, the Lakers finished last in the five-team Pacific Division with a 10-52 record in 1975.

Despite the addition of 72 superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Lakers missed the playoffs again last season with a 40-42 record, finishing behind Golden State, Seattle and Phoenix.

Needless to say, I'm extremely happy, said the emotional West whose eyes were misty. "I think it's every professional basketball player's dream to come back and become the head coach of his former team. That was mine."

A lifetime All-Star, West was the Most Valuable Player in the 1972 All-Star game. While he never won the NBA's MVP award, he finished runner-up in the voting three times. He earned the nickname "Mr. Clutch" for his brilliant last minute performances, stealing the ball and scoring in close games. He is the NBA's all-time leading playoff scorer with 1,157 points, a 29.1 average second only to Abdul-Jabbar's 29.7.

He finished his NBA career as the league's third all-time regular season scorer with 25,192 points. His 27.0 regular season scoring average is the fifth highest in the league's history.

Wei wins twice in San Diego meet

SAN DIEGO — Arlington High School tennis star Paul Wei defeated previously unbeaten Mark Nicholson of Sacramento, Calif., 6-3, 6-2 in the fourth day of the National City Boys Playoffs Thursday as Chicago moved into third place in the team standings.

Wei, who owns a 31 record in singles matches here, teamed up with Kreg Yingst of Libertyville to stop Karl and Kurt Richter of Sacramento 6-4, 6-3 in their doubles match. Wei and Yingst are undefeated in three doubles matches.

Wei set to begin his senior year at Arlington is playing No. 1 singles for the Chicago team, which also boasts such area standouts as Bob Fui and Kerry Westberg.

Chicago, with 70 points, is two behind San Diego and seven in back of first place Atlanta. Wei and his teammates will meet Atlanta in the final match Saturday.

Massengale leads Hartford Open

WETHERSFIELD Conn. — Rik Massengale, a winner just once in seven years on the PGA tour, shot a six-under par 65 to grab the first round lead Thursday in the $210,000 Greater Hartford Open.

Massengale, a 29-year-old Texan, missed only one green in build up a two-stroke lead on the field, which is seeking a $12,000 top prize, highest in the tournament's 25-year history.

That's the closest I've hit my wedge in some time, he said after blistering the back nine with five of his birdies. "And on this course, you sure do use your wedge a lot."

A formidable quartet of J. C. Sneed, Al Wall Jr., Chu Chu Rodriguez and Billy Casper were at 67, two shots behind Massengale.

Ten players were grouped at 69, including gallery favorites Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino and 64-year-old Sam Snead, uncle of J. C.

While many players matched or bettered par, the 6,500-yard Wethersfield Country Club course did not take the beating it usually does. Stiff winds early in the day accounted for the relatively high scores.

Dave Stockton, who won the tourney in 1974 with a 16-under par total and who is coming off an impressive win in the PGA Championship, shot 76. Defending champ Don Bies came in with a one-over 72.

Spaniards beat U.S. in team golf

GLENEAGLES Scotland — Spanish teenager Severiano Ballesteros scored a convincing 3 and 1 victory over British Open champion Johnny Miller Thursday in leading Spain to a 4-0 shut out of the top-ranked United States quartet in the $45,000 Double Diamond World team match play golf classic.

The 19-year-old Ballesteros, outgunned by the Californian in the last round of the British championship, said "If Miller had played like that in the Open he would have lost."

The Spaniards spanked the favored Americans in their Group Two clash, with Manuel Piñero defeating 1975 U.S. champion Lou Graham 2 and 1, Salvador Balbuena downing Dave Hill by one hole and Antonio Garrido beating Mark Hayes by the same margin.

After playing for the first time since injuring his hand in a motorcycle accident three weeks ago and suffering from jet lag after arriving Wednesday morning, was four over par before he plunged to defeat by driving into the bushes at the 17th hole.

But the 29-year-old Californian refused to write off his team's chances despite the whitewash.

"One defeat doesn't make the Americans the underdogs for the rest of the week," he commented. "But these Spaniards are good and had local knowledge of the course we didn't possess."

Team Tennis attendance up in '76

NEW YORK — World Team Tennis announced Thursday the league attendance reached a record 883,144 spectators for the recently completed season, representing a 32 per cent increase over 1975.

The figures average out to 4,033 fans a game for the 219 matches. Last season the league drew 503,858 for 165 playing dates, an average of 3,053.

WTT president Larry King said the league "was overwhelmed" by the increased tennis interest. He said "We knew we were going to grow, but I don't think we anticipated how fast we would move. Our growth this year exceeded our most optimistic forecasts. In addition, the teams are up nearly 80 per cent in gross dollars."

The attendance figures do not include the crowd of 12,581 that watched the nationally televised East-West All-Star match from Oakland, or the current playoff matches.

A one-night attendance record was set on July 8 when 13,492 people watched Phoenix, with Chris Evert, play Pittsburgh, with Evonne Goolagong.

Penn State grid coach more concerned with love

NEW YORK, (UPI) — On Sunday, Joe Paterno will gather his Penn State players around him in the locker room, greet them for the new season and talk to them for maybe an hour.

It won't be one of those rah-rah speeches. That isn't Joe Paterno's style.

More likely he'll start by saying the next few weeks won't be easy, they'll be tough, but that he and his assistant coaches will try to judge everyone fairly and underestimate no one. Joe Paterno will tell his players they must have people's respect not only as athletes but as human beings, and that two of the most important elements it takes for a good football team are camaraderie and love.

That's right, love. The same thing the late Vince Lombardi talked about whenever they'd ask him what was it that made his Green Bay teams so special.

Where Paterno differs from Lombardi is in his approach to winning. It isn't the last word with Paterno, although he wants to win, too. Some doubt exists as to whether Lombardi originated the phrase "winning is everything" but there's no doubt he firmly believed in it. Paterno does not. At least not to that degree.

"I can't buy that," he says. "It can't be everything."

More important than winning to Paterno is the effort his players make, and maybe that strikes you as nothing more than plain old hair-splitting, but actually it isn't. Joe Paterno simply is saying that nothing, not even victory itself, is more gratifying than the pure, clean effort and excitement of trying to achieve it, and on that count you've got to go along with him 100 per cent.

"The attempt to win is everything," he says. "I don't say winning doesn't mean anything. I'd feel I wasn't doing my job if I don't work very hard and try to win. But if we don't win, I don't feel that means we've been a complete failure."

Joe Paterno doesn't have a lot to worry about from that standpoint. He's starting his 11th year at Penn State and no major college head coach at his present job a minimum of five years has a better won-and-lost record than he has. Joe Paterno has a better record than anybody you name, Frank Kush, Bo Schembechler, Bear Bryant, Woody Hayes, Darrell Royal or anybody else.

His percentage of 835 based on 94 victories, 13 losses and one tie in 10 years at Penn State and to give you an idea of how good it is, the highest percentage ever compiled by anybody was the .881 posted in 13 years at Notre Dame by the late Knute Rockne, who some still consider the greatest coach ever.

If you ask Joe Paterno how much his own won-and-lost record counts with him, he says not very much, and the way he says you know he's not trying to be blasé or anything like that, he's only saying what he feels.

"In my business," he says, "You're only as good as your last game. You can't sit back and talk about what has gone before. If you start looking back, you're in trouble. I'm more concerned with what I'm going to do in the next 10 years than what I did in the last 10."

Wouldn't he care to surpass Knute Rockne's record some day. Leave the game when he's all finished with the best record of any college coach who had ever been in it?

"That would be something," agrees Paterno, "but it isn't the most important thing. I really feel my first responsibility is to my family. I have five children, all under 13 and God has been good to us. They are all fine, healthy children."

"All of them don't follow football that closely. Some go to the games; some don't. One of my boys, Joseph, is very interested. The oldest boy David, is more interested in soccer. If I can come out of all this a good father and a decent coach, that will mean more to me than anything else."

One of the things about Joe Paterno that takes him out of the common mold of most coaches; is his readiness to acknowledge there is another world outside college football. He maintains a lively interest in what's going on everywhere, not only in sports. Joe Paterno even can laugh at himself more easily than most coaches. He likes to tell a story of an episode a few years ago involving two of his players, Bruce Bannon, a senior and All-American defensive end, and Greg Murphy, a sophomore from Brooklyn playing behind Bannon. The New England Patriots of the National Football League were after Paterno at the time; dangling a six-figure offer and hoping to sweet talk him into coming with them.

"Someone asked Murph whether he thought I'd leave," Joe Paterno says, laughing, "and he said, 'I don't care what Coach Paterno does, I'm just glad Bruce Bannon is leaving.'"

Sheridan offers distaff chase at Arlington Park

Mrs. Gertrude Leviton's Gala Lil, undisputed queen of the Maryland thoroughbred circuit, has been assigned high weight of 124 pounds by racing secretary and handicapper Guy C. Klank for Saturday's $100,000 added Sheridan Handicap at Arlington Park.

Ken Opstein's Summertime Promise, one of North America's leading four-year-old fillies, is next on the roster of 23 fillies and mares with 120 pounds, followed by G. M. Holtzinger's Dancers Countess, who was given 119 pounds for the mile and one-quarter dash.

The historic Sheridan Handicap, which is up for its fifty-second running this year, ranks as the distaff championship of the Midwest. It will be contested for members of turfdom's fairer sex for the first time in history.

Other top distaffers sparking the Sheridan Handicap list are Meryl Ann Tanz's Our First Delight, 117 pounds, Alice H. Chandler's Nicosia, 115 pounds, Albert M. Stall's Regal Rumor, 115 pounds, Dozac Stable's Roger's Choice, 115 pounds, and Cragwood Stable's Javamine, 113.

Gala Lil surpassed the $200,000 plateau in career earnings this season by virtue of capturing eight of 12 outings (four of them in stakes) for over $106,000 in purse money.

The Bernard P. Bond trained four-year-old is fresh from victory in Pimlico's $25,000 added Lady Baltimore Handicap, in which she conceded from nine to 22 pounds to her rivals in the 1-1/16 miles attraction.

Earlier in 1976, Gala Lil won the Getsha Handicap, Valley Forge Handicap, and the Haddonfield Handicap. Last season the little miss took down honors in the Dogwood Stakes and All Brandy Handicap to ignite a banner $108,000 three-year-old campaign.

Summertime Promise, who sports earnings of over $149,000 in 1976, has won Hawthorne's Indian Maid Handicap and the Apple Blossom Handicap at Oaklawn Park.

Crimson King Farm's T.V. Vixen, a triple stakes heroine at the meeting, was originally nominated to the Sheridan, but was later declared by trainer Peter Salmen Jr.

Must See To Appreciate

'Adequate' Bears fail to excite some readers

The worst thing the Chicago Bears could have done to their fans was win their first three exhibition games. It's actually a lot worse than if they had lost them all, because now the fans are going to be expecting great things from a team that can't deliver.

Face the facts. This year's Bear team is the same as last year's team that went nowhere. The personnel is the same, the coach is the same, the general manager is the same. The quarterback problem hasn't really changed any, and it may be even worse. If the Bears expect to survive on the arm of Bob Avellini they're in for a rude awakening. Walter Payton is too injury-prone to be able to help the team consistently. And the defense is sadly overrated.

The simple fact is that the Bears are an adequate team that could be lucky to break even this year, but they are not a contender and their fans should not get their hopes up.

T. J. Propst
Hoffman Estates
ALL THAT GLITTERS

Dear editor:

The preseason buildup for the Bears is a curious thing indeed. Optimism is always a commendable asset for the deprived, especially Chicago sports fans, and Bear loyalists are plenty deprived. But years and years of broken promises should warn the fans that what glitters in the late summer is not very often gold in the late autumn.

John Stayce

BEARS WILL SURPRISE

Sports editor:

The Chicago Bears will play an exciting brand of football this year and, I predict, they will be in the playoff fight right to the end. They might even land a berth. They will surprise a lot of people since nobody expects them to win. People are too accustomed to losers in this town.

Ed Müller

GOOD WINTER AHEAD

Fans Forum:

Chicago sports fans can look forward to an exciting winter of hockey, basketball and football. The signing of big-name stars like Bobby Orr and Artis Gilmore should make the Hawks and Bulls a lot more interesting, if not better teams, which is always questionable. And the Bears have shown in pre-season that they could be an exciting, competitive team.

Like everybody else, I have been getting tired of the summer and the Cubs and Sox. Those teams are so bad it's embarrassing. I can't wait until winter.

BRING ON THE KIDS

Dear Fans Forum:

It won't be long before the high school sports season begins and for our family that's the best news yet. We're sick of the professionals and there's something very welcome about those Friday Nights when the youngsters play. I guess there's a need for professional sports for some people, but we can do without them entirely.

Defending national champs lacking superstar talent; Sooner coach concerned

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Barry Switzer looked over his 1976 Oklahoma football team this week and expressed hope momentum gained en route to the national championship last season will offset a lack of established superstars.

Switzer greeted 124 candidates, including 37 lettermen, who put on game clothes for the photographers. Fall drills, in temperatures sure to be around 100, begin Thursday.

Switzer, now 32-1-1, said his fourth season as Sooner head coach is the most uncertain he has faced. He took over a 1973 team that had been socked with probation and took it to a 10-0-1 season that surprised nearly everyone but the coach and the team.

"In 1973 I really expected to win eight or nine ball games because of the talent we had," he said. "I had won some ball games."

Reasons included a young running back named Joe Washington, brothers Leroy and Dewey Selmon joining their older brother Lucious in the defensive line, defensive end Jimbo Elrod and receivers Tucker Owens and Billy Brooks.

"We knew they were going to be super," he said.

"Now, this year, the thing that really might give us an edge is what we've accomplished, the momentum from the last three years," Switzer said. "We won't have young players like the Selmons, no super running back like Joe."

"It has to be a year of more concern, more uncertainty," he said. "The fact that we've lost the edge in our talent."

Switzer said the Big Eight Conference is sure to be more balanced and tougher this year, with Nebraska a particularly fearsome foe. The Huskers have great talent, backed up by solid depth, he said.

Spring practice, because of 22 injuries, provided little opportunity to evaluate this year's team. Among veterans coming off injuries are full-backs Jimmy Culbreath and George Cumby, offensive tackle Mike Vaughn, linebacker Bill Dalke, and defensive linemen Anthony Bryant, Phil Tabor and Richard Murray.

The position Switzer played, center, will receive a lot of attention.

"When you start out the offensive line, that's the position I worry about first, particularly with the kind of defenses we face, the nose-guard defense," he said.

"It's difficult to find a guy who can snap the ball and fires off at the same time, sort of like chewing gum and talking," he said. "He also has to be in a balanced stance, he doesn't have his feet staggered. Lots of guys, when you square them up, they are not so good."

Among those expected to receive a look are junior Joe Curtis, freshman Bill O'Gara and seniors Mike Spencer and Kevin Craig.

Detroit Lions 'better', hope to catch Vikings

by RICHARD L. SHOK

PONTIAC Mich. (UPI) — Having convinced themselves they can beat the Minnesota Vikings on the field, the Detroit Lions hope this is the year they finally overtake them in the standings.

It was only two seasons ago that Detroit ended a 17-game losing streak against Minnesota — and proved it was no fluke by winning one of their two games last year.

But the Vikings were still ahead of the 7-7 Lions in the NFC Central Division standings. It was the seventh season in a row the two clubs have wound up 12 as the one-time "Black and Blue Division" has turned into the "Cut and Dried Division."

First place is the immediate goal for Coach Rick Forzano. After his Lions clinch the division title and an elusive playoff to think of the Super Bowl.

"You have to win your division and get in the playoffs before you can win the Super Bowl," Forzano says. "We have a long range goal to win the Super Bowl, an intermediate range goal winning the division and a short range goal winning the next game."

The veterans have seen just enough playing time to keep them sharp this summer and the Lions record has suffered for it, but two factors indicate the club is stronger.

It is no longer inviting every other club's cuts in for a quick look and other teams are picking up Detroit's rejects.

That may be a good observation, Forzano said. But I don't know if it's valid at this stage of the game because other teams aren't claiming very many players either. There haven't been that many cuts yet.

But I do know this: we are a better football team. The draft helped and we are a very solid. A lot depends on how bad James Hunter's knee is. It's a big plus if it's healthy.

Hunter from Grambling was Detroit's top draft pick and is expected to play somewhere in the offensive back field along with veteran Lem Barney, who now has 51 interceptions in his nine seasons, plus either Left John Dickerson or Charlie West.

Detroit's biggest needs heading into the offseason were a crunching full back and a flying wide receiver. They drafted Lawrence Gaines, a 240-pound crusher from Wyoming to play full back if 1969 Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens can't return from a knee injury that caused him to miss all last season.

Gaines was Detroit's second first-round pick the one it got from Los Angeles instead of Cullen Bryant for Ron Jester.

The Lions went the trade route to get a top class receiver to go with Larry Walton hoping to come back from a knee injury by sending then No. 1 choice in this year's draft to Buffalo for J. D. Hill.

And speaking of Hills rookie David Hill from Texas A&I promises to give the Lions its first capable substitute at tight end since the club drafted Charlie Sanders in 1968.

Forzano is also high on Russ Bollinger, a 255-pound offensive tackle from Long Beach State picked in the third round.

Two other drafters have potential but because of injury or players ahead of them guard Ken Long of Purdue and middle linebacker John Woodcock of Hawaii will have trouble making the team.

Three players who will have no problem surviving will be Greg Landry, Bill Munson and Joe Reed the trio of No. 1 quarterbacks. All have played first string for Detroit at one time or another during the past two seasons.

Landry and Munson are coming back from injuries and Forzano has given all three equal playing time in his efforts to let them determine which of them will start the regular season.

Detroit surprised by choosing Lynn Boden, a tackle from South Dakota State as its No. 1 choice a year ago. The youngster got a chance to play because of injuries to others and showed All-Pro potential.

Albie Taylor became Detroit's all-time leading ground-gainer last year (1,297 yards on 165 rushes) and returns to lead Lion rushers again.

Tackle Herb Ovis led a Detroit defense season and it appears defense will determine how Detroit does again this season.

Johnson just needs luck

Once Bart Johnson was so disgusted with his pitching that he tried to become an outfielder.

Now, minus the high kick which took away his speed and control, and with new confidence plus a curve, he could become the pitching star of the Chicago White Sox.

Credit the change to Sox manager Paul Richards, as well as Johnson himself.

Early this season Johnson kicked so high in his delivery that his left foot sometimes touched his glove, obscured his vision of the plate and forced him to throw at less than full velocity. He had to rely on his fastball because he had no confidence that he could throw his fast curve for a strike.

That was when Richards took charge. "I had to let him find out he needed help," Richards said. "When I taught him to cut down on his kick, he listened."

The change was almost immediate. "I figured I had to listen," Johnson said. "I was shortarming the ball because I didn't have time to bring my whole arm around. I have better balance with a short kick and my control is better because I can see the target longer."

His confidence in his curve grew too because of Richards. He had relied on his fastball as an "out" pitch and the batters expecting the pitch, leed off.

"He's got to throw the first curve for strikes," Richards said. "Or he isn't going to be pitching."

Johnson did, using the curve on as many as 60 per cent of his pitches in some games and getting it over for strikes with his new view of the plate. The change also took away the confidence of rival batters that they'd see nothing but fastballs in tight situations.

The results produced a pitcher who said "I'm back to where I was in 1974," when he won 10 games and lost only four in less than half a season with the Sox.

"There's nothing wrong with my head," Johnson said. "When the manager told me what to do, I did it, because I could see that what I was doing wasn't working."

Johnson learned something else from Richards this season — the necessity to pitch with determination at all times.

This came after he had opened a game by striking out the side, making him so "overconfident" that he eased up and was hit hard in the next inning. "I said a few words to him," Richards said mildly, not an apt description of what he actually told the pitcher.

"He was mad," Johnson said. "He told me there was no way they should hit me like that." Johnson "messed his hair up after that, used his hard curve frequently and subsequently pitched a complete game and a shutout. Johnson's performance this year is another square on his checkered baseball career. In 1971 he had an earned run average of 2.93, winning 12 games and saving 14, but in 1972, disgusted when his ERA soared to 9.22, he went off to Appleton, Wis. to play in the outfield.

A year later, returning to pitching, his season was ruined by a knee injury, but in 1974 he showed his potential. He missed the 1975 season with a back injury and was a question mark when this season began.

Richards let him go his own way until it became obvious that Johnson's way wouldn't work. Then the 68-year-old manager, acclaimed for his talents developing pitchers stepped in.

Johnson has a 9-11 won-lost record this season, but not to Richards' figures. "The guy hasn't had a break all year," Richards said. "There's been broken bat hits and bat handle hits. With a little luck, he could have 15 wins. They get those ground balls through the infield and that's been the story in most of his losing games."

"In all my years in baseball nobody ever has been willing to take a pitcher from me," Richards said. "I don't know why. But Bart Johnson could pitch for anybody."

The way Johnson's pitching now, the chances are nobody will get a chance to take him away from Richards. He'll stay with the White Sox.

Thompson seeks to form 'agricultural districts'

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson Thursday called for the establishment of special "agricultural districts" in Illinois to protect the state's prime farmland from development.

In a speech to the Illinois Agricultural Assn., Thompson said, "We must consciously endeavor to protect highly productive farmland from development, condemnation and other forms of destruction."

Thompson also said the real estate taxes "must not be allowed to become confiscatory." He said he favors assessing farmland adjacent to metropolitan areas on the basis of its agricultural use rather than its potential for residential development.

Thompson to be keynoter

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson will be keynote speaker Aug. 29 at the 12th District Republican Leadership Conference.

The conference also will include a panel discussion by U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th; U.S. Rep. Ed Derwinski, R-4th; and U.S. Rep. Henry Hyde, R-6th.

The conference will be at 1:30 p.m. at the Arlington Park Hilton in Arlington Heights.

The third district is comprised of all of Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships and parts of Palatine, Wheeling and Maine townships. The committee endorses candidates for the state Senate and House.

Sam Young opens office

2 take up GOP standard; Ford, Carter vow debates

by HERALD News Services
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity." The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his campaign for a White House term of his own. "I'm ready, eager, to go before the American people and debate the real issues face-to-face with Mr. Carter."

"We want Ford, We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords, hands clenched above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Reagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

October opening for senior citizens unit?

Des Plaines' new senior citizens' center will open in mid-October if it is able to raise $2,000 to $3,000.

The center will be in an old parsonage at 1396 Thacker St. that is being leased to the Des Plaines Park District by the Immanuel Lutheran Church for $1 a year.

David Markworth, director of parks and recreation, Thursday said the center has received commitments of about $3,000, but needs $5,000 to $6,000 in order to open its doors.

THE MONEY IS needed to make improvements that are required in the city's building and fire code for all buildings that are used by the public.

The improvements will include the installation of fire retardant materials around the basement, furnace and stairways. Exit doors in the building also must be reversed so they open toward the outside, and exit and emergency lighting must be installed throughout the center.

Markworth, who also is the chairman of the center's board of directors, said officials are attempting to obtain donations from local clubs and organizations.

"What we're doing now is contacting civic clubs and organizations to find out what their financial commitments will be," he said. "We would certainly hope to have the amount of money we now have substantially increased within the next month."

HE SAID although about $13,000 is needed to remodel, furnish and begin operations at the center, all of the money is not needed initially. "If we get $5,000 to $6,000 I think the rest could be raised during the year after the senior citizens' center is opened," he said.

Needed furnishings at the center include chairs, tables, sofas, a television set, a gas stove, a desk and coffee pots.

The center will provide the city's estimated 6,000 senior citizens with a place to meet friends, participate in recreation activities and obtain assistance with health, housing, financial and employment matters.

The four-bedroom facility will have a television room, crafts room and a reading room with shuffleboard courts and picnic facilities in the back yard.

Officials are attempting to organize a group of 20 volunteers to staff the center when it opens. Volunteers would work shifts every week or two from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., or from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Residents interested in helping operate the center should call Rosemary Reinke at 824-0778. Those interested in donating materials or money to the center should call Gil Horn at 824-3542, and residents willing to help remodel the center should call Ferd Arndt at 824-7593.

Crime rate drops 10% in 6 months

Crime in Des Plaines dropped 10 per cent during the first half of 1976, but police are uncertain if the decrease signals the start of a trend.

Lt. Michael Clark said he has "a gut feeling this (a crime decrease) will not continue" throughout the last few months of the year.

Reported crime in Des Plaines fell from 1,607 during the first six months of 1975, to 1,449 in the first half of this year.

Although criminal damage to property, or vandalism, has jumped about 9 per cent from 260 to 284 cases, overall major crimes have decreased in number this year.

Burglary is down 13 per cent from 188 cases to 166. Major theft has dropped 21 per cent from 358 cases to 295. Assault cases increased from 16 to 18 cases while battery cases decreased from 76 to 68.

AUTO THEFT has dropped from 44 cases to 42, while arson cases have jumped from six to 16. Sex offenses have taken a 7 per cent turn upward, increasing from 13 to 26. Only one rape case was reported in the first six months, both last year and in 1976.

Des Plaines Police Chief Arthur

Hintz said he is "very pleased" with the 10 per cent reduction in crime and hopes crime statistics "decreased all the time."

He said he was not sure what caused the reduction, adding that stability of the city's growth may be a factor.

"Des Plaines is pretty well stabilized in terms of growth. We're not like Hoffman Estates or Mount Prospect where you're growing quickly or annexing new land," Hintz said.

CLARK SAID another factor in the low crime rate is increased citizen awareness of such crimes as vandalism.

"Citizens are becoming more aware of crime in their community. Now it's getting to the point where neighbors

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of government," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the trans-Pacific flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Wendy's carnival is 'to help people live'

Eleven-year-old Wendy Lynne Copeland reached over and placed the small, white envelope in my hand. I flipped it over and read the backside.

In neatly printed letters, the envelope said: "I had my carnival against dystrophy because..."

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystrophy. I want to help people live."

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

Five cents. That's all the admission will cost to this very special Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy that will be conducted in Shelley's honor.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 1 p.m. at 1034 Tulip Way in the Pinehurst Manor subdivision of Palatine. Those homes are located just northeast of the Rand Road and Dundee Road intersection.

Bolek unsure of manager need

Des Plaines Mayor Charles J. Bolek said "at this time" he is not sure whether the city needs a city manager, but expects to make a recommendation to the city council on the matter within 30 to 60 days.

Bolek, who has been mayor for about two weeks, said he'll know better the needs to the city after more time in office.

"I'd say in a period of 30 to 60 days, I'll have a better idea about it," he said. "It would probably be desirable to have someone in that position to maintain the continuity of the operation. But my association with the city for 11 years has made me conversant with the problems and operation."

BOLEK, WHO succeeded Herbert H. Behrel, the city's mayor for more than 19 years, will serve in the city's top administrative position until the 1977 municipal election. He has not decided whether to seek a full term as mayor.

Bolek said before being elected mayor by the city council that he was in favor of the city changing to a part-time mayor and hiring a full-time city manager or administrator to oversee the operations of the city.

Des Plaines operates with a full-time mayor handling the city's day-today administrative duties. Although Behrel held no other job while serving as mayor, Bolek is continuing to work as president of Jeco Industries, Des Plaines, while serving in the $25,000-a-year post.

Bolek said as mayor he is working about 20 to 25 hours a week in his Civic Center office as well as attending meetings in the evening hours.

THE MAYOR SAID he would favor adopting the city manager form of government by ordinance, rather than by placing it on the ballot as a referendum next spring.

"The city council is well aware of the problems and it would be much easier to do it by ordinance," he said.

Hay Associates, Chicago, a consulting firm hired by the city recently recommended the city hire a city manager because of the heavy load of "political duties" that keeps the mayor busy. The firm said city government would be more efficient with a full-time administrator whose only responsibility is running city hall on a day-to-day basis.

2 towns asked to fix safety woes

The River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education has approved letters outlining safety problems at two schools.

The board Tuesday approved sending a letter to the village of Mount Prospect urging installation of a traffic light at Euclid Avenue and Burning Bush Lane for the safety of students walking to Indian Grove School, 1340 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

Until the light is installed, the board requested stationing of a crossing guard at that intersection.

The board also approved sending a letter to the village of Des Plaines and to the county, informing them that a potential hazard could be created by cars turning onto Gregory Street from River Road to go to Nipper School, 1101 E. Gregory St., Des Plaines.

Mrs. Rosen said road markings may be needed as a warning that cars will be turning there because the entrance to Gregory is on a curve on River Road, which has a 50-m.p.h. speed limit.

Razzle dazzle — one man's secret to racing success

by JOE SWICKARD

Playboy Bunnies on horseback? Five thousand free butter tops for the ladies? Pro basketball players going against a team of jockeys?

What's next at Arlington Park? — an exploding Tote Board that sends off rockets and sounds sirens when some railbird hits the Daily Double?

Has Bill Veeck been signed as a special consultant at the track? Nope. It's Joseph Joyce, chairman of the board and Madison Square Garden senior vice president, which are deceptively gray titles for a man with a flair for flash and splash.

JOYCE'S WARDROBE fits his title rather than his actions. Instead of race track plaids and two-tone patent leather platforms, he favors three-button suits and black wingtips.

But don't let the New York corporate image fool you, Joyce has plenty of ideas cooking.

"We want people to have a good time out at Arlington Park. A good time — win or lose," he said while relaxing in his Cadillac parked in the backstretch area.

Maybe that's the key to the success he has had in the few weeks since he has taken over the day-to-day operation of the track. He's walking the grounds and stopping in the barns instead of having to be tracked down in the maze of offices under the grandstands.

"WE WANT TO get our name around. We want to focus attention on it," he said.

Joyce said the key to success in "this crazy business" is getting the customers to come out and enjoy themselves. And in the serious world of big business it helps if the customers enjoy themselves.

"We want the occasional track-goer out more often. If he comes out three times a year, let's try to make it five or six times a year. I'll admit it, we're in competition for the leisure dollar — the same money spent on movies, theaters and concerts," he said.

If that means keeping the patrons happy, you have to admit that he's trying to do just that.

THE GRASSY courtyard by the paddock area has been opened to the public and fitted with tables where the customers can relax. Joyce is thinking of getting some entertainment like Dixieland bands to soothe the frazzled nerves between the races.

"I'm trying to set up some hurdle or steeplechases as a 10th race. You don't get to see them too often. The last time anyone saw them here was in 1954. It would be special, that's why it would be a 10th race," he said.

Joyce may even give life to track-developer Curly Brown's dream of polo at Arlington Park.

"I hope to get some polo games, or more accurately, matches out here. I've been trying to do that," he said.

THE PROMOTIONAL gimmicks and stunts, as Joyce sees it, are just basic parts of selling a product to the public. Basic business sense decrees that the seller must get the buyer to try the product and then keep coming back for more.

Prior to joining the Madison Square Garden Corp., Joyce, an attorney for 17 years, served as executive vice president of the New York State Off Track Betting Corp. He said off track betting will probably be legalized in Illinois, but he isn't laying odds on when it will happen.

"It's coming — but when, I don't know," he said, adding, it must be "properly structured, and I stress that structured."

Business beckoned and it was time to leave the Cadillac conference room and talk to horsemen gathering for Friday's Illinois-bred yearling auction being held at the track.

ONE LAST QUESTION: Back in law school did he ever think he'd be running a race track someday?

"Nope, I never even thought about it. But if I had, I'm sure I would have thought it was going to be fun. Under that three-button suit coat of Joseph Joyce beats a heart of hoopla. And he's off and running."

Western Union files fraud suit against cab head

A Cook County Grand Jury Thursday reviewed evidence in an investigation into allegations that the president of a Des Plaines taxi company since February has bilked Western Union Telegraph Co. out of $530,000 in money orders.

George Monoco, an attorney for the financial crimes section of the Cook County State's Attorney's office, Thursday confirmed that the grand jury is conducting a probe into allegations against Richard T. Vana, 966 Howard St., Des Plaines. Vana is president of the Martin Cab Co., 1310 Miner St., Des Plaines.

"All I can tell you is that the grand jury is looking into evidence, and that there has been a court order restraining Mr. Vana from disposing of any of his assets," Monoco said. The investigation began earlier this week. Monoco would not say how long the probe will continue.

NAMED IN a civil suit brought by the telegraph company, Vana is accused of defrauding the company by filing for money orders that were not covered by funds Vana should have collected. Vana contracted with the telegraph company to be its agent from the taxi cab headquarters, the company said.

An attorney for the Martin Cab Co., Jules Gershon, Thursday said the civil suit has not been heard, and no court date is set.

"Western Union has made a lot of allegations about some great sums of money involving the cab company," he said. "My initial reaction is that I don't know how a cab company can get involved with Western Union."

Vana could not be reached for comment.

Panel tells ways to keep Dist. 59 orchestra plan

Recommendations for maintaining an orchestra program in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 have been presented to the board of education by the orchestra study committee.

The committee's recommendations are:

- Consolidate instruction to a central school location, rather than at all schools throughout the district.

- Develop a program to involve parents in music education.

- Encourage private lessons for students during the second year of school instruction.

- Work toward a student-teacher ratio of 120 students per teacher to cut the per capita cost to about $135 from the current cost of about $200 per student.

- Continue recruiting students in the fourth and fifth grades.

- Consider including the string program as part of the district's gifted program.

The board plans to take action on the recommendations after receiving information about the possibility of implementing the suggested program in the fall.

are helping each other. If somebody is leaving for the afternoon, he'll ask a neighbor to watch things for him," Clark said.

Clark said the low rate is only temporary because "we've got too many drug-related crimes going on. Vandalism is still a problem."

by HERALD News Services
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity." The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his cam-

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Reagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity: it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

Revised ethics law 'workable,' says Bird

Wheeling's revised ethics ordinance contains a more "workable" definition of conflict of interest but strengthens other provisions, said Ira Bird, ethics committee chairman.

Bird met with village trustees Wednesday to review the proposed ordinance after Village Atty. John Burke said parts of it could be "vague and unenforceable."

Bird said the commission has "run into problems" with the present ordinance because of the definition of conflict of interest.

"We found we couldn't appoint an electrician to the electrical commission because it was in direct violation of the ordinance. We feel the revision keeps the intent of the present ordinance, but is more workable," he said.

THE PRESENT ETHICS ordinance prohibits anyone with a potential conflict of interest from serving on a village commission or committee. Any one working for a company in a field related to the business of the committee or commission could be in conflict of interest, even if the company does not do business in the village.

Under the proposed ordinance, anyone may be appointed to a commission or committee so long as they have no direct, personal interest in projects that might come before that commission or committee.

Burke said although the proposed ordinance's definition of "personal interest" is vague, Bird said the definition in the present ordinance "is a difficult thing to enforce."

"To me, the important thing is disclosure — that all action is in public. If it is public knowledge that an official has a personal interest, then it is up to the board and president to make a decision," he said.

Bird said that "no matter how we write the ordinance, it's not going to preclude people who won't make disclosures."

IDA V. O'REILLY, commission member, said the "whole thing about ethics is that it leaves so much up to judgment."

"People can make disclosures and we can only assume they're telling the truth," she said.

Bird said the proposed ordinance is "tightened up a bit" in several areas, including the policies on accepting gifts. The present ordinance prohibits gifts to employees or officials if they exceed $50 in value.

"With the new ordinance, a gift of any amount is a violation. That's what it's meant to be — any gift is illegal and unacceptable," he said.

Bird said the ethics commission believes that if any employee or village official "needs gifts to maintain his standard of living, either the village is not paying a proper salary or his standard of living is too high."

THE PROPOSED ordinance also prohibits appointed officials and employees from soliciting funds for political campaigns.

"We're not saying people can't get involved in political parties. It does mean that I can't go out and solicit money if I'm a member of the zoning board," he said.

Bird said the ethics ordinance doesn't prevent appointed officials from running for an elected post.

"If they want to run for office and this is a deterrent, then they will have to decide whether they want to be elected or appointed," he said.

Bird said the proposed ordinance is "tightened up a bit, but is also opened up from the standpoint that we can appoint qualified people to a position and not be in conflict" with the law.

Trustee Otis L. Hedlund, chairman of the village judiciary and purchasing committee, said the "main thrust" of the proposed ordinance is that if a conflict "is out in the open, that in itself will take care of most impropriety."

Hedlund said the proposed ordinance will be reviewed by the board at a committee meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at the village hall, 235 W. Dundee Rd.

Car only clue in mystery of body found in woods

by DANN GIRE

An abandoned car is the only key police have to the identification of an unidentified body found Thursday in Potawatomi Woods near the Dundee Road-Milwaukee Avenue intersection in Wheeling Township.

Police believe the man may have been the owner of an auto recently found in the Cook County Forest Preserve woods by forest preserve rangers. The auto was registered to John Drag, 37, but the address of Drag was not released by police.

The body was discovered at 2:30 p.m. Thursday by John Perdue of 1022 E. Village Ct., Des Plaines, while he was walking through the woods, police said.

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving "movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials."

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of government," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the transPacific flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Wendy's carnival is 'to help people live'

Eleven-year-old Wendy Lynne Copeland reached over and placed the small, white envelope in my hand. I flipped it over and read the backside.

In neatly printed letters, the envelope said: "I had my carnival against dystrophy because..."

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystrophy. I want to help people live."

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

Five cents. That's all the admission will cost to this very special Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy that will be conducted in Shelley's honor.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 1 p.m. at 1034 Tulip Way in the Pinehurst Manor subdivision of Palatine. Those homes are located just northeast of the Rand Road and Dundee Road intersection.

Lake Co. unit to vote today on rent subsidy application

An application for federal funds to provide rent subsidies to 150 families in Lake County is expected to be acted on today by the Lake County Housing Authority.

The authority will vote on a final form of an application to the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for rent subsidies under the Section Eight Program.

Funds would be available to the county in mid-October if the application is approved by the county and HUD.

Robert Cisek, director of the housing authority, said if the funding is approved, 150 families would be chosen from the county, excluding the Waukegan and North Chicago areas. Those two cities have their own housing authorities, Cisek said.

THE FAMILIES chosen then would have to find rental units in the county that meet HUD standards and fall within the rent limits established by HUD. The families would pay only 25 per cent of their total income for rent and utilities, with the remainder paid by federal funds, Cisek said.

"Let's say a family of four has an income of $7,200," Cisek said. "They qualify for a two-bedroom unit because they have two children. They could rent a unit with utilities for a total of $234 a month. They would pay $150 and the housing authority would pay $84 directly to the landlord."

To be eligible for the program, a family must fall within income guidelines established by HUD. The total family income plus 10 per cent of the value of the family's assets are computed. The total cannot exceed $9,900 for a family of one; $14,200 for a family of four; or $17,800 for a family of eight, Cisek said.

The closer the family income is to the limit, the less benefit they would receive from the program, Cisek said. "The majority of our applicants will have about one-half the income limit or less," Cisek said.

Priority will be given to county residents and working families, but the program is not restricted to those groups, Cisek said.

CISEK ESTIMATED that 20 to 30 per cent of the households in the county would be eligible for the rent subsidies, including most of the senior citizens in the county.

A major stumbling block to the program is the lack of moderate-income rental units in the county, Cisek said.

"I assure you there will be difficulty, especially in finding three- or four-bedroom apartments. The units are scarce and rents exceed the fair market rents allowable by HUD," the housing authority director said.

For rental units in buildings without elevators, rent limits range from $175 for a studio apartment to $306 for a four-bedroom apartment. Rent limits for buildings with elevators are 10 per cent higher, Cisek said.

MOST MUNICIPALITIES prefer apartment developments with a large percentage of one- and two-bedroom units, Cisek said. "There have not been a lot of three- and four-bedroom units built in the past several years," he added.

The housing authority probably will have to ask HUD to raise the rent limits 20 to 30 per cent, Cisek said.

"They are set at the lower level of the rental market in the six-county area. It might work in some parts of this county but not in most parts of the county," Cisek said.

The authority expects to start notifying county residents to fill out a pre-application form as soon as the HUD funds are approved.

$554,000 in tax warrants

Dist. 23 to get maximum loan to meet new budget

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will be required to borrow the maximum in tax anticipation warrants allowed by law to meet the $2.62 million budget approved for the 1976-77 school year.

The board of education Wednesday approved the budget, which calls for a 4 per cent increase in expenditures from last year's $2.52 million budget. The budget includes $110,000 in cuts approved by the board in April for this year.

The district will be borrowing $554,000 — the maximum allowed on tax anticipation warrants — to supplement the $2.47 million anticipated in revenue from property taxes, state aid and other sources.

The district also plans to borrow $91,000 from the working cash fund for the education fund. The working cash fund is expected to have $104,036, which can be loaned to the building and education fund. The working cash fund is a type of internal bank built up by the district.

THE DISTRICT expects a 6 per cent increase in tax revenue, from $776,083 last year to $823,867, which will result from an increase in the assessed valuation from $45.6 million to $54.2 million.

Because of the increased assessed valuation, the tax rate is expected to drop by at least eight cents from the 1975 rate of $2.59 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.51 per $100 assessed valuation. The education and building fund tax rates, included in the total tax rate, will be at the maximum approved by the voters — $1.72 per $100 assessed valuation.

The increase in tax revenue is expected to be offset by a decrease in state aid. State aid will drop by at least 9 per cent this year, from $919,313 last year to $836,719, said James Hendren, business manager. The loss in state aid results from the increased assessed valuation and a decrease in student enrollment.

State aid is partly figured on the assessed valuation per student, with districts having a higher assessed valuation per student receiving less money than those with a lower rate.

THE EDUCATION fund is budgeted at $1,999,594, a 1.66 per cent increase from last year's $1,966,955. The figure includes an estimate for teachers' salary increases, which are being negotiated for the 1976-77 school year.

The transportation fund showed the largest percentage of increase, 39 per cent, with $154,000 budgeted compared to last year's $110,545.

The building fund calls for expenditures of $172,350, a 16.7 per cent increase from last year's $147,735. The increase primarily resulted from utility bills.

The bond and interest fund is set for $223,000, compared to $224,000 last year and the retirement fund is budgeted for $41,500, compared to $40,000 last year.

550-home Rob Roy plan before county zoners

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals will conduct a 3 p.m. hearing today on a proposed 550-home subdivision to be built on the Rob Roy Golf Course.

The board will entertain a request by Centex Homes of Illinois Inc., to rezone the 200-acre golf course from half-acre to quarter-acre lots.

The hearing will be held at the Gary Morava Recreation Center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Centex officials also have requested that the City of Prospect Heights annex the golf course, now located in unincorporated Cook County.

Prospect Heights officials have asked the county zoning board of appeals to defer action on the rezoning request until the city has completed review of the plans.

IT WILL TAKE about six months before either the county or the city will complete a review and make a decision on the plans.

The zoning board will recommend action on the rezoning request to the Cook County Board, which will make the final decision.

Officials from Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect and Wheeling are expected to attend the hearing to voice their concerns about the project.

Centex officials have proposed building two-story and ranch-style homes on lots between 8,500 and 10,000-square-foot lots. The streets and cul-de-sacs will be constructed without storm sewers, curbs or sidewalks.

Chevy Chase golf course annex sought for homes

by BILL HURLEY

Owners of the Chevy Chase Country Club and surrounding areas east of Buffalo Grove are asking the village to annex the land and permit construction of a township and apartment complex on the golf course.

Owners presented plans for the first time to the plan commission Wednesday for the annexation of approximately 550 acres extending more than two miles east of the village limits. The proposed boundaries would include 646 acres, but annexation of the Chevy Chase subdivision and other isolated parcels is not planned at this time.

Robert Grossman of Associated Planners, Highland Park, prepared a report proposing the entire 646 acre parcel be developed to include 45 acres of single-family homes, 74 acres of apartments and 97 acres of townhouses. This would generate approximately 5,162 new Buffalo Grove residents.

Thirty-four per cent of the site which is already partially developed would be residential, 28 per cent parks and open space, 18 per cent industrial, 10 per cent commercial and 9 per cent ponds, streams, detention areas and flood plain.

BUFFALO GROVE plan commission members were noncommittal after their first look at plans this week, but cited several problems that may arise as barriers to annexation.

One of the major problems is that only about half the land proposed for annexation is designated for annexation on the village master plan, which recommends the village annex only as far east as Milwaukee Avenue and as far south in that area as the Lake-Cook county line.

Grossman said it would be to the village's advantage to annex the land because it would increase business and industrial tax bases and give Buffalo Grove a balance of uses. He also said it would bring Buffalo Grove two miles closer to Lake Michigan for a future water supply.

THE MASTER PLAN also recommends the golf course area remain a golf course, with less commercial zoning and more industry than being proposed for surrounding land.

Grossman said the golf course would have to be eliminated to provide fill to raise nearby land for housing developments. Much of the land is located on the flood plain, and planners hope to develop large detention areas through the present golf course land.

"The only way to make these lands work is to make the golf course disappear," he said.

He said multi-unit housing would have to be developed to make up for land lost because of the need for large detention areas. The report indicates total residential density would be 4.7 units per acre.

PARK OFFICIALS SAID the school and park donations proposed in the development plan would not be adequate.

Park District Comr. William Kiddle said the development would require a donation of about 32 acres for recreation use. He said only about 22 acres were being proposed, excluding the 149-acre forest preserve and additional water areas. He said forest preserves do not receive credit as park donations under village ordinances.

Grossman said there are about 40 acres of ponds and streams which he thinks should be counted toward a park donation.

"I had a little difficulty understanding (the park district's stand) because I do think there is such a thing as water recreation," he said.

KIDDLE ALSO questioned whether the land proposed for a seven-acre school site would be adequate for the number of students generated. Grossman's report indicates the development would generate 820 elementary school students and 246 high school students. He said Aptakisic-Tripp Dist. 102, which is anticipating serious financial problems in the next few years, would benefit financially.

Another problem raised at the meeting was that the land proposed for development is not entirely owned by the Johnson family, which is requiring the annexation and owns most of the property in the proposed development site.

A representative of the Chevy Chase Subdivision Homeowners Assoc. and a subdivision homeowner said they were worried they would be forced into annexation by Buffalo Grove. The proposed annexation would cause the subdivision to be completely surrounded by the village.

"How can one village and one landowner get together and decide what will happen to 200 innocent people who don't have a voice?" asked Gerald Roberts, 20 Columbus Pkwy., who also is a candidate for the Lake County Board. "We're going to get pulled into annexation — whether we like it or not — without having anything to say about it."

ROBERT AND MABEL Thoresen, 880 Prague Dr., treasurer of the homeowners group, were told the village could forcibly annex any property completely surrounded by it.

Comr. Stephen Goldspiel said he questioned the development of multiple-family developments because they are not selling well now.

"I really don't like the idea of zoning so much land R-9 or R-8 at a time when so many people are coming to us saying they can't build R-9 and R-8," he said.

Goldspiel also said he thought the traffic circulation designated on the plans was poor for such a development.

Grossman said the Johnsons hope to have the property annexed by the end of this year so they can begin the eight-year development project next year. The plan commission has not set a date for the next workshop session to review the proposed annexation and zoning.

190-acre rezoning on agenda today

The rezoning of 190 acres at the northeast corner of Euclid-Lake Avenue and Wheeling Road in Wheeling Township will be reviewed at 3 p.m. today by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

The acreage presently is zoned for single-family use. The proposed rezoning would change the designation to single-family that would allow more housing units per acre.

The zoning commissioners also will discuss a special-use request for portions of the same acreage.

Paul Marcy, secretary of the zoning board of appeals, declined to give added details about the proposed development. The land is owned by a family trust.

The meeting will be held at the Gary Morava Recreation center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Adults sought here for teen program

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau of Wheeling, is seeking single adults and married couples to participate in a transitional living program for teen-agers.

The program matches older teens, many of who are state wards, with local residents. The program is meant to help teen-agers live on their own.

Participating adults from the Northwest suburban area are given foster home licensing, financial reimbursement, training and supervision.

More information about the program is available by calling Michele Williams at Omni-House, 541-0190.

had been in the woods was available Thursday night, but a spokesman for the Cook County Sheriff's police said "It may have been some time. There wasn't much of the body left."

THE SPOKESMAN said identification of the body probably will be confirmed by examination of dental records. "because it's hard to say what happened to him because of the deterioration of the body."

The body was recovered by personnel from the sheriff's office, although the Cook County Forest Preserve Rangers will be conducting an investigation into the body's discovery.

Rangers blocked off the northwest entrance to the forest preserve Thursday afternoon, keeping curiosity seekers and visitors away from investigators on the scene.

The body was transferred from Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge to the Cook County Morgue.

Police said Thursday they do not know the cause of death.

An autopsy is scheduled today by the Cook County Coroner's office.

by HERALD News Services
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity!" The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his camaign for a White House term of his own. "I'm ready, eager, to go before the American people and debate the real issues face-to-face with Mr. Carter."

"We want Ford, We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords, hands clasped above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Reagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

Hockey players to be able to cut costs

Young hockey players in the Elk Grove Park District will have a chance this season to earn back at least part of the high cost of skating.

Because skating rinks rent for a minimum of $65 per hour, the district charges anywhere from $45 to $195 for membership in its hockey programs. And the membership fee does not cover the cost of skates, sticks, practice jerseys and pads that can add up to another $120 or more, said hockey director Tom Hunter.

"We've had families with as many as five boys in the program at one time," he added. "That's pretty expensive recreation."

This year, the boys can earn back part or all of their membership fees by selling raffle tickets or recruiting new team sponsors.

"BECAUSE OF the exorbitant price of ice time, hockey has to rely on a lot of fund-raisers," Hunter said. "We're hoping to motivate the kids and open up the program to a lot of people who haven't been able to afford it."

Registration is scheduled for 10 a.m. through 3 p.m. Saturday at the Lions Park Community Center, 180 Kennedy Blvd. When they register, the boys must pay at least half of the fee — $45 for two sessions of instruction for the 6- to 10-year-old novices, $55 for the 6- to 14-year-olds in the house division, $150 for the 6- to 10-year-old Mites and Squirts in the traveling league, $175 for the 11- to 14-year-old Bantams and Pee Wees and $195 for the 15- to 18-year-old Midgets and high school players.

They'll also receive enough $1 raffle tickets to match their membership fees and will be allowed to keep the proceeds from the tickets they sell.

IN ADDITION, a boy can skate for free in the house league if his family recruits a sponsor willing to donate $250 or in the traveling league if the sponsor will put up $500.

"Some of the north shore suburbs have gone this route and it worked for them," Hunter said. "We hope to avoid a lot of fund-raising activities during the winter time and to have enough money right off the bat to stay away from deficit spending."

The park district's traveling teams will play in the Northern Suburban League this year against squads from Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Des Plaines, Dundee, Barrington and Skokie.

New league rules require full face masks for all players, interior mouth guards for Bantam and higher levels and exterior mouth guards — the kind most dentists recommend — for the younger players.

For more information, call Hunter at 437-8740 or Ron Homola of the Elk Grove Amateur Hockey Assn. at 429-1721.

Body found in woods; car only clue

by DANN GIRE

An abandoned car is the only key police have to the identification of an unidentified body found Thursday in Polawatomi Woods near the Dundee Road-Milwaukee Avenue intersection in Wheeling Township.

Police believe the man may have been the owner of an auto recently found in the Cook County Forest Preserve woods by forest preserve rangers. The auto was registered to John Drag, 37, but the address of Drag was not released by police.

The body was discovered at 2:30 p.m. Thursday by John Perdue of 1022 E. Village Ct., Des Plaines, while he was walking through the woods, police said.

No estimate of how long the body had been in the woods was available Thursday night, but a spokesman for the Cook County Sheriff's police said "it may have been some time. There wasn't much of the body left."

THE SPOKESMAN said identification of the body probably will be confirmed by examination of dental records, "because it's hard to say what happened to him because of the

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of government," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the trans-Pacific flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Panel tells ways to keep Dist. 59 orchestra plan

Recommendations for maintaining an orchestra program in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 have been presented to the board of education by the orchestra study committee.

The committee's recommendations are:

- Consolidate instruction to a central school location rather than at all schools throughout the district.
- Develop a program to involve parents in music education.
- Encourage private lessons for students during the second year of school instruction.
- Work toward a student teacher ratio of 120 students per teacher to cut the per capita cost to about $175 from the current cost of about $200 per student.
- Continue recruiting students in the fourth and fifth grades.
- Consider including the string program as part of the district's gifted program.

The board plans to take action on the recommendations after receiving information about the possibility of implementing the suggested program in the fall.

Senior citizens center aiming for fall opening

Des Plaines' new senior citizens center will open in mid-October if it is able to raise $2,000 to $3,000.

The center will be in an old parsonage at 1396 Thacker St. that is being leased to the Des Plaines Park District by the Immanuel Lutheran Church for $1 a year.

David Markwoth, director of parks and recreation, Thursday said the center has received commitments of about $3,000 but needs $5,000 to $6,000 in order to open its doors.

THE MONEY IS needed to make improvements that are required in the city's building and fire code for all buildings that are used by the public.

The improvements will include the installation of fire retardant materials around the basement furnace and stairways. Exit doors in the building also must be reversed so they open toward the outside and exit and emergency lighting must be installed throughout the center.

Markwoth, who also is the chairman of the center's board of directors, said officials are attempting to obtain donations from local clubs and organizations.

"What we're doing now is contacting civic clubs and organizations to find out what their financial commitments will be," he said. "We would certainly hope to have the amount of money we now have substantially increased within the next month."

HE SAID although about $13,900 is needed to remodel, furnish and begin operations at the center, all of the money is not needed initially. If we get $5,000 to $6,000, I think the rest could be raised during the year after the senior citizens' center is opened," he said.

Needed furnishings at the center include chairs, tables, sofas, a television set, a gas stove, a desk and coffee pots.

The center will provide the city's estimated 6,000 senior citizens with a place to meet friends, participate in recreation activities and obtain assistance with health, housing, financial and employment matters.

The four-bedroom facility will have a television room, crafts room and a reading room with shuffleboard courts and picnic facilities in the back yard.

Officials are attempting to organize a group of 20 volunteers to staff the center when it opens. Volunteers would work shifts every week or two from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., or from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Residents interested in helping operate the center should call Rosemary Reinke at 824-0778. Those interested in donating materials or money to the center should call Gil Horn at 824-3542, and residents willing to help remodel the center should call Ferd Arndt at 824-7563.

Razzle dazzle — one man's secret to racing success

by JOE SWICKARD

Playboy Bunnies on horseback? Five thousand free halter tops for the ladies? Pro basketball players going against a team of jockeys?

What's next at Arlington Park — an exploding Tote Board that sends off rockets and sounds sirens when some railbird hits the Daily Double?

Has Bill Veck been signed as a special consultant at the track? Nope, it's Joseph Joyce, chairman of the board and Madison Square Garden senior vice president, which are deceptively gray titles for a man with a flair for flash and splash.

JOYCE'S WARDROBE fits his title rather than his actions. Instead of race track plaids and two-tone patent leather platform shoes, he favors three-button suits and black wingtips.

But don't let the New York corporate image fool you, Joyce has plenty of ideas cooking.

"We want people to have a good time out at Arlington Park. A good time — win or lose," he said while relaxing in his Cadillac parked in the backstretch area.

Maybe that's the key to the success he has had in the few weeks since he has taken over the day-to-day operation of the track. He's walking the grounds and stopping in the barns instead of having to be tracked down in the maze of offices under the grandstands.

"WE WANT TO get our name around. We want to focus attention on it," he said.

Joyce said the key to success in

Joseph Joyce

"this crazy business" is getting the customers to come out and enjoy themselves. And in the serious world of big business it helps if the customers enjoy themselves.

"We want the occasional track-goer out more often. If he comes out three times a year, let's try to make it five or six times a year. I'll admit it, we're in competition for the leisure dollar — the same money spent on movies, theaters and concerts," he said.

If that means keeping the patrons happy, you have to admit that he's trying to do just that.

THE GRASSY courtyard by the paddock area has been opened to the public and fitted with tables where the customers can relax. Joyce is thinking of getting some entertainment like Dixieland bands to soothe the frazzled nerves between the races.

"I'm trying to set up some hurdle or steeplechases as a 10th race. You don't get to see them too often. The last time anyone saw them here was in 1964. It would be special, that's why it would be a 10th race," he said.

Joyce may even give life to track-developer Curly Brown's dream of polo at Arlington Park.

"I hope to get some polo games, or more accurately, matches out here. I've been trying to do that," he said.

THE PROMOTIONAL gimmicks and stunts, as Joyce sees it, are just basic parts of selling a product to the public. Basic business sense decrees that the seller must get the buyer to try the product and then keep coming back for more.

Prior to joining the Madison Square Garden Corp., Joyce, an attorney for 17 years, served as executive vice president of the New York State Off Track Betting Corp. He said off track betting will probably be legalized in Illinois, but he isn't laying odds on when it will happen.

"It's coming — but when, I don't know," he said, adding, it must be "properly structured, and I stress that structured."

Business beckoned and it was time to leave the Cadillac conference room and talk to horsemen gathering for Friday's Illinois-bred yearling auction being held at the track.

ONE LAST QUESTION: Back in law school did he ever think he'd be running a race track someday?

"Nope, I never even thought about it. But if I had, I'm sure I would have thought it was going to be fun."

Under that three-button suit coat of Joseph Joyce beats a heart of hoopla. And he's off and running.

Western Union files fraud suit against cab head

A Cook County Grand Jury Thursday reviewed evidence in an investigation into allegations that the president of a Des Plaines taxi company since February has bilked Western Union Telegraph Co. out of $550,000 in money orders.

George Monoco, an attorney for the financial crimes section of the Cook County State's Attorney's office, Thursday confirmed that the grand jury is conducting a probe into allegations against Richard T. Vana, 966 Howard St., Des Plaines. Vana is president of the Martin Cab Co., 1510 Miner St., Des Plaines.

"All I can tell you is that the grand jury is looking into evidence, and that there has been a court order restraining Mr. Vana from disposing of any of his assets," Monoco said. The investigation began earlier this week. Monoco would not say how long the probe will continue.

NAMED IN a civil suit brought by the telegraph company, Vana is accused of defrauding the company by filing for money orders that were not covered by funds Vana should have collected. Vana contracted with the telegraph company to be its agent from the taxi cab headquarters, the company said.

An attorney for the Martin Cab Co., Jules Gershon, Thursday said the civil suit has not been heard, and no court date is set.

"Western Union has made a lot of allegations about some great sums of money involving the cab company," he said. "My initial reaction is that I don't know how a cab company can get involved with Western Union."

Vana could not be reached for comment.

Rangers blocked off the northwest entrance to the forest preserve Thursday afternoon, keeping curiosity seekers and visitors away from investigators on the scene.

The body was transferred from Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge to the Cook County Morgue.

Police said Thursday they do not know the cause of death.

An autopsy is scheduled today by the Cook County Coroner's office.

by HERALD News Services
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity!" The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his campaign for a White House term of his own. "I'm ready, eager, to go before the American people and debate the real issues face-to-face with Mr. Carter."

"We want Ford, We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords, hands clenched above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Reagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

Learning to cope focus of workshops

The status-seeking suburban man, wrapped up in his quest for the better things in life, may be causing serious mental problems for himself.

His workaday world, loaded with keen competition, performance pressures and the increased concentration needed to carry out his duties, leaves him with little time to solve his own problems and even less time to devote to his family.

To help individuals deal with these pressures, the Hoffman Estates Youth and Family Services Dept. will offer three new programs this fall to help residents cope.

TWO OF THE PROGRAMS will deal with the topic of stress as it affects an individual's daily life. The third will help parents more effectively relate to their children.

"Parenting," aimed at improving parent-child relationships, will allow adults to find out what problems other parents face while at the same time giving them an opportunity to learn parental skills.

The workshops begin Sept. 13 from 7 to 9 p.m. and continue four five consecutive Wednesdays.

According to Diane Landsinger, who will teach the class, the workshops are designed for both parents.

SHE SAID SHE hopes participants will learn communication skills, good parent-child "negotiations" to settle differences without resorting to parental "power," individual values in childrearing and an understanding of the psychology of a growing child.

Registration for the workshops is free, but a $5 textbook is required for the course. Information on the workshops and meeting times can be obtained from Landsinger at 882-4445.

The youth services department also will offer a series of seminars on stress in coordination with the Arlington Heights Counseling Center and the Harper College Community Leadership Training Center.

The four seminars will feature experts in different areas of stress research. Starting Sept. 28, the seminars will continue on successive Tuesdays until Oct. 19. The fee is $3.50 per session or $12 for the entire series.

Fire hits barn; traffic jam ensues

Fire gutted a barn southeast of Gannon Drive and Higgins Road in Hoffman Estates Thursday night.

SEMINAR TOPICS will include a panel discussion on stress and mental health, a lecture on nutrition and mental health, a discussion on the crises of death and dying and a seminar on altered states of consciousness like meditation that can relieve stress.

The third program, also on stress and the individual, will be co-sponsored by High School Dist. 211. The program will emphasize methods of combating stress. The fee is $3.50.

The program will begin Sept. 23 and continue for four consecutive Wednesdays. Participants will be taught how to change situations that may lead to stress and how to relax once stress occurs.

Estates Fire Dept. responded to the blaze, while village, Schaumburg, Illinois State and Cook County Sheriff's police handled a massive traffic jam that backed up for a half-mile in both directions of the blaze on Higgins Road.

Police at 11:45 p.m. Thursday reported several auto accidents had occurred near the fire, adding to the traffic tieup. It was unknown at midnight whether persons were injured in the crashes.

Firefighters at midnight still were battling the blaze, but had not requested aid of other fire departments in extinguishing the inferno.

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of governments," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the transPacific

flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Wendy's carnival is 'to help people live'

Eleven-year-old Wendy Lynne Copeland reached over and placed the small, white envelope in my hand. I flipped it over and read the backside.

In neatly printed letters, the envelope said: "I had my carnival against dystrophy because..."

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystrophy. I want to help people live."

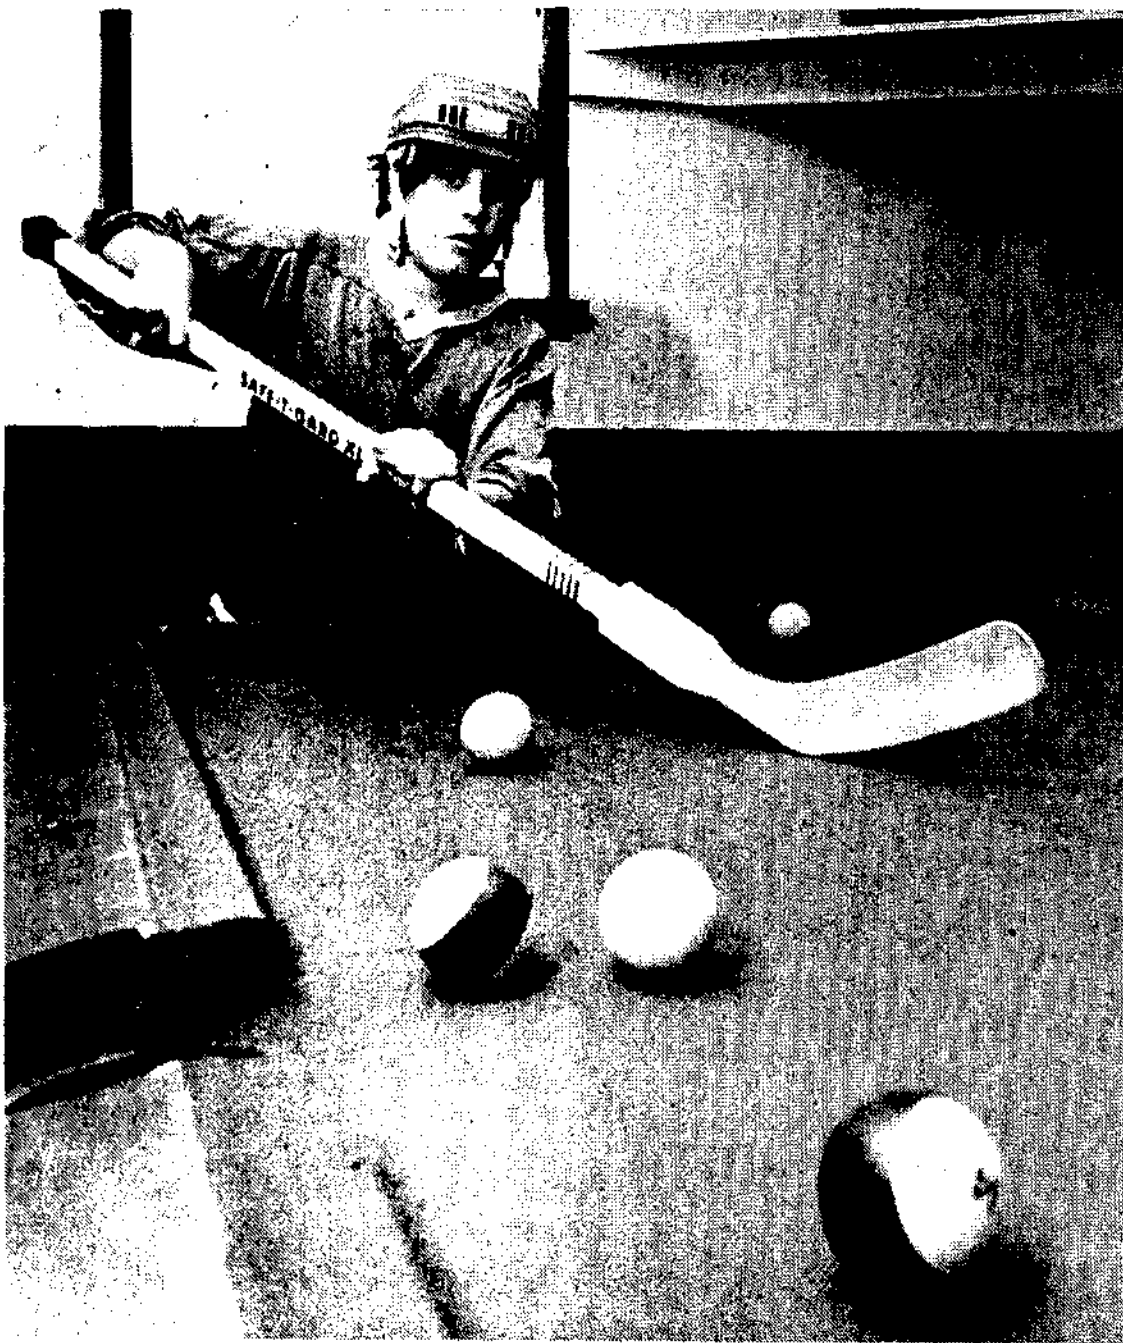

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

Five cents. That's all the admission will cost to this very special Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy that will be conducted in Shelley's honor.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 1 p.m. at 1034 Tulip Way in the Pluehurst Manor subdivision of Palatine. Those homes are located just northeast of the Rand Road and Dundee Road intersection.

League asks Carter-Ford debates

Schaumburg — Hoffman Estates League of Women Voters will participate in a nationwide league drive to bring the two major presidential candidates together for a series of debates.

The first step will be to collect at least four million signatures calling for the debates before the Nov. 2 election, Peggie Elgin, local league president, said Thursday.

Mrs. Elgin said the drive will begin Saturday in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates and continue through Sept. 11.

IF PRESIDENT Gerald R. Ford and Democratic contender Jimmy Carter agree to participate, it will make the first time in 16 years that the nation will hear presidential debates, Mrs. Elgin said.

"We want to make it clear to the two major presidential candidates that the public will not settle for tinsel and hoopla at election time. We want solid answers as to what the candidates stand for and how they intend to deal with the nation's problems if elected to the presidency," she said.

The petition drive, Mrs. Elgin said, will "clearly demonstrate" to both candidates that presidential debates are "a vital part of political accountability."

She said each of the country's 136,000 League members will be asked to obtain at least 30 signatures on a petition saying: "We, the people, urge the major party candidates for president to meet in public debate on the issues facing the country."

SHE SAID THE slogan being used in the petition drive is: "Presidential Debates: Equal Time for the Issues."

Presidential debates are an "excellent way" to ensure that while candidates may be moving further along in a presidential race, they aren't "moving further away from public accountability," she said.

When the league sponsored a series of town meeting forums at which major presidential primary candidates responded to "tough questions" on national issues, she said, candidates appeared to grow "more reluctant to participate" as the primaries progressed.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Twinbrook YMCA building at Wise and Roselle roads in Schaumburg will be Sept. 12.

Marathon Week at boys' club

Marathon Week is under way at the Hoffman Estates Boys' Club barn, 161 Illinois Blvd.

Several special events planned for the week include contests in air hockey, paddle ball, bicycle race, track and arts and crafts. The winners will receive points towards the overall title.

The marathon winners will be announced Thursday night.

NIU-Eisenhower class signup open

Hoffman Estates students who missed the mail registration deadline for off-campus course offered by Northern Illinois University at Eisenhower Junior High School, 800 W. Hassell Rd., may register Saturday for fall semester courses still open.

The registration will be conducted from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the extension office, 124 Adams Hall, on the campus in DeKalb.

Girl struck by car in fair condition

A 13-year-old Schaumburg girl was reported in fair condition Thursday with minor injuries she suffered when struck by a car in the village.

Deborah Levine suffered cuts and scrapes at 7:24 p.m. Wednesday when she was struck by a car at Standish and Sharon Lanes, Schaumburg paramedics said. Paramedics transported Miss Levine to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, where she was admitted for observation after she complained of a sore neck.

Police had no further information on the accident Thursday night.

Racing impresario Joseph Joyce

Razzle dazzle secret to racing success

by JOE SWICKARD

Playboy Bunnies on horseback? Five thousand free halter tops for the ladies? Pro basketball players going against a team of jockeys?

What's next at Arlington Park: — an exploding Tote Board that sends off rockets and sounds sirens when some railbird hits the Daily Double?

Has Bill Veeck been signed as a special consultant at the track? Nope, it's Joseph Joyce, chairman of the board and Madison Square Garden senior vice president, which are deceptively gray titles for a man with a flair for flash and splash.

JOYCE'S WARDROBE fits his title rather than his actions. Instead of race track plaids and two-tone patent leather platforms, he favors three-button suits and black wingtips.

But don't let the New York corporate image fool you, Joyce has plenty of ideas cooking.

"We want people to have a good time out at Arlington Park. A good time — win or lose," he said while relaxing in his Cadillac parked in the backstretch area.

Maybe that's the key to the success he has had in the few weeks since he has taken over the day-to-day operation of the track. He's walking the grounds and stopping in the barns instead of having to be tracked down in the maze of offices under the grandstands.

"WE WANT TO get our name around. We want to focus attention on it," he said.

Joyce said the key to success in "this crazy business" is getting the customers to come out and enjoy themselves. And in the serious world of big business it helps if the customers enjoy themselves.

"We want the occasional track-goer out more often. If he comes out three times a year, let's try to make it five or six times a year. I'll admit it, we're in competition for the leisure dollar — the same money spent on movies, theaters and concerts," he said.

Joseph Joyce

If that means keeping the patrons happy, you have to admit that he's trying to do just that.

THE GRASSY courtyard by the paddock area has been opened to the public and fitted with tables where the customers can relax. Joyce is thinking of getting some entertainment like Dixieland bands to soothe the frazzled nerves between the races.

"I'm trying to set up some hurdle or steeplechases as a 10th race. You don't get to see them too often. The last time anyone saw them here was in 1954. It would be special, that's why it would be a 10th race," he said.

Joyce may even give life to track-developer Curly Brown's dream of polo at Arlington Park.

"I hope to get some polo games, or more accurately, matches out here I've been trying to do that," he said.

THE PROMOTIONAL gimmicks and stunts, as Joyce sees it, are just basic parts of selling a product to the public. Basic business sense decrees that the seller must get the buyer to try the product and then keep coming back for more.

Prior to joining the Madison Square

Garden Corp., Joyce, an attorney for 17 years, served as executive vice president of the New York State Off Track Betting Corp. He said off track betting will probably be legalized in Illinois, but he isn't laying odds on when it will happen.

"It's coming — but when, I don't know," he said, adding, it must be "properly structured, and I stress that structured."

Business beckoned and it was time to leave the Cadillac conference room and talk to horsemen gathering for Friday's Illinois-bred yearling auction being held at the track.

ONE LAST QUESTION: Back in law school did he ever think he'd be running a race track someday?

"Nope, I never even thought about it. But if I had, I'm sure I would have thought it was going to be fun.

Under that three-button suit coat of Joseph Joyce beats a heart of hoopla. And he's off and running.

Hunter cited for work with Jaycees' pet park

Roy Hunter, 1532 Amherst Ln., has received a certificate of achievement from the Schaumburg Jaycees for his work as manpower chairman for the club's pet park at the Town Square Shopping Center.

Last April, the Jaycees began the $12,000 job of renovating the pet park. Club members have painted a barn, have begun installing a new sidewalk and landscaping, and are planning to build a gazebo.

Project chairman John Bachara is optimistic work can be completed soon, and the park dedication can be in early fall.

Money for the landscaping has come from individual donations totaling about $2,000. Plantings range in cost from $6 to $75.

Residents who wish to purchase a tree or shrub for the pet park may make arrangements at Town Square Pharmacy or call Bachara, 884-0169.

It's Ford-Dole

by HERALD News Services
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity." The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his cam-

"We want Ford, We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords, hands clasped above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Reagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystrophy. I want to help people live."

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

Ban on sprinkling of lawns to end Sept. 1

The ban on lawn sprinkling in Rolling Meadows ends Sept. 1.

John P. Hennessy, public works superintendent, Thursday lifted the emergency ban he imposed more than a month ago, when the city faced a serious water shortage.

"I'm calling the ban off Sept. 1 because the residents of Rolling Meadows have demonstrated responsibility and prudence. There need be no ban; set your own goal," Hennessy said.

At a meeting with city residents, Hennessy lashed out at the "irresponsibility of city officials in surrounding towns" as he lifted the ban.

"I CONSIDER the needless use of water in surrounding towns irresponsible. I think the city of Rolling Meadows has taken the only responsible attitude in this time of serious concern over our water supply in the Northwest suburbs," Hennessy said.

"You may be angry with us for imposing a ban, but not as angry as I am at some of the water waste in neighboring towns," he told his audience.

The prevailing attitude in nearby communities is "that they are in the business to sell water," Hennessy said. "But that's not this city's attitude."

Hennessy, Charles Green, acting city manager, and Rodney Blane, administrative assistant, Thursday discussed reasons for the recent ban and how the city hopes to avoid future water problems.

THE THREE conducted an informational water meeting for residents at Rolling Meadows High School and said similar sessions are planned each month.

Hennessy stressed that he was not lifting the sprinkling ban because water conservation was no longer a necessity, or because of pressure from residents who were angry at the ban.

"If anybody thinks I'm apologizing for attempting to save your water supply, they are wrong," he said.

"I came here tonight with compliments, not an apology or excuses," Hennessy said.

"I'm proud as heck of all of you who by your conservation practices this past month have demonstrated fantastic cooperation," he said.

"WE IMPOSED a ban I didn't like any more than you did when we became quite alarmed at the drop in our reservoir and the water levels in our wells," Hennessy said. "It worked and I'd do it again in an emergency."

Acknowledging the angry murmurs from the audience, he said "A lot of you are quite angry and I can't blame you."

"It kills me as much as you to travel a couple of blocks and see water wasted while we are attempting conservation," he said. "We will not take his attitude 'grad first.'"

HENNESSY SAID he did not believe lieve another sprinkling ban would be necessary next summer.

The city is seeking bids for its seventh well and construction of an additional one-million-gallon reservoir.

Hennessy pointed out that the additional storage and pumping capability will help, but is not the solution to the eventual depletion of the underground (Continued on page 6)

Residents boo, then back conservation

An angry crowd of Rolling Meadows residents, irritated at a month-long sprinkling ban, booed and bullied city officials at a water discussion Thursday, but ended up pledging to support the city's water conservation efforts.

One resident, who had complained the loudest at first, led the applause at the end of the meeting when city officials explained why the ban was necessary and what they were doing to prevent future sprinkling bans.

The man, who declined to identify himself, interrupted a film on water conservation by shouting out "this film is an insult to our intelligence. This isn't why we came here."

HE LEFT HIS seat in the auditorium and stalked on stage, where city officials were seated, for a few words with Charles Green, the city's acting city manager. The spat was later patched up with an apology.

An unscheduled intermission followed his outburst. Green told the audience that the film was meant to provide information, not to insult.

At first the audience appeared irritated by the water conservation hints, but once several men and women aired their opinions on the recent water sprinkling ban, they began offering city officials more water conservation ideas.

Mainly they appeared angry that surrounding Arlington Heights residents were allowed to water their lawns three days each week.

"IF WE REALLY are drawing from the same levels, every town around

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of governments," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the transPacific

flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Koenig: 'I don't believe it!'

Birthday balloon

What do you get the president of a greeting card company when it's his birthday?

A balloon ride, of course.

"We figured he's seen every card that's ever been made, and so we wanted to surprise him with something different," said an employee of the United Card Co. in Rolling Meadows.

So, that's why Robert Koenig, president of the firm located at 1101 Carnegie St., was treated Thursday to a balloon ride.

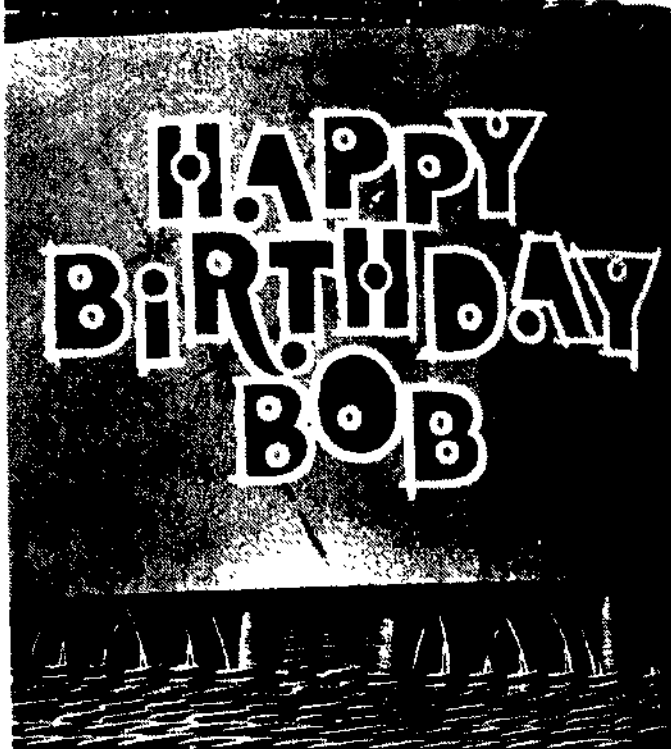

It was a real surprise.

In fact the balloon arrived in a truck and was assembled and inflated on the front lawn of the plant without Koenig suspecting it was there.

Koenig, who has admitted to being "39 and holding," was heard to say, "Oh Nooooo!" as the balloon took him up over the Northwest suburbs. While Koenig was airborne his employees were celebrating his birthday with champagne and birthday cake at a party down below.

Up, up and away...

Balloonist Doug Blount, left, and United Card employe call for Koenig.

With gritty determination and queasy stomach, Bob Koenig makes his first ascent.

Pickin' prize hard for contest winner

"Picking out the prize is harder than working on the poster that won me first place," Rita Metreger, 13, of Rolling Meadows, said as she sorted through mountains of used books Thursday.

Rita, one of the contestants in the poster contest that advertised the Rolling Meadows Friends of the Library book sale, won first place and the opportunity to select $3 worth of books. "I read a lot and plan to be a teacher, but it's really hard to pick out what I want, there is so much to pick from," she said.

A VOLUNTEER worker at the library, Rita said she enjoys checking out books and helping out where she is needed. During the school year she and other Carl Sandberg Junior High School students, members of the junior high library committee, work an hour each week. In the summer they put in a two-hour stint.

"It's been good for my reading habits because it's just natural to want to check out some books every time I'm here," Rita said.

Her selections Thursday included several novels about young girls' adventures, dogs, Winnie The Pooh, a health and grooming book and helpful hints for the teen-ager.

"KNOW THE 56 Signers of the Declaration of Independence" rounded out her selection.

Her reading tastes vary, Rita explained. "In fact I read almost everything that I can."

The book sale will continue from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday inside the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center mall area on Kirchoff Rd.

Proceeds will be used to purchase art prints for the library.

West Fest opens today at center

The Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Assn. is presenting its West Fest tonight through Sunday in the shopping center parking lot on Kirchoff Road.

The parking area has been transformed into a Western ranch and inside the corral are a variety of games, rides and refreshment booths. Free entertainment is provided. Community organizations will staff their own fund-raising booths.

Along with carnival rides and other activities, the merchants will have a sidewalk sale.

Square dancing, music, magicians, clowns and a free drawing for bicycles are part of the fun.

The festival will be from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. tonight and Friday and from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

A DIFFICULT SELECTION but Rita Metreger, Rolling Meadows, has the added advantage of first choice. Rita won $3 worth of books as a prize for designing a poster to advertise the Rolling Meadows Library Book sale running through Saturday in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center mall on Kirchoff Road.

here should be forced to cooperate. Do something about it," one man said.

He urged the city officials to pressure state and federal authorities for help and pledged to contact his own neighbors to urge a letter-writing campaign.

A woman suggested that instead of meetings for adults the city should offer water conservation programs in the schools. Officials said they have already arranged them.

Another said the city should stop unnecessary expansion and ban the use of swimming pools.

The officials were able to answer most of the residents' complaints, but could not get one woman to agree that her lawn would not suffer from less watering.

Several residents complained that expensive landscaping was being harmed. However, John P. Hennessy, public works superintendent, said landscaping experts agree that deep occasional watering is sufficient.

One man summed his annoyance by saying, "OK, I appreciate your saying we are doing our part here in the city, but we are tired. Being noble is great, but isn't it like the tail wagging the dog?"

water supply.

Blane said "without water conservation methods while we work to obtain an alternate water source and improve our system, we and others in the Northwest suburbs will be in serious trouble."

HE EXPLAINED that a rapidly dropping water table has forced Rolling Meadows and surrounding communities to go deeper each year to draw water from wells.

This is costly and impractical, Blane said.

The city is part of Share+3, a group of communities working together to obtain Lake Michigan water, Green said. However, it will be several years before lake water will be available.

"We are working for cooperation on a regional basis while we ask your continued cooperation," Green said.

2 take up GOP standard; Ford, Carter vow debates

by HERALD News Services
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity!" The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his cam-

"We want Ford, We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords, hands clenched above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Reagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

Water system work to cost $5.64 million

Upgrading of Palatine's water distribution system to meet the needs of the population will cost an estimated $5.64 million, according to a study prepared by Consoer, Townsend and Associates, Chicago.

The major cost of the system improvements is installation of new, larger water mains and increasing the size of some existing mains. Estimated cost for this aspect of the project is $3.16 million.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said Thursday financing of the work outlined in the study will require the sale of bonds, but some of the work, which is less costly can be done immediately with available village funds.

"SOME OF THE things can be done immediately and I'd like to see it get started as soon as possible because of its importance," Harwig said.

The report outlines eight steps which should be done in order to improve the system, including installation of new water mains and up-sizing of some existing mains.

The other six steps are:

- Construction of a 10th well and reservoir at an estimated cost of $1.585 million. Well No. 10 already is being built but at a cost of $1.5 million. The work is being financed through the sale of general obligation bonds, which will be paid back over the next 20 years with money generated from the water funds.

- Re-equipping a second well to increase its pumping capacity at an estimated cost of $136,000. The report suggests replacing the existing pump at the well with a submersible pump.

- Construction of a third well without a reservoir at an estimated cost of $470,000. Harwig said this step is not needed immediately and he would recommend the village take no action on this step until the state's report on the allocation of Lake Michigan water to the suburbs is completed.

- General improvements to the Michigan Avenue pumping station at an estimated cost of $12,000.

- Installation of a new telemetering and supervisory control system to monitor and channel the movement of water throughout the village at an estimated cost of $165,000.

- Creation of a contingency fund of about $106,000.

Harwig said the steps which he would like to see done as soon as possible include the improvements to the Michigan Avenue pumping station and installation of the telemetering system.

"The pumping station work could be done with current revenues and I would recommend doing it," he said. "The telemetering system is very important and it is important to include it in the budget but it may have to be bonded."

Harwig said the major cost of the program, installing larger water mains, is the most important part of the project because it is crucial to better water distribution.

"THE SYSTEM was never engineered to handle the load of water that it does," he said.

The largest mains the village has now are eight inches, Harwig said. The report recommends installing a 16-inch main in one location on Northwest Highway from Creekside Drive to Consumers Avenue. Other locations are recommended to receive 10- and 12-inch mains.

The report recommends installing eight-inch mains where four-inch mains now exist.

The report was prepared for the village at a cost of $12,500. The study was commissioned last August to supplement a preliminary report prepared by the engineering firm. Village officials said the first report did not give the type of information the village wanted on how to improve the system.

Harwig said the study will be presented to the village board Sept. 13.

Housing complex awaits village OK

The first of a planned three-phase single-family housing development on 74-acres at the southeast corner of Quentin Road and Illinois Avenue, Palatine, is awaiting approval from village engineers before construction begins.

Steve Lenet, Palatine planning and zoning administrator, said Thursday plans by developer Lew Draper must be approved by Robert Miller, village engineer, and Consoer, Townsend and Associates, the village's engineering consultants. The plans include a review of the preliminary plat, landscaping, water and sewer connections and flood retention.

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of governments," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the trans-Pacific flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Eleven-year-old Wendy Lynne Copeland reached over and placed the small, white envelope in my hand. I flipped it over and read the backside.

In neatly printed letters, the envelope said: "I had my carnival against dystrophy because..."

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystrophy. I want to help people live."

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

Five cents. That's all the admission will cost to this very special Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy that will be conducted in Shelley's honor.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 1 p.m. at 1034 Tulp Way in the Pinehurst Manor subdivision of Palatine. Those homes are located just northeast of the Rand Road and Dundee Road intersection.

approval, they will be forwarded to the plan commission for review and then to the village board, which must authorize the issuance of building permits.

LENET SAID construction of the first phase could begin before the end of the current building season if the village board can get the plans within a month.

Draper plans to build on 50 lots in the first phase of the project. He plans a minimum of 9,000 square feet of building space on each lot.

Draper told the village board in May he hoped to have the first phase completed by October and return to the board next spring with plans for the second phase.

When the board in May granted Draper approval for rezoning of the site from manufacturing to single-family, it called for three conditions to be met. They are development of plans for a homeowners' association, development of a five-acre, fenced park and installation of a sidewalk on the east side of Quentin Road from Peregrine Drive to the north boundary of the proposed development.

DRAPER SUBMITTED the proposed development plans to the village after he dropped plans earlier this year for a 365-acre commercial-residential complex at the site. Draper had to scale down his plans because of financial problems.

In addition to the single-family proposal, another company, Square D Inc., Park Ridge, has presented plans to the village to build on 38 acres of the original 365-acre site. The company which makes electrical supplies, plans to locate its international headquarters at the site.

The plan commission will review the Square D Inc. plans Aug. 31.

Little City resident treated after blaze

A 16-year-old resident of the Little City mental health care center near Palatine was treated for smoke inhalation after fire broke out in a mattress Thursday morning. Palatine paramedics reported.

Paramedics said the fire broke out in a mattress in Cedar Cottage, sleeping area, at 6 a.m. Thursday at the center at Algonquin and Roselle roads. Palatine firefighters extinguished the blaze, which they said was confined to the mattress.

The cottage was evacuated, and a resident was transported to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where he was treated for smoke inhalation and released, paramedics said.

Cause of the fire is under investigation.

Classes are set to begin the week of Sept. 13, and registration will remain open until the end of the first week of classes. Registration must be made in person at the YMCA. Class schedules are available at the Y. Call 359-2400 for more information.

Y members in track meet

Members of the Buehler YMCA youth track team recently placed in three events at the Illinois Jaycee State Track Meet at Champaign.

Randy Gregory of Palatine finished second in the Junior 440-yard run with a time of 58.9. Dave Ashmann, Palatine, took second in the junior 100-yard dash with an 11.2 clocking. Gregory, Ashmann, Tom Barrett and Tom Ahorn, all of Palatine, ran a 51.0 time in the junior 440-yard relay to finish fifth. Medals were awarded to first-through fifth-place finishers.

James Nowlin, Palatine, recently was reelected as president of the board of directors of the Countryside Center for the Handicapped.

Nowlin, who has been associated with the center for many years, is an officer of the center's Parents Assn. He is also involved with several other groups including Boy Scouts of America and Palatine Crusade of Mercy.

Keeping patrons away

by JOE SWICKARD

Playboy Bunnies on horseback? Five thousand free halter tops for the ladies? Pro basketball players going against a team of jockeys?

What's next at Arlington Park — an exploding Tote Board that sends off rockets and sounds sirens when some railbird hits the Daily Double?

Has Bill Veec been signed as a special consultant at the track? Nope, it's Joseph Joyce, chairman of the board and Madison Square Garden senior vice president, which are deceptively gray titles for a man with a flair for flash and splash.

JOYCE'S WARDROBE fits his title rather than his actions. Instead of race track plaids and two-tone patent leather platform shoes, he favors three-button suits and black wingtips.

But don't let the New York corporate image fool you, Joyce has plenty of ideas cooking.

"We want people to have a good time out at Arlington Park. A good time — win or lose," he said while relaxing in his Cadillac parked in the backstretch area.

Joseph Joyce

Maybe that's the key to the success he has had in the few weeks since he has taken over the day-to-day operation of the track. He's walking the grounds and stopping in the barns instead of having to be tracked down in the maze of offices under the grandstands.

"WE WANT TO get our name around. We want to focus attention on it," he said.

Joyce said the key to success in "this crazy business" is getting the customers to come out and enjoy themselves. And in the serious world of big business it helps if the customers enjoy themselves.

"We want the occasional track-goer out more often. If he comes out three times a year, let's try to make it five or six times a year. I'll admit it, we're in competition for the leisure dollar — the same money spent on movies, theaters and concerts," he said.

If that means keeping the patrons happy, you have to admit that he's trying to do just that.

THE GRASSY courtyard by the paddock area has been opened to the public and fitted with tables where the customers can relax. Joyce is thinking of getting some entertainment like Dixieland bands to soothe the frazzled nerves between the races.

"I'm trying to set up some hurdle or steeplechases as a 10th race. You don't get to see them too often. The last time anyone saw them here was in 1954. It would be special, that's why it would be a 10th race," he said.

Joyce may even give life to track-developer Curly Brown's dream of polo at Arlington Park.

"I hope to get some polo games, or more accurately, matches out here. I've been trying to do that," he said.

THE PROMOTIONAL gimmicks and stunts, as Joyce sees it, are just basic parts of selling a product to the public. Basic business sense decrees that the seller must get the buyer to try the product and then keep coming back for more.

Prior to joining the Madison Square Garden Corp., Joyce, an attorney for 17 years, served as executive vice president of the New York State Off Track Betting Corp. He said off track betting will probably be legalized in Illinois, but he isn't laying odds on when it will happen.

"It's coming — but when, I don't know," he said, adding, it must be "properly structured, and I stress that structured."

Business beckoned and it was time to leave the Cadillac conference room and talk to horsemen gathering for Friday's Illinois-bred yearling auction being held at the track.

ONE LAST QUESTION: Back in law school did he ever think he'd be running a race track someday?

"Nope, I never even thought about it. But if I had, I'm sure I would have thought it was going to be fun."

Under that three-button suit coat of Joseph Joyce beats a heart of hoopla. And he's off and running.

Commuters defy safety catching trains

by BILL HILL

As ridership at the railway station in Arlington Heights increases, the safety hazard caused by commuters standing in roadways worsens.

And Arlington Heights police and village officials are becoming increasingly concerned.

"Those people are nuts. Somebody is going to get hurt out there," Trustee David Griffin remarked at last week's village board meeting.

"IT'S SOMETHING we many times have held our breath on," said Police Sgt. Jack Weber, head of the Arlington Heights Traffic Division.

The "nuts" who stand in Arlington Heights Road and Evergreen Avenue each morning cause vehicular traffic to move much slower across the railway crossing and often cause cars to swerve abruptly.

The commuters say they stand in the roadways because that's where the doors to the trains open.

It's an old problem, but the safety hazard created by the waiting commuters just recently has become a popular discussion item at public health and safety meetings.

WEBER REPORTED that last week he had his car siren wailing and red lights flashing as he headed for an accident scene. But even all that commotion failed to move the commuters who were standing in Evergreen Avenue. "I had to drive around them," he said.

The riders of the Chicago and North Western Ry. trains apparently are fearless. One morning Weber and a partner were shocked to see two women get down on their hands and knees and crawl under a railroad car in order to get to the other side of the tracks where passengers were boarding.

"People also are always running around the front of trains as other trains approach from the other direction," Weber said. "Someone is likely to get injured."

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said that people standing in the roadways have caused problems, but he does not foresee ordering police to issue tickets.

"THOSE PEOPLE should know enough to use better judgment," Hanson said.

There have been various attempts to discourage commuters from standing in the roads, including the issuance of notices concerning the village ordinance against obstructing roadways, Weber said. But none have had lasting influence, he said.

"There was a very unfavorable response when we issued the notices to people violating the ordinance," he said.

Other times officers have been assigned to the area to attempt to keep the railway riders out of the streets, but the large groups of commuters proved to be too intimidating.

"IT TOOK MORE than one man to do it physically and it only had a limited amount of success. They (commuters) edge back or a moment and then gradually move back into the road," Weber said.

Bulldozers and the public address systems in squad cars also have been tried, but proved unsuccessful in herding people from the roadways, he said.

"One thing we know will work is to put a number of men (police officers) out there like school patrol boys to confront the people one-on-one. But that would be too costly and it's a critical time of the day when we need our men elsewhere because of the heavy traffic," Weber said.

One trustee has suggested asking the railway company to stop in a different spot so the doors will not open in the middle of the roadways. But the reason the trains stop where they do is to keep the Vall Avenue crossing unblocked.

Trustee Frank Palmatier suggested asking the railway to not open those doors that are in roadways, but Trustee Robert Miller predicted that would cause a riot.

Trustee Griffin, who started discussion on the problem last week, also ended it. He suggested using doberman pinschers to keep the commuters in line.

Car only clue in mystery of body found in woods

by DANN GURE

An abandoned car is the only key police have to the identification of an unidentified body found Thursday in Potawatomi Woods near the Dundee Road-Milwaukee Avenue intersection in Wheeling Township.

Police believe the man may have been the owner of an auto recently found in the Cook County Forest Preserve woods by forest preserve rangers. The auto was registered to John Drag, 37, but the address of Drag was not released by police.

The body was discovered at 2:30 p.m. Thursday by John Perdue of 1022 E. Village Ct., Des Plaines, while he was walking through the woods, police said.

No estimate of how long the body had been in the woods was available Thursday night, but a spokesman for the Cook County Sheriff's office said "It may have been some time. There wasn't much of the body left."

THE SPOKESMAN said identification of the body probably will be confirmed by examination of dental records, "because it's hard to say what happened to him because of the deterioration of the body."

The body was recovered by personnel from the sheriff's office, although the Cook County Forest Preserve Rangers will be conducting an investigation into the body's discovery.

Rangers blocked off the northwest entrance to the forest preserve Thursday afternoon, keeping curiosity seekers and visitors away from investigators on the scene.

The body was transferred from Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge to the Cook County Morgue.

Police said Thursday they do not know the cause of death.

An autopsy is scheduled today by the Cook County Coroner's office.

by HERALD News Services

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity." The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his cam-

"We want Ford. We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords' hands clenched above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Reagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

Transit, energy vital master plan issues

Transportation and energy conservation are major concerns of the village business district development and redevelopment commission in completing a master plan for revamping downtown Mount Prospect.

Robert L. Bennett, commission chairman said he would like to see commuter facilities improved to encourage more residents to use the train. He also said better traffic flow and parking improvements will attract more shoppers to the downtown area.

The commission has been working with Barton-Aschman Associates, a consulting firm, to prepare a detailed plan to revitalize downtown Mount Prospect. Bennett said the master plan, which includes improvements estimated at $1.6 million, will be completed by the end of September.

"Barton-Aschman now is working on traffic problems," Bennett said. "They're proceeding pretty well on schedule. We're very hopeful to have the whole thing wrapped up by the end of September. We don't want to see it drag on."

THE COMMISSION was established two years ago to devise a plan for developing and redeveloping downtown Mount Prospect.

"A lot of emphasis is being put on trying to generate better facilities so more people will use public transportation rather than driving cars," Bennett said.

Bennett said one project proposed in the plan that he would like to see begun early is the improvement of the Chicago and North Western Ry. station. The station was built in 1930.

"We're not only talking of moving the station and improving it as a general facility," Bennett said "I would like to see a new one built. But we haven't even talked with the North Western. It's their station and their land."

If the village board accepts the plan, new facilities to be provided for public use include additional parking structures for commuters and shoppers, traffic safety improvements, improvements to the village hall parking lot and possibly a new location for the North Western station.

OTHER PROJECTS included in the proposed plan are landscape beautification, improved street lighting and sidewalk work.

The village already has received $90,000 from Cook County in federal housing and urban development funds for the village hall parking lot and beautification of the new senior citizens community center.

Bennett said funds from several sources, including the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, are available but he is not sure what money may be obtained once the plan is complete.

"Projects like these have been funded in the past," he said. "The funds have been available and we intend to apply for funds."

The commission hopes the village board will incorporate the downtown master plan into Mount Prospect's comprehensive land use plan. Bennett could not project dates when construction might begin. "It's a long process. We have to get the plan done first.

Then we're required to present the plan to the village board," he said.

Bennett said the plan also might have to go before the village planning commission and zoning board. If the village considers adding it to the comprehensive plan, public hearings will be required.

550-home Rob Roy plan before county zoners

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals will conduct a 3 p.m. hearing today on a proposed 550-home subdivision to be built on the Rob Roy Golf Course.

The board will entertain a request by Centex Homes of Illinois Inc., to rezone the 200-acre golf course from half-acre to quarter-acre lots.

The hearing will be held at the Gary Morava Recreation Center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Centex officials also have requested that the City of Prospect Heights annex the golf course, now located in unincorporated Cook County.

Prospect Heights officials have asked the county zoning board of appeals to defer action on the rezoning request until the city has completed review of the plans.

Officials from Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect and Wheeling are expected to attend the hearing to voice their concerns about the project.

Centex officials have proposed building two-story and ranch-style homes on lots between 8,500 and 10,000-square-foot lots. The streets and cul-de-sacs will be constructed without storm sewers, curbs or sidewalks.

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of government," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the trans-Pacific flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Wendy's carnival is 'to help people live'

Eleven-year-old Wendy Lynne Copeland reached over and placed the small, white envelope in my hand. I flipped it over and read the backside.

In neatly printed letters, the envelope said: "I had my carnival against dystrophy because..."

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystrophy. I want to help people live."

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

Five cents. That's all the admission will cost to this very special Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy that will be conducted in Shelley's honor.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 1 p.m. at 1034 Tulip Way in the Pinehurst Manor subdivision of Palatine. Those homes are located just northeast of the Rand Road and Dundee Road intersection.

Ice cream social Sunday

Grace Lutheran Church, 1624 Euclid Ave., will have its annual ice cream social Sunday sponsored by the Agape Youth Group. Proceeds will go to the high school youth program and mission work.

Ice cream cones, sodas, sundaes and banana splits will be served beginning at 5 p.m., weather permitting, on the church grounds.

At 7:30 p.m., the young people will present "Fables, Vaudevilles and Plays" in the parish hall. The comedy sketches with messages include The Apple Bit, Harry and the Angel and Tilly Tutweillers Silly Trip to the Moon.

Working with the young people at Grace are John Hooker, parish educator, Kenneth Granquist, pastor, and Richard Lange and Susan Rossing, high school advisers.

SPEAKING OF ice cream socials, Roland Miller presented a wide repertoire of guitar music at the social held at Trinity United Methodist Church on Golf Road last Sunday afternoon. Roland will be a student at Utah State University in September.

CHEERIE-AIDES AT Holy Family Hospital will sponsor a car wash from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. Car washes cost $1; vans, $1.50. Vacuuming is 25 cents extra. The event will be at Holy Family Hospital Garage, employee entrance, 100 N. River Rd., Des Plaines.

The Cheerie-Aides are junior volunteers serving the hospital.

VILLAGE RESIDENTS will be happy to know that Mount Prospect Postmaster Ralph Palubicki is aware of two major complaints regarding the new post office building at 1 N. Elmhurst Ave., and is seeking to correct the problems.

Currently, the lack of a drive-up chute for dropping mail from a car requires that customers park and get out of cars to deposit letters. Also, "no left turn" at the exit forces many drivers out of their way around a long residential block.

Palubicki reports that post office engineers are expected on the scene soon to study the situation and to make suggestions to improve the traffic pattern and the problems.

By the way, the one lone house that appears to be stranded on the post office property was not removed when the new facility was built because "the owner did not wish to sell," said Robert E. Gay, district engineer, Chicago District of the U. S. Postal Service.

Current occupants, the B. Wiginton family, have rented the home since 1974 and say, "The post office isn't any problem to us."

Dist. 59 wrapup

'Dramatic' results in reading clinic

Students receiving special help through the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 reading clinic last year "dramatically" exceeded the district's expectations for their growth in reading skills.

Robert Bortnick, reading clinician, presented a report to the board Monday on the progress of students in the program after its first year.

According to the report, students involved in the clinic improved by one year in vocabulary and comprehension on the Gates MacGinitie reading tests.

Students improved by one year in sight vocabulary, 3.5 years in word attack skills, two years in vocabulary and 1.5 years in reading comprehension on the Woodcock reading test.

Students included in the program were about two years behind their peers and were expected to grow about one-half year in reading skills. The test scores show the average growth in the various reading skills. About 50 students received the individualized help of the clinic.

Bortnick said "the results are rather dramatic as they stand. Our goal is two years growth in one year of instruction."

Dist. 59 received a $72,000 grant for the bilingual education program for the 1976-77 school year.

The grant will allow the district to continue offering services to bilingual students and expand the present program. The grant is expected to cover the program's costs.

Dist. 23 reaches borrowing limit

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will be required to borrow the maximum in tax anticipation warrants allowed by law to meet the $2.62 million budget approved for the 1976-77 school year.

The board of education Wednesday approved the budget, which calls for a 4 per cent increase in expenditures from last year's $2.52 million budget. The budget includes $110,000 in cuts approved by the board in April for this year.

The district will be borrowing $554,000 — the maximum allowed on tax anticipation warrants — to supplement the $2.47 million anticipated in revenue from property taxes, state aid and other sources.

The district also plans to borrow $91,000 from the working cash fund for the education fund. The working cash fund is expected to have $104,036, which can be loaned to the building and education fund. The working cash fund is a type of internal bank built up by the district.

THE DISTRICT expects a 6 per cent increase in tax revenue, from $776,063 last year to $823,867, which will result from an increase in the as-essed valuation from $45.5 million to $54.2 million.

Because of the increased assessed valuation, the tax rate is expected to drop by at least eight cents from the 1975 rate of $2.59 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.51 per $100 assessed valuation. The education and building fund tax rates, included in the total tax rate, will be at the maximum approved by the voters — $1.72 per $100 assessed valuation.

The increase in tax revenue is expected to be offset by a decrease in state aid. State aid will drop by at least 9 per cent this year, from $19,313 last year to $836,719, said James Hendren, business manager. The loss in state aid results from the increased assessed valuation and a decrease in student enrollment.

State aid is partly figured on the assessed valuation per student, with districts having a higher assessed valuation per student receiving less money than those with a lower rate.

THE EDUCATION fund is budgeted at $1,999,594, a 1.66 per cent increase from last year's $1,966,955. The figure includes an estimate for teachers' salary increases, which are being negotiated for the 1976-77 school year.

The transportation fund showed the largest percentage of increase, 39 per cent, with $154,000 budgeted compared to last year's $110,545.

The building fund calls for expenditures of $172,350, a 16.7 per cent increase from last year's $147,735. The increase primarily resulted from utility bills.

The bond and interest fund is set for $223,000, compared to $224,000 last year and the retirement fund is budgeted for $41,500, compared to $40,000 last year.

2 towns asked to fix safety woes

The River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education has approved letters outlining safety problems at two schools.

The board Tuesday approved sending a letter to the village of Mount Prospect urging installation of a traffic light at Euclid Avenue and Burning Bush Lane for the safety of students walking to Indian Grove School, 1340 Burning Bush La., Mount Prospect.

Until the light is installed, the board requested stationing of a crossing guard at that intersection.

The board also approved sending a letter to the village of Des Plaines and to the county, informing them that a potential hazard could be created by cars turning onto Gregory Street from River Road to go to Nipper School, 1101 E. Gregory St., Des Plaines.

Mrs. Rosen said road markings may be needed as a warning that cars will be turning there because the entrance to Gregory is on a curve on River Road, which has a 50-m.p.h. speed limit.

Times listed for Dist. 23 fee payment

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 students may register and pay material fees for the 1976-77 school year Aug. 30 to Sept. 3 at the schools.

Book rental fees are $3 for kindergarten students, $12 for elementary students and $10 for junior high school students. Junior high students also must pay a $5 towel rental fee.

Other optional services and fees include insurance — $18 for 24-hour, year-round coverage or $4 for coverage during the school day — and bus transportation at $63 per student. Families with four or more students only pay the bus fee for the first three children.

Milk and cookies will be served to kindergarten children at an additional cost of $9. Parents are permitted to send milk and cookies with their kindergarten daily if they do not want to pay the $9 fee.

Junior high students also may purchase school supplies and gym suits at the school store during registration. Gym suits cost $5 for boys and $7 for girls.

Dist. 23 requires kindergarten and fifth grade students to submit a completed physical examination and dental checkup form at registration.

Policy for lunchroom approved by Dist. 57

A lunchroom policy for Mount Prospect Dist. 57 first-through sixth-grade students has been approved by the Dist. 57 Board of Education.

Parents who wish their children to remain at school during the lunch hour in 1976-77 will be charged $7.50 per semester to cover the cost of paying lunchroom supervisors, Supt. Earl Sutter said.

Children either may pay the $7.50 fee when it is collected the first week of school or pay a daily fee of 20 cents, Sutter said.

Teachers will be the primary supervisors, he said.

IN PREVIOUS YEARS board policy was that children who live within walking distance of the school would walk home for lunch. In 1975-76 at the request of working parents who could not be home with their children for lunch, the board allowed children to remain at school for lunch for a trial period in October and then for the remainder of the year.

Parents were surveyed to determine whether they would be willing to pay $15 a year to cover the cost of hiring lunchroom supervisors. The board gave final approval to the $7.50-per-semester plan Monday.

The fee does not affect junior high school students. The fee also does not include lunch. Children can purchase milk at school but should bring a lunch from home.

Panel tells ways to keep Dist. 59 orchestra plan

Recommendations for maintaining an orchestra program in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 have been presented to the board of education by the orchestra study committee.

The committee's recommendations are:

- Consolidate instruction to a central school location, rather than at all schools throughout the district.

- Develop a program to involve parents in music education.

- Encourage private lessons for students during the second year of school instruction.

- Work toward a student-teacher ratio of 120 students per teacher to cut the per capita cost to about $135 from the current cost of about $200 per student.

- Continue recruiting students in the fourth and fifth grades.

- Consider including the string program as part of the district's gifted program.

The board plans to take action on the recommendations after receiving information about the possibility of implementing the suggested program in the fall.

New student registration will be held at all Mount Prospect Dist. 57 schools Monday through Aug. 27 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m.

Only those students who have moved into the district since school closed in June need to register. Pupils who attended Dist. 57 school in 1975-76 have been enrolled automatically.

Parents are asked to bring either a transfer notice or a copy of the last report card from their child's former school. Parents of kindergartners should bring a copy of their child's birth certificate.

School fees will be collected after school begins.

Illinois law requires physical examinations and immunizations for all kindergarten and fifth grade students and for first graders who did not attend kindergarten. Students transferring from schools outside Illinois also are required to present evidence of current physicals and immunizations, regardless of their grade level, by the first day of school, which is Sept. 1.

2 take up GOP standard; Ford, Carter vow debates

by HERALD News Services
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unity." The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his cam-

"We want Ford, We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords, hands clasped above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former

California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Reagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

Commuters ignore safety catching trains

by BILL HILL

As ridership at the railway station in Arlington Heights increases, the safety hazard caused by commuters standing in roadways worsens.

And Arlington Heights police and village officials are becoming increasingly concerned.

"Those people are nuts. Somebody is going to get hurt out there," Trustee David Griffin remarked at last week's village board meeting.

"IT'S SOMETHING we many times have held our breath on," said Police Sgt. Jack Weber, head of the Arlington Heights Traffic division.

The "nuts" who stand in Arlington Heights Road and Evergreen Avenue each morning cause vehicular traffic to move much slower across the railway crossing and often cause cars to swerve abruptly.

The commuters say they stand in the roadways because that's where the doors to the trains open.

It's an old problem, but the safety hazard created by the waiting commuters just recently has become a popular discussion item at public health and safety meetings.

WEBER REPORTED that last week he had his car siren wailing and red lights flashing as he headed for an accident scene. But even all that commotion failed to move the commuters who were standing in Evergreen Avenue. "I had to drive around them," he said.

The riders of the Chicago and North Western Ry. trains apparently are fearless. One morning Weber and a partner were shocked to see two women get down on their hands and knees and crawl under a railroad car in order to get to the other side of the tracks where passengers were boarding.

"People also are always running around the front of trains as other trains approach from the other direction," Weber said. "Someone is likely to get injured."

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said that people standing in the roadways have caused problems, but he does not foresee ordering police to issue tickets.

"THOSE PEOPLE should know enough to use better judgment," Hanson said.

There have been various attempts to discourage commuters from standing in the roads, including the issuance of notices concerning the village ordinance against obstructing roadways, Weber said. But none have had lasting influence, he said.

"There was a very unfavorable response when we issued the notices to people violating the ordinance," he said.

Other times officers have been assigned to the area to attempt to keep the railway riders out of the streets,

Razzle dazzle track's success secret

by JOE SWICKARD

Playboy Bunnies on horseback? Five thousand free halter tops for the ladies? Pro basketball players going against a team of jockeys?

What's next at Arlington Park — an exploding Tote Board that sends off rockets and sounds sirens when some railbird hits the Daily Double?

Has Bill Vecek been signed as a special consultant at the track? Nope, it's Joseph Joyce, chairman of the board and Madison Square Garden senior vice president, which are deceptively gray titles for a man with a flair for flash and splash.

JOYCE'S WARDROBE fits his title rather than his actions. Instead of razzle track plaids and two-tone patent leather platform shoes, he favors three-button suits and black wingtips.

But don't let the New York corporate image fool you, Joyce has plenty of ideas cooking.

"We want people to have a good time out at Arlington Park. A good time — win or lose," he said while relaxing in his Cadillac parked in the backstretch area.

Maybe that's the key to the success he has had in the few weeks since he has taken over the day-to-day operation of the track. He's walking the grounds and stopping in the barns instead of having to be tracked down in the maze of offices under the grandstands.

"WE WANT TO get our name around. We want to focus attention on it," he said.

Joyce said the key to success in "this crazy business" is getting the customers to come out and enjoy themselves. And in the serious world of big business it helps if the customers enjoy themselves.

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger

had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of government," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the trans-Pacific flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Wendy's carnival is 'to help people live'

Eleven-year-old Wendy Lyne Copeland reached over and placed the small, white envelope in my hand. I flipped it over and read the backside.

In neatly printed letters, the envelope said: "I had my carnival against dystrophy because..."

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystrophy. I want to help people live."

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

Five cents. That's all the admission will cost to this very special Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy that will be conducted in Shelley's honor.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 1 p.m. at 1034 Tulip Way in the Pinenhurst Manor subdivision of Palatine. Those homes are located just northeast of the Rand Road and Dundee Road intersection.

On the official forms, it has

but the large groups of commuters proved to be too intimidating.

"IT TOOK MORE than one man to do it physically and it only had a limited amount of success. They (commuters) edge back or a moment and then gradually move back into the road," Weber said.

Bullhorns and the public address systems in squad cars also have been tried, but proved unsuccessful in herding people from the roadways, he said.

"One thing we know will work is to put a number of men (police officers) out there like school patrol boys to confront the people one-on-one. But that would be too costly and it's a critical time of the day when we need our men elsewhere because of the heavy traffic," Weber said.

One trustee has suggested asking the railway company to stop in a different spot so the doors will not open in the middle of the roadways. But the reason the trains stop where they do is to keep the Vail Avenue crossing unblocked.

Trustee Frank Palmatier suggested asking the railway to not open those doors that are in roadways, but Trustee Robert Miller predicted that would cause a riot.

Trustee Griffin, who started discussion on the problem last week, also ended it. He suggested using doberman pinschers to keep the commuters in line.

$554,000 in tax warrants

Dist. 23 to get maximum loan to meet new budget

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will be required to borrow the maximum in tax anticipation warrants allowed by law to meet the $2.62 million budget approved for the 1976-77 school year.

The board of education Wednesday approved the budget, which calls for a 4 per cent increase in expenditures from last year's $2.52 million budget. The budget includes $110,000 in cuts approved by the board in April for this year.

The district will be borrowing $554,000 — the maximum allowed on tax anticipation warrants — to supplement the $2.47 million anticipated in revenue from property taxes, state aid and other sources.

The district also plans to borrow $91,000 from the working cash fund for the education fund. The working cash fund is expected to have $104,036, which can be loaned to the building and education fund. The working cash fund is a type of internal bank built up by the district.

THE DISTRICT expects a 6 per cent increase in tax revenue, from $776,083 last year to $823,187, which will result from an increase in the assessed valuation from $45.5 million to $48.2 million.

Because of the increased assessed valuation, the tax rate is expected to drop by at least eight cents from the 1975 rate of $2.59 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.51 per $100 assessed valuation. The education and building fund tax rates, included in the total tax rate, will be at the maximum approved by the voters — $1.72 per $100 assessed valuation.

The increase in tax revenue is expected to be offset by a decrease in state aid. State aid will drop by at least 9 per cent this year, from $919,313 last year to $836,719, said James Hendren, business manager. The loss in state aid results from the increased assessed valuation and a decrease in student enrollment.

State aid is partly figured on the assessed valuation per student, with districts having a higher assessed valuation per student receiving less money than those with a lower rate.

THE EDUCATION fund is budgeted at $1,999,594, a 1.66 per cent increase from last year's $1,966,955. The figure includes an estimate for teachers' salary increases, which are being negotiated for the 1976-77 school year.

The transportation fund showed the largest percentage of increase, 39 per cent, with $154,000 budgeted compared to last year's $110,545.

The building fund calls for expenditures of $172,350, a 16.7 per cent increase from last year's $147,735. The increase primarily resulted from utility bills.

The bond and interest fund is set for $223,000, compared to $224,000 last year and the retirement fund is budgeted for $41,500, compared to $40,000 last year.

A Message From GEORGE HARRIS Your Pharmacist

BECAUSE HEALTH IS IMPORTANT wise laws regulate the practice of pharmacy. We are regularly and unexpectedly inspected by officials from the Board of Pharmacy, the narcotic Bureau and sometimes the Board of Health and Fire Department.

MEDICINES MUST BE PROTECTED. If a medicine requiring refrigeration is not kept in a refrigerator, we are subject to a penalty. Many drugs must be dated, for they lose potency and cannot, after a time, be dispensed. Others must be stored away from exposure to light. This applies also to certain patent medicines.

PHARMACISTS ARE EXPERTS. A pharmacist's license is obtained after many years study in a College of Pharmacy, the serving of an apprenticeship to gain more practical experience and passing a state examination to prove the knowledge needed to protect the public from harm.

DO NOT GAMBLE WITH HEALTH. There are many stores, door-to-door peddlers, mail-order firms and even supermarkets trying to induce you to buy medicines from them.

DEPEND ON YOUR PHARMACY. We have the knowledge to protect you. Any vitamin or medicine we supply measures up to our prescription quality standards. Our prices are always honest value.

Unregistered cars become sticky issue

Alas! They've got your number. The Village of Arlington Heights is conducting its annual crackdown against residents who forgot, delayed or just plain refused to buy vehicle registration stickers this year.

Kenneth Bondar, village finance director, announced Thursday that the village has received a computer listing of registered vehicles in the State of Illinois and now is checking to see which residents have failed to buy the $15 stickers.

A federal grant program has allowed the village to hire a person to check for unregistered vehicles, Bondar said.

Persons who have not purchased vehicle stickers will receive letters informing them that they are violating the village ordinance and that they may be fined $200 per day, for each day they fail to purchase a vehicle sticker when caught, he said.

Apartment dwellers to take part in poll

The Arlington Heights planning department has announced that families living in multi-family developments in the village will be polled beginning this week about the ages of their children.

The survey will be conducted by William Sherman, a graduate student working on his thesis.

"We hope that residents will cooperate because this is an important study designed to determine what impact multi-family developments have on our schools," Village Planner Joseph Kesler said.

Dist. 25 collecting fees on Tuesday

Material and book fees for students attending Arlington Heights Dist. 25 schools will be collected Tuesday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the local schools.

Fees are $11 for students in grades 1 through 8 and $5 for kindergarten students. Checks should be made payable to Arlington Heights Public Schools.

Brochures describing student insurance options also will be available on Tuesday. The fee for insurance coverage may be paid that day. The cost for coverage during school hours is $2.75 and for 24-hour coverage is $18.

Class lists will be posted at the schools on Tuesday. New students should contact their local school immediately to register. Classes begin Wednesday, Sept. 1.

Signup Monday at Lady of Wayside

Registration for students planning to attend Our Lady of the Wayside School, Arlington Heights, will be held Monday in the junior high auditorium. Families with last names beginning with A through L will register from 9 a.m. to noon. Those whose last names begin with M through Z will register from 1 to 4 p.m.

Fees due at this time include: first month's tuition, instructional fee ($45 per child due Monday), half of the bus fee and mother's patrol charge ($27 for the year).

Representatives for scouting, Camp Fire and 4-H groups will be present Monday.

School will open Sept. 7 at 8:30 a.m. with dismissal at 11:30 a.m.

190-acre rezoning on agenda today

The rezoning of 190 acres at the northeast corner of Euclid-Lake Avenue and Wheeling Road in Wheeling Township will be reviewed at 3 p.m. today by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

The acreage presently is zoned for single-family use. The proposed rezoning would change the designation to single-family that would allow more housing units per acre.

The zoning commissioners also will discuss a special-use request for portions of the same acreage.

Paul Marcy, secretary of the zoning board of appeals, declined to give added details about the proposed development. The land is owned by a family trust.

The meeting will be held at the Gary Morava Recreation center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Learning trouble seminar

Arlington Heights' Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities will have a day-long seminar Sept. 11 concerning "Kids Who Have Trouble in School," featuring Bill Page, a classroom teacher for 15 years.

The seminar will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd. A registration donation of $5 for nonmembers and $4 for members will be charged.

Auer becomes Brother

LeRoy Ferdinand Auer, 36, of Arlington Heights, recently took the Benedictine habit and has begun his year of canonical novitiate for Marmion Abbey, Aurora.

Auer will be known as Brother Benedict.

During the past five years he has taught at St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights.

Arlington Park impressario

"We want the occasional track-goer out more often. If he comes out three times a year, let's try to make it five or six times a year. I'll admit it, we're in competition for the leisure dollar — the same money spent on movies, theaters and concerts," he said.

If that means keeping the patrons happy, you have to admit that he's trying to do just that.

THE GRASSY courtyard by the paddock area has been opened to the public and fitted with tables where the customers can relax. Joyce is thinking of getting some entertainment like Dixieland bands to soothe the frazzled nerves between the races.

"I'm trying to set up some hurdle or steeplechases as a 10th race. You don't get to see them too often. The last time anyone saw them here was in 1954. It would be special, that's why it would be a 10th race," he said.

Joyce may even give life to track-developer Curly Brown's dream of polo at Arlington Park.

"I hope to get some polo games, or more accurately, matches out here. I've been trying to do that," he said.

THE PROMOTIONAL gimmicks and stunts, as Joyce sees it, are just basic parts of selling a product to the public. Basic business sense decrees that the seller must get the buyer to try the product and then keep coming back for more.

Joseph Joyce

Prior to joining the Madison Square Garden Corp., Joyce, an attorney for 17 years, served as executive vice president of the New York State Off Track Betting Corp. He said off track betting will probably be legalized in Illinois, but he isn't laying odds on when it will happen.

"It's coming — but when, I don't know," he said, adding, it must be "properly structured, and I stress that structured."

Business beckoned and it was time to leave the Cadillac conference room and talk to horsemen gathering for Friday's Illinois-bred yearling auction being held at the track.

ONE LAST QUESTION: Back in law school did he ever think he'd be running a race track someday?

"Nope, I never even thought about it. But if I had, I'm sure I would have thought it was going to be fun."

Under that three-button suit coat of Joseph Joyce beats a heart of hoopla. And he's off and running.
